4 Die, 29 Hurt In Traffic As Hit-Run Cars Kill 2

One Driver Seized; Police Seek Second; General Matthews Dies of Injuries

Four men were killed and 29 persons injured, several seriously, in traffic accidents in the Washington area yesterday. Hit-run motorists accounted for two of the fatalities.

James W. Gorham, 20, of Franconia, Va., died when he was hurled from an auto in a collision on Route No. 14 miles south of Alexandria.

Alleged Hit-Run Driver Held

Buster Reeves, 30, of Bristow, Va., was fatally injured when he was struck down on Lee highway, near Manassas. Police, who arrived on the scene immediately after the accident, captured the alleged hit-run motorist, Philip Deris, 21, of Manassas, after a mile-and-a-half chase. Deris was held on a charge of leaving after colliding.

Joseph Monroe, 35, of Crewe, Va., died at Emergency Hospital where he was taken after being felled by an auto at Warrenton, Va. Police last night were searching for a runaway driver believed responsible for the fatality.

Boy Severely Lacerated

Others injured were Mrs. Iva Stevens, 38, the boy's mother; Solon Sherman, 25, of the Cavalier Hotel; Rebecca Sherman, his mother, and Mrs. Virginia Smallwood, 38, of the Rosedale street address.

Brig. Gen. Calvin B. Matthews, U. S. M. C., 60, of 1900 Florida avenue northwest, died yesterday at Naval Hospital as a result of an accident July 30. In dislodging his car from another auto with which it had locked bumpers, Gen. Matthews was pinned against a lamp post by the machine when it rolled downhill at Nineteenth and T streets northwest after being freed. He suffered internal injuries. His death was the fifty-fourth traffic fatality of the year.

Six persons were injured, one fatally in a crash at Viers Mill and Wheaton roads, near Silver Spring, Md.

Four Youths Injured

Four young persons were injured, one seriously, when a car in which they were riding, operated by Allen Hill, 21, of 919 Shepherd street northwest, struck a culvert at Largo, Md., early yesterday morning. They were taken to Casualty Hospital by the Bladensburg Rescue Squad.

William Sharkey, 18, of 812 Van Buren street northwest, was reported in serious condition by hospital physicians. Kenneth McConkey, 18, of 738 Otis place northwest; Raymond Gosweiler, 16, of 928 Quincy street northwest, and Hill also were treated. McConkey was released and returned to his home.

Seven colored persons were treated at Casualty Hospital yesterday morning following an auto accident on the Baltimore boulevard near Muirkirk, Md. They were taken to

Key Witness Kills Self in 'Hot' Oil Case

Conservation Official Signed Louisiana Production Orders

By the United Press.

New Orleans, Aug. 20.—Dr. J. A. Shaw, State conservation official and a key witness in Federal investigation of alleged "hot oil" operations in Louisiana, tonight killed himself.

Shaw, head of the Minerals Division of the Conservation Department, died at Baptist Hospital shortly after the shooting.

Dr. C. Grenes Cole, Orleans Parish coroner, after an autopsy, adjudged the death a suicide.

The shooting followed closely an opinion by a Texas Federal court judge that Shaw was "just as guilty" of conspiring to violate the Connally hot oil law as other high Louisiana political figures already indicted by the Federal grand jury.

Shaw, fired and rehired since the break of the Louisiana scandals last June, had returned yesterday from Dallas, Tex., where he testified in the removal hearing of the millionaire oil man, Freeman W. Burford, indicted on charges of conspiracy to violate the hot oil law.

Burford was released from custody, the court holding there was no reasonable probability of a case against him.

Indicted with Burford were former Gov. Richard W. Leche and Seymour Weiss, two of the three heirs to the political kingdom in

Dragging Fails To Locate Body Of O.F. Buehne

Capital Resident Drowns in Bay on Night Fishing Trip

Darkness halted efforts last night to recover the body of Ollie F. Buehne, 42, chief of the stamp division of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, who was drowned Saturday night in the Chesapeake Bay near the mouth of South River.

More than a dozen yachts dragged bay waters in the vicinity of the accident from dawn to night yesterday, according to Sergt. Leroy Crandall, of the Anne Arundel County police. He said that the search would be resumed this morning.

Buehne fell from the hatch of a fishing vessel at 10 p. m. Saturday. He and 60 other employes of the Internal Revenue Bureau went fishing in a boat commanded by Capt. William Wood after an all-day excursion at Galesville, Md.

Friends said that a sudden swell tipped the boat as Buehne stood adjusting his rod and reel. The tragedy occurred in water 25 feet deep, about 1 mile from the inlet at the intersection of South and West rivers.

Buehne, who lived at 1812 Upshur street northeast, is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary E. Buehne, and four daughters: Frances, 11; Marguerite, 15; Dorothy, 17, and Mary, 19.

2 Fall 5 Floors To Post Skylight; Bones Fractured

T. Edward Finnell, 1328 G street northeast, an electrician employed by The Post, and his sister-in-law, Mrs. Katherine Scott, fell five floors to a second-floor skylight at The Post Building early today.

At Emergency Hospital, where the two were taken by the Fire Rescue Squad, Finnell was reported to have suffered fractures of the ankle and arm and possibly a skull fracture.

The woman's injuries could not be determined immediately.

Their fall to the skylight directly over the Post's proof room, shattered the glass. Proofreaders were showered, and one, Jesse Manbeck, suffered a cut on the head.

Speed Projects Or Lose Funds, PWA Warns

Lag in Construction Must Be Made Up, 56 Cities Advised

By International News Service

Acting Public Works Commissioner E. W. Clark last night warned 56 cities and towns in 26 States they must speed up construction on 67 PWA projects involving $202,176,787 or face an end of Federal grants.

Following a conference with Federal Works Administrator John M. Carmody and regional directors from New York, Atlanta, Chicago, Fort Worth, Omaha, San Francisco and Portland, Col. Clark dispatched telegrams to project authorities in the various cities.

He warned them that their projects are far behind schedule and that work must immediately be expedited, to make up for a "serious lag" in construction progress.

If the projects are not completed June 30, 1940, the deadline, "you cannot expect grants on work done after that date," Clark's telegrams stated.

The projects, involving sums ranging from under $1,000,000 to more than $22,000,000, and covering all branches of public works, from bridge building to hospital and school construction, involve Federal grants aggregating $90,773,928.

Clark informed the local authorities that the situation was being called to their attention now so that "corrective measures can be inaugurated." He instructed each official to advise him, through the channel of regional directors, by August 31, what action is contemplated to speed the work.

Of the list of projects, 10 are in Ohio, 9 in Illinois, 4 in New York and 4 in Pennsylvania.

Antinoise Law Arrest Made

John Freeman, colored, 53, of the 1500 block of Corcoran street northwest, was arrested early yesterday and charged with "unnecessary use of his automobile horn. The arrest was part of a drive by District police to curb unnecessary noise in Washington.

Wage-Hour Chiefs Define Farm Rules

First Processors Of Agricultural Products Exempt From Restrictions

The first comprehensive summary of the Fair Labor Standards Act exemptions for agriculture and for processing of agricultural commodities was issued yesterday by the Wage-Hour administration.

The summary sets forth the principles which have guided wage-hour officials in administration of the act and is designed to answer thousands of questions of farmers and processors of farm products. It is subject to change whenever the chief administrator may decide his present interpretation is incorrect, or when the rulings may be revised by the courts.

Exempted Occupations

The interpretative bulletin says the following occupations related to farming come under the term "agriculture" and are therefore exempt from the act:

The production, cultivation and growing of any agricultural or horticultural commodity.

Livestock raising.

Dairying.

Poultry raising.

Bee raising.

Raising of fur-bearing animals.

Any practices (including any forestry or lumbering operations) incident to such farming operations. These include:

Preparation for market, delivery to storage or to market or to carriers for transportation to market of any raw farm products.

Flour Mills Excluded

This includes the processing (including canning) of fresh fruits and vegetables, but not the processing of nuts, which may be a fruit, the interpretation said, "but they are not fresh fruits even when newly packed." Also, fresh fruits, such as tomatoes, must come from a farmer's own farm before canning is exempt. In this connection, the hulling, shelling, cracking or grinding of whole grains, including the milling of flour, are exempt, as are the stemming, redrying and fermenting of tobacco.

The exemption also applies to the slaughtering of livestock and poultry and all operations generally performed in connection with the slaughtering, but it does not apply to poultry and livestock products or by-products. Thus, the manufacturing, curing, smoking, grading, refrigerating and packing of meat products and by-products are not exempt.

The summary added: "The term dairying includes the work of milk-

Japan Reported Getting Set for U. S. Embargo

Tokyo (Monday), Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The newspaper Asahi declared today that the Japanese foreign office is formulating a new American policy, embracing retaliation against American interests in China, to be applied in event any munitions embargo is imposed by the United States.

The newspaper said that the embargo would be regarded as unfair application of the neutrality law and that Japan, therefore, would assume belligerent rights in connection with American interests in China.

"Japan at present is in a position where she cannot help abandoning her traditional policy of friendship toward America," the Asahi said.

[Senator Schwellenbach (Democrat), of Washington, introduced at the last Congress a resolution to impose an embargo on all shipments of munitions and war materials to Japan. The Senate Foreign Affairs Committee took no action before adjournment.]

Lopez May Play StreamlineAnthem

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—The "Star-Spangled Banner" may have a dance orchestra at its 125th birthday party.

Bandleader Vincent Lopez, who wrote a streamlined "singable" version of the anthem which avoids the difficult high notes, said tonight he had received an invitation to play at the anniversary celebration September 14 at Fort McHenry, where battle-bound Francis Scott Key scribbled the lyrics.

Lopez said, however, he would not play his version unless requested.

Flood Washes Out Blockade At Tientsin

Electrified Fence And 'Stripping Sheds' Ruined; Sentries Imperilled at Posts

By the Associated Press

Tientsin, Aug. 20.—Rapidly rising flood waters, increased by steady rain, today temporarily washed out Japan's nine-week blockade of the British and French concessions and brought one of the worst disasters in this region's history.

Floods from the Hai River and other streams poured almost unimpeded across levelled dikes and embankments and disrupted the city's electricity supply, communication system and railroad service.

Beyond Tientsin and its environs, where there is a large Chinese population, heavy loss of life and property damage were feared. The nearby plains in some cases were under ten or more feet of water.

Authorities said they believed the flood crest would reach here in 48 hours. The water level was rising about two inches every hour.

Thousands of refugees, both Chinese and foreigners, were swept before the flood into Tientsin, a city already beset by war conditions and the Japanese blockade of the two concessions.

Forget Duty in Flood

Japanese sentries who, since June 14, sought to restrict movements in and out of the concessions, were too busy to pay much attention to the human flood. They mounted boxes and barrels in an effort to stay above the water level.

"Stripping sheds," where persons entering and leaving the concessions have been examined, were flooded or washed away. A large portion of the Japanese barriers, including the electrified wire entanglements, was submerged or swept away.

The Japanese concession was under three feet of water. Many British concession streets were submerged and crowds of refugees sought dry havens.

U. S. Consul Moves

The flood threatened the residence of United States Consul General John K. Caldwell. He moved to the United States Marine barracks, protected by a sandbag embankment.

The French concession has suffered the least, with hastily thrown up embankments holding stoutly.

The food problem was becoming more acute as supplies were virtually unobtainable and the influx of refugees made the demand greater.

The British consul general declared a state of emergency in the British concession and the municipal council appealed to the lord mayor of London for assistance.

At the International race track outside the foreign areas, 2,000 Chinese were perched in the grandstand and marooned by ever-strengthening currents. They had been without food for hours.

Nazis Threaten Economic Steps Against America

Koenigsburg, Germany, Aug. 20 (INS).—German defensive measures against the "United States' anti-German economic measures" were threatened today by Fritz Landfried, state secretary of the economics ministry.

Speaking at the Koenigsburg Fair, Landfried declared:

"In view of the United States' anti-German economic measures, Germany will be compelled to adopt defensive measures.

"If America now kindly offers us credits for American products at cheap prices on condition Germany is ready to disarm and revise her economic policy, we can only declare that Fuehrer Hitler's Germany is not used to combine the question of her national security with commercial business affairs."

Landfried asserted Germany "learned a lesson from the World War."

"We now have an economic general staff, which we did not have in 1914," he shouted. "We know we cannot win a war militarily if we lose it economically.

"Therefore, we now are armed economically in order to use the full strength of the German nation immediately if we should be forced by a hostile world to do so."

Falling Limb Kills Man on N. Y. Bus

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—A man was killed and two women were injured late today when a heavy branch fell from a tree upon them in a double-deck Fifth avenue bus rolling alongside Central Park between Ninety-third and Ninety-fourth streets.

Stalin Signs Nazi Trade Pact as Hitler Masses 250,000 in Slovakia

German Troops And Guns Line Polish Border; Passes Fortified

By Daniel De Luce,
Associated Press Staff Writer.

Zilina, Slovakia, Aug. 20.—A quarter of a million German troops, with full war equipment, massed today on little Slovakia's 230-mile frontier with Poland.

The greater part was concentrated behind the four main passes leading over the Tatra mountains into Poland.

[Large-scale troop movements in south and southwestern Poland over the week-end were reported today by the London Daily Herald in dispatches from Warsaw, the International News Service said.

[The frontier with Soviet Russia has been almost entirely cleared of Polish troops and these soldiers have been hurried across Poland to man the Moravian-Slovakian-Ruthenian line, facing the Nazi reinforcements pouring in from Germany.—Editor's note.]

Roads were choked with moving troops, artillery and supply trains. There was a steady movement of troops entering the area from Moravia, along the Moravska Ostrova (Maerisch Ostrau)-Cadca highway.

Schools Taken Over

In the occupied areas, schools and town halls were taken over for barracks and base hospitals, clearly marked with large signs. Between villages, munitions depots were established, and there were large supplies of barbed wire and corrugated iron shelter roofs.

All bridges were guarded by sentries with fixed bayonets. Hundreds of laborers were repairing roads. Bridges were reinforced by heavy timbers to permit the passage of heavy trucks and guns.

This correspondent, making a 60-mile automobile trip in the area north of Zilina, counted an average of four German military encampments of various sizes to the mile.

Tents were camouflaged and, near the frontier, gun crews were wheeling their artillery into position, spreading camouflage nets overhead. Field telephones were strung throughout the area.

Slovak Troops Not Seen

Northern Slovakia's dusty roads were whipped into a haze by dozens of motorcycle dispatch riders. Military police guided traffic in the bigger towns and villages.

In 60 miles, this correspondent saw only three Slovak gendarmes, and Slovak troops, if there were any, were completely out of sight.

Although heavy guns, hauled by Diesel tractors, were a frequent sight, there were no tanks. Apparently the steep mountain passes and jagged terrain had been judged unfavorable for large tank operations.

In many villages, soldiers fraternized freely with bewildered Slovak citizens. Giggling Slovak girls held hands with gray-clad infantrymen, while groups of wide-eyed small boys clustered around other laughing soldiers, who amused them with card tricks.

Merchants Are Busy

Zilina was quiet, with the German troops remaining outside the town. Officers have been billeted in the hotels and private homes in Zilina.

Slovak merchants were having a windfall. The area's cigarette supply was exhausted quickly and there was little beer to be had.

Pope Sends Envoy to Urge Peace on Poles

Identity Is Secret; Will Report Back To Vatican Thursday

By the United Press.

Vatican City, Aug. 20.—Vatican prelates reported tonight that Pope Pius XII had dispatched a special envoy to Warsaw to confer with Polish leaders on the possibilities of a peaceful Danzig settlement.

The emissary, whose identity was not revealed, was expected to return to Italy Thursday and report personally to the pontiff.

The reported new effort by the "Pope of Peace" to intervene in the Polish-German quarrel was believed to have resulted from the enthusiasm with which world capitals reacted to his appeal for peace Saturday.

In Berlin the Pope's appeal to European governments to be prudent "in this hour of grave decision" was warmly supported in an officially-inspired statement which contended

Youth Flees Home Rather Than Go Back to Germany

Davenport, Iowa, Aug. 20 (INS).—Fear that he would be returned to his native Germany was blamed today for the flight of Lawrence Lorenz, Chicago youth, from assertedly pro-Nazi parents.

"When I heard my parents talking about a return to Germany, I ran away," he told police. "I like America too well."

He said his father had been employed on a Lake Geneva, Wis., estate, but had lost his job. His parents had then gone to Chicago, and talked of a trip back to their homeland.

The youth said he had fled July 17, and that he believed his parents must have started for Germany by now.

Nations 'Natural Complements,' Says Jubilant Berlin of 2-Year Agreement

By the Associated Press

Moscow, Aug. 20.—Announcement here tonight that Germany and Soviet Russia had signed a long-term trade and credit agreement threw a bombshell in the midst of Russian military staff talks with France and Great Britain.

Under terms of the agreement, announced over the Soviet radio, Germany will grant Russia a credit of 200,000,000 marks (about $80,000,000) for a period of seven years at 5 per cent interest for purchases of German goods in the next two years.

It also provides for the sale by the U. S. S. R. to Germany within two years of goods to the amount of 180,000,000 marks ($72,000,000).

[The agreement, the United Press said, contains no political clauses in its published form and both German and Soviet official quarters have denied that political considerations entered into the talks.—Editor's note.]

Inroads Into U. S. Trade Likely

Observers were cautious in speculation on consequences of the agreement to the proposed British-French-Soviet mutual assistance pact, but economists said it was "only a natural continuation of the policies of the two countries" who have had previous trade agreements. However, it is the first big foreign loan granted to Russia in several years.

It was believed Russia would purchase armaments and machinery of Germany, while Germany would take Soviet wheat, timber, iron ore and petroleum.

It was expected the deal would make some inroads into American trade with the Soviet.

Talks Expected to Resume

Observers pointed out that the trade negotiations began long before the British-French staff talks with Russia were announced. Premier Molotoff's speech May 31 emphasized that Russia's relations with Britain and France would have no damaging effect on trade relations with Germany and Italy.

It was expected the staff talks would be resumed here tomorrow, after the third successive day of inactivity. Failure of the representatives of the three nations to meet had led to reports of a new obstacle in the negotiations.

Sources close to the visitors said they merely wanted to rest after an arduous week. However, they declined to discuss a Tass communique, issued yesterday, stating "real discord" exists presumably over the position of Finland and the Baltic states in the event of war.

Nazis Hail Treaty

Berlin, Aug. 20 (AP).—The German-Soviet trade and credit treaty opens Russia's rich natural resources to the Nazis at a time of serious international tension and increasing war talk.

Nazis undoubtedly will import on a much larger scale than ever before vital Russian raw materials, including manganese and other ores, lumber, gasoline and oil, sulphur and chemicals.

Russia will use the German credits to buy machinery for making needed tools and spare parts.

Germans hail the treaty as the signal for a "sharp upward turn" in trade relations. Politically opposed, the two countries in recent years have permitted their trade volume gradually to slip until last year it was only 100,000,000 marks ($40,000,000).

"Natural Complement"

Nazi spokesmen were confident of an immediate pickup in commerce because they said that Germany, the industrial state, and Soviet Russia, a land of inexhaustible raw materials, "complement one another economically in a most natural manner."

It may be assured, they said, that Germany's capacity to absorb Rus-

Pay-as-You-Enter (and Leave) System Expanded by New York

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 20.—Without benefit of bankers, the motoring "side show" aspect of Metropolitan New York became more pronounced today as 10-cent toll booths were installed on another major gateway to the city.

With few exceptions, it now costs motorists anywhere from the circus speller's "thin dime" to a whole dollar to visit O. Henry's Bagdad-on-the-Subway—or, for that matter, to get out.

The new toll system, opening tomorrow, will nick motorists on the Hutchinson River Parkway in Westchester County, one of the main northern approaches to the city, with a series of three dime-a-car stations at Scarsdale, N. Y.

Officials estimate the revenues would exceed $50,000 a month.

Amid the fast-dwindling number of free entrances and exits—notably the bumpy, traffic-clogged old Boston Post Road—the tens of thousands of automobile tourists and the larger number of daily motor car commuters to New York have fought a losing battle against the new toll.

The Automobile Club of New York struggled until the last minute for a legal stay against the tax, but the request was denied yesterday.

Virtually blockaded by toll booths, Manhattan motorists may leave the city only by devious toll-beating routes that may take them miles off the main highways or by paying tolls.

The list of toll places includes: George Washington Bridge, 50 cents; Bear Mountain Bridge to West Point, 90 cents and up, according to number of passengers;

Wife, Given Up as Lost in Fall From Steamer, Saves Herself

The laconic telephone message, "I'm safe . . . home in an hour," from the bride of a year he believed drowned, ended five hours' anguish for Venko Kotzeff, Bulgarian Legation employe, yesterday. Mrs. Kotzeff was given up for lost after falling overboard from the S. S. Potomac on a "moonlight cruise" at 2:40 a. m. yesterday.

Kotzeff said his wife, Virginia, 27, lost her footing on the lower deck of the Potomac Line paddle-wheeler and tumbled over the guard rail a half mile above Fort Washington as they walked along the deck with another couple.

Frantic at his wife's plunge, Kotzeff notified boat officers, but the vessel drifted some distance downstream before it could be halted, he said.

Two boats put overside and spotlights were turned on the water. A half hour's search failed to locate the missing woman.

At home at the Bulgarian Legation, 2881 Woodland drive northwest, today, Mrs. Kotzeff said that, hampered by her clothing, she was in the chilly water for more than an hour before she was able to reach the Maryland shore, about 200 yards distant.

Exhausted after her struggle, Mrs. Kotzeff said, she clung for some time to the rushes before she was able to muster sufficient strength to climb the bank.

She trudged more than 2 miles to a farmhouse, where she telephoned Kotzeff. A passing truck drove her to Washington. She arrived at 8 a. m.

Over the Coffee

By Harlan Miller

Washington is enjoying a sort of literary renaissance this summer, and Hollywood is partly to blame. The bright prospects of Frank Capra's movie about the Capital, called "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," is goading other studios to plunge into a "Washington" cycle of movies.

Harlan Miller

* * *

So feverish is the scramble that every recent book about the Capital is being scrutinized for possible plot ideas. One studio has telephoned for a look at Kenneth Crawford's forthcoming book on the Washington lobbyists. Another is reported dickering for Marquis Childs' novel, "Washington Calling."

* * * * *

Moreover, Secretary "Honest Hal" Ickes' book on the American newspapers is due in the early autumn, and no doubt it could form the basis for a movie thriller. It would occasion no surprise in Washington if the hero of Mr. Ickes' book turns out to be no newspaperman at all, but Secretary Ickes himself.

"—Hollywood discovers Washington"

Paul McNutt's gentlemen from Indiana offered Marquis James, the Pulitzer prize biographer (Andrew Jackson) a cool $40,000 to write a biography of the silvery contender for the 1940 campaign. James declined; he is writing instead a biography of A. I. duPont.

The Indianans are puzzled by his literary whimsy, just throwing money away, plus a chance to get solid with the Man of Destiny.

* * * *

Incidentally, the two eminent authors whose names are so often confused, Marquis James and Marquis Childs ("Sweden, the Middle Way;" "This Is Democracy"), met the other day for the first time at Donald Richberg's villa at Rehoboth Beach. They exchanged tales of being blamed for each other's books.

Both have written books which were favorites at the White House.

* * * *

It was Marquis James who helped Mrs. Woodrow Wilson with her memoirs; and since he spends little time in Washington, while Marquis Childs lives here, it's Childs who's jumped on by old friends of the war President who didn't like Edith Wilson's revelations.

"—if Garner reads a book"

Before Vice President Garner left for Texas he told Childs that he'd read his last book if Childs would send him a copy. Some Democrats are a little worried by the prospect of Garner reading a book. It hasn't happened often, and is part of the Capital's literary renaissance.

* * * *

Marquis James' life is further complicated by the fact that he's often mistaken for Will James, the cowboy author, and is almost forced to sing cowboy songs. So far no one has mistaken him for Henry James. Maybe Mr. James should also send the Vice President a book.

* * * *

Oddly enough, the Washington scene seems to be as baffling to novelists and short story writers as Hollywood itself. No topnotch novel has ever been written about Hollywood, in spite of the scads of authors who spend lucrative months of idleness out there. There's too much going on, the scene is too kinetic and dumfounding.

* * * *

Similarly, no topnotch novel has ever been written about Washington, though quite a few have been written which make fascinating reading. I have asked several publishers and literary critics what, in their opinion, is the best novel ever written about Washington, and they say it's a period piece called "Democracy," written by the brooding Henry Adams in the 1870's.

* * * *

Almost any Washington correspondent could, of course, write a best-seller novel about Washington—if he had the time.

Incidentally, another significant literary development here is that George Backer, the new pro-Roosevelt publisher of the New York Post, has directed his Washington office to establish a Post bureau here so his newspaper can write its own dispatches about the Washington scene. The report is that he wants four or five topnotch men to cover the Capital for his liberal newspaper.

Business Aid Speeds New Tax Program

Special Dispatch to The Post

The immediate response to the invitation by John W. Hanes, Acting Secretary of the Treasury, to leaders of commerce, industry, banking, agriculture and labor to submit suggestions for the general tax revision program contemplated for next year, it was learned yesterday, has been such that he will be able to get this phase of the study under way early this week.

Although this experiment in making an initial survey of public opinion on tax revision preliminary to the House Ways and Means Committee inquiry set to begin November 1 was not announced until Thursday, a considerable number of positive replies poured into the Treasury over the week-end and more were expected today.

Hanes signed 500 invitations to prominent individuals in the various economic fields affected prior to his departure for a brief week-end and is expected to send out 200 or 300 more in the next day or two.

Under the plan adopted for this tax revision study, the Treasury is undertaking an initial survey of public opinion with a view to laying this data, as well as its own proposals, before the committee at the outset of its work on the new tax program. Heretofore the committee has started such tasks merely by receiving Treasury proposals, depending on later hearings to get the views of interested groups.

Similar hearings will follow the initial Treasury presentations, but will be projected against a more comprehensive background, according to sponsors of the plan. To assemble this added information, Hanes is suggesting to individuals and groups known to be likely to have constructive ideas on the problem that, if interested in having their views placed before the committee, he will arrange, "at any time convenient . . . before November 1, a private hearing before the Treasury staff assigned to compile a record of present public tax opinion."

Treasury officials appeared to be surprised as well as pleased by the extent of the immediate response. Recognizing that this is the peak of the vacation season, they considered the proportion of positive responses exceeded expectations sufficiently to permit the beginning of work on this phase of the program immediately, instead of having to wait until after Labor Day, when the peak of the vacation season normally ends.

Secretary of Commerce Hopkins yesterday announced that reports from 21,217 independent retail stores in all sections of the country reveal an increase in sales of 6.7 per cent in July over the corresponding month in 1938.

The total dollar value of sales in July was $195,753,533 as compared with $183,505,876 in July, 1938. The July value of sales, however, was 12.5 per cent less than that report for June, 1939, due principally to seasonal decline.

Louisiana State Official Kills Self

At the Dallas hearing Shaw told of the order he signed increasing production from wells in the Rodessa oil field of north Louisiana. It was from that production that the East Texas Refining Co., of which Burford is president, allegedly took 480,000 barrels of "hot oil" in November and December of 1936.

Shaw said he had signed the order because it was put before him by Weiss and approved by Mayor Robert S. Maestri, of New Orleans, then conservation commissioner.

Shaw added that he "signed anything they put before me—anything except an order to hang me."

Shaw retained his title as director of the minerals division, although he had not been in his office for two weeks.

Shaw, 64, former Shreveport dentist, was made director of the minerals division in 1929 by Maestri during Huey P. Long's reigning days.

Sergt. John Hartman reported that Mrs. Shaw and a nurse found Shaw lying on the bathroom floor with a .38 caliber revolver nearby. He said Mrs. Shaw told him her husband had been "extremely nervous" and had paced the floor all afternoon.

A previous suicide attracted national attention to the Louisiana political scandals. National Youth Administrator Aubrey Williams ordered an investigation into handling of NYA student aid at Louisiana State University after the suicide August 10 of George Heidelberg, L. S. U. employe who handled the funds at the school.

The Federal grand jury session here was expected to resume tomorrow for a brief meeting, then recess for two weeks. The jurors were scheduled to recess last Friday, but postponed it until tomorrow because Assistant United States Attorney General O. John Rogge was delayed at the Dallas hearing.

The postponement brought insistent reports that new indictments of high State figures could be expected tomorrow. Rogge refused to comment.

Arrival of five new agents from the intelligence unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau and two more postal inspectors during the coming week indicated the Government would lose no time in expanding its inquiries during the jury recess.

Labor Peace Expected in Auto Industry

Union Strife Likely To Be Settled Before '40 Production Starts

By the Associated Press

Detroit, Aug. 20.—Hopes for cessation of interunion disputes in the automobile industry as 1940 model production gets in full swing rested tonight in impending elections to determine bargaining agencies in several large plants.

C. I. O. union leaders, jubilant over their 4-to-1 victory among employes of the Packard Motor Car Co. this week, predicted that "we will carry every plant."

Within the next 30 days or so, production workers in plants of the Chrysler Corporation and the Briggs Manufacturing Co. will indicate in National Labor Relations Board polls their choice among the C. I. O. United Automobile Workers, the U. A. W.-A. F. of L., or no union.

These elections likely will be completed, and their issues settled, before many 1940 automobiles have rolled from the assembly lines.

Leaders of the American Federation of Labor, who readopted the followers of Homer Martin after the U. A. W. split into two unions last spring, professed themselves "in no way discouraged" by the Packard defeat.

N. L. R. B. elections in plants of General Motors Corporation have been petitioned for, but have not yet been ordered.

Assurances against a strike were obtained by the corporation as a four-week walkout of C. I. O. tool, die and maintenance workers was settled recently.

Those treated, were Charles Beal, 19, 445 First street southwest, admitted to the hospital; William Morehead, 18, of 140 M street southwest, admitted; Charles Reynolds, 21, of 723 Delaware avenue southwest, admitted; Wilbur Ward, 19, of 55 C street southwest, released; George Chappele, 19, of 6 E street southeast, admitted; Alonzo Templeman, 20, of 505 South Capitol street, released; John Clark, 19, of 113 D street southwest, released.

Two passengers in a car operated by James Alexander, colored, 19, of 1116 Fifth street northwest, were taken to Casualty Hospital after the car in which they were riding collided with a cement barricade in the 4900 block of Sheriff road. Injured were George Bowens, colored, 25, of 813 New Jersey avenue northwest, and Mary Mathews, colored, 20, of 1533 Eighth street northwest. Doctors reported their condition not serious.

Alexander was charged with driving without a permit and reckless driving.

Emmett S. Mast, 38, a private in the Park Police Department who lives at 20 Calvin street, Cottage City, Md., was taken to Emergency Hospital and treated for leg and neck injuries after an auto he was driving turned over on Route 211, 10 miles south of Warrenton, Va. According to police, Mast swerved his car to avoid collision with another auto.

Also injured in the accident were Mast's wife, Bernice, 38, who suffered lacerations of the body and right side, and their three children, Joan, 9; Beverly, 12, and Emmett, jr., 2, all of whom received minor bruises. They were treated at Fauquier County Hospital.

Three women were hurt in an auto accident at Fairfax Courthouse, Va. They were Margaret Essex, 53, of 1623 Benning road northeast, back and head injuries; Margaret M. Knight, 29, same address, chest injuries; Betty Dellinger, 24, 1209 H street northeast, head and face injuries. The three were treated at Sibley Hospital, the first two being transferred later to Homeopathic Hospital.

David Bialek, 5, of 809 Kennedy street northwest, was struck by an auto at Georgia avenue and Kennedy street. He was treated at Walter Reed Hospital.

Hilda Jackson, 44, colored, 1532 Seventh street northwest, was taken to Casualty Hospital with a concussion and possible internal injuries after an auto mishap at Thirty-fourth street and Benning road northeast.

Safety Points For Pedestrians Given by A.A.A.

Walker Is Traffic's Forgotten Man, Says Automobile Association

The "forgotten man" has been remembered again, this time by the American Automobile Association.

A booklet on "Pedestrian Protection," released by the association here yesterday, declares that the pedestrian is the "forgotten man" of today, and outlines a three-point program to help him to safety.

"City planners and engineers in their preoccupation with designing for, directing and controlling motor vehicles, have not made adequate companion improvements for the man on foot," the booklet reads. "Even traffic policemen on duty are more concerned with moving motor vehicles through the streets than with aiding the larger body of pedestrians in crossing safely from corner to corner."

The A. A. A's program, the result of a three-year study of the cause and cure of pedestrian accidents, includes these points:

Improvement of street facilities.

Selective enforcement against traffic violations most prolific in causing pedestrian accidents.

"Pedestrian control with penalties for violation, should be attempted only after a long-range educational program," the report states. "However, opinion surveys indicate the public is ready in many places for control over the pedestrian, similar to that exercised over motorists."

In line with Washington's frown on mid-block crossings, the report recommends that "full use should be made of barriers to protect pedestrians from crossing in midblock; such crossings cause more deaths than any other pedestrian action."

A warning for pedestrians is sounded in the finding that "in city traffic, cars on the average move eight times as fast as a person on foot; this fact must be taken into consideration by walkers in deciding whether it is safe to cross."

Another major finding was that "most pedestrians killed are elderly people who have never driven a car and consequently are not aware of the problems of the driver."

Another recommendation spotlighted in the report is that "right turns should not be permitted on the red traffic signal except where there is little or no pedestrian traffic or where other conditions make permission of turns on red imperative."

The curve of pedestrian accidents has been going sharply upward, while the course of non-pedestrian accidents has been substantially lowered, the report points out.

Violence Grows On Eve of Milk Strike Parley

13 Hurt in Clash As New York City's Supply Is Halved

By the Associated Press

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 20.—Violence spread and milk flowed freely in up-State ditches today on the eve of peace negotiations in a six-day-old strike of dairymen that has halved the daily milk supply of New York City's millions.

As representatives of all factions prepared to attend a conference called by Mayor LaGuardia in New York City, the Metropolis' milk shortage was estimated by J. O. Eastlack, secretary of the Metropolitan Milk Distributors Bargaining Agency, at 2,200,000 quarts—approximately one-half the normal supply.

Reports of clashes between police and pickets were frequent while hundreds of cans of milk were dumped throughout the milk shed from the St. Lawrence River to southern Catskill Mountain counties as neighbor prevented neighbor from marketing.

A dozen pickets received head injuries and a deputy sheriff was knocked unconscious in a fight in St. Lawrence County.

Greased rails stalled a New York Central train which sought to pick up milk at a Hammond (N. Y.) siding. Kerosene was used in several sections to spoil milk under transport.

Simultaneously, a spokesman at headquarters of the striking Dairy Farmers Union here reported the strike "going swell" and said the market "is getting tighter and tighter."

The union is demanding chiefly a uniform, base price of at least $2.35 a hundredweight for all milk. A State-Federal marketing order sets a base price of $2.25 for milk used as fluid, but the "blended" return to dairymen for August milk of all uses is only $1.50.

The Congress of Industrial Organizations is giving active aid to the strikers, but William Gandall, C. I. O. State representative, denied it was sending any pickets up-State.

He termed reports of out-of-State pickets imported by the C. I. O. "a scare story and propaganda" of the Dairymen's League, a nonstriking organization.

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—Much of the city's population clamored in vain for milk today as a strike of dairy farmers up-State halved the normal daily supply of 4,400,000 quarts.

The city was short 2,200,000 quarts today and 1,960,000 Saturday. The 3,200,000 quarts normally used for drinking had shrunk to about 2,000,000, while production of ice cream, butter and other milk products was cut considerably.

Archie Wright, chairman of the Dairy Farmers Union, asserted, however, that the strike was "just beginnig to tighten up in good shape."

Wright estimated that 60 per cent of the city's milk had been withheld and he predicted the strike would be intensified if the union's terms are not yet met.

Both strikers and distributors assured deliveries to hospitals.

New York Adds Dime Toll to List

Holland and Lincoln tunnels to New Jersey, 50 cents; Henry Hudson highway, 10 cents; Merritt Parkway, into Connecticut, 10 cents; Hudson River ferries, 25 to 40 cents, and the Triborough Bridge to Long Island, 25 cents.

The spreading network of toll booths has brought concern to organized motorists in other States; Thomas P. Henry, president of the American Automobile Association, said yesterday in Washington that a determined fight would be made against further attempts by States or other government units to impose taxes on existing free highways.

Good Housekeeping Owners Defy FTC on Ad 'Guaranties'

Hearst Magazines Contest Ruling To Cease and Desist; Commission Calls Practice Unfair Competition

Charging that the Federal Trade Commission was influenced by "certain subversive elements," Hearst Magazines, Inc., in an unusual move, yesterday refused to sign a commission stipulation charging Good Housekeeping magazine with making false claims and misleading guarantees concerning products advertised in its pages.

Richard E. Berlin, president of Hearst publishing firm, said in New York he believed the commission charges were part of a campaign "to destroy the freedom of the American press by first destroying its principal source of revenue. We believe this subversive movement must now be publicly exposed."

The commission gave the corporation 20 days to file a written answer to its charges and directed it to show cause at a hearing September 22 why an order should not be entered requiring it to "cease and desist from violations of the law charged in the complaint."

Small Type, Says Complaint

The complaint said the statement on page 6 was printed "in much smaller type" as follows:

"This is your guaranty. If you purchase any product advertised in this issue of Good Housekeeping within one year from its date and find the product unsatisfactory, we will carefully investigate your complaint, and if the product is defective, it will be replaced or your money refunded."

These guarantees, the complaint held, were so printed as to "import and imply" that Good Housekeeping "Guarantees all products advertised in its pages to be as advertised and that they perform as advertised" when "in truth and in fact, the so-called 'guaranty' is actually limited by its terms to a mere warranty of the physical construction or chemical composition of the product itself, with an agreement to replace or refund if, after complaint, Good Housekeeping deems such product 'defective.'"

In reply to the charges, Berlin said: "In no single case, either in the complaint or during the negotiations (over signing a stipulation), was the commission able to show that Good Housekeeping had failed to carry out its guaranty which has been in existence for over 30 years." He added:

"There will be no change in our present advertising policies."

Few Advisers Named

Decision of Hearst Magazines to refuse to sign a stipulation admitting the F. T. C. allegations was given prominence by the fact that few advertisers contest commission charges, when challenged. The corporation was represented as feeling that companies too often sign damaging admissions to avoid public embarrassment, legal expense, or inconvenience. The effect, it was said, has been to eliminate all but the most innocuous of advertising appeals.

The complaint further contended that the guaranty issued by the magazine was not in every case backed by "a scientific test, but frequently was based on a general investigation by a staff member."

The commission, in particular, criticized Good Housekeeping "seals of approval" as misleading and deceiving "a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous belief" that all articles bearing such seals were scientifically tested. It held that these products were often merely recommended after a general investigation by a staff member.

Berlin's statement was vigorous in its denial. ". . . we contend" it said, "that the charges are untrue and have no basis in fact. . . . Every effort has been made by the magazine to meet the wishes of the commission without a misstatement of fact. . . . We have at all times desired to work with the commission and its legal department, but we found it impossible to sign what we believe is an untruthful and, possibly, damaging statement.

"In due time a hearing will be held by the commission and Good Housekeeping will have an opportunity to defend itself publicly. Later, it may be necessary to continue action in the courts. In either event, Good Housekeeping gladly accepts this opportunity to defend advertising and business in general and to bring the whole matter into the open."

Party Politics Banned by Dies From Inquiry

Rebuffs Thomas Charge New Deal Is Linked To Communist Ideas

By International News Service

Partisan politics yesterday was barred from the inquiry by the House Committee Investigating un-American Activities by Chairman Dies (Democrat), of Texas.

The Texan made this plain in commenting on a statement by Republican Committeeman Thomas, of New Jersey, who asserted evidence had been obtained linking the New Deal with communism.

"I don't want to get into any controversy with Representative Thomas," Dies said, "but it is generally agreed in the committee that we should not engage in partisan politics.

"We will investigate all major subversive movements in this country. Our purpose is to drag these un-American forces into the light of day, where the people may see them and understand what they are doing, but it won't be done in a partisan way.

"I have no doubt the American people will take care of subversive propaganda when it is exposed. Much of it is parading under false colors."

As the committee prepared to resume hearings today on Nazi propaganda, with a "well-known educator" telling of attempts to spread Nazism in American schools and colleges, Thomas' blast, made public at Lake Mohawk, N. J., plainly irked Democratic committeemen.

Dies refused to divulge the evidence on communism gathered by committee investigators and said no member of the committee was authorized to do so.

Thomas was quoted as saying the hearings to date have been just a "sideshow" to "startling revelations." The committee will not only show a close tie-up in communism between the United States and Soviet Russia, but also will reveal a "strong link" between communism and the "New Deal," according to Thomas.

There are many propagandists in the United States who are receiving their inspiration from foreign countries and should be arrested and punished for not registering with the State Department, he says.

Cancer Victim Arrives for 'Frozen Sleep'

5-Day Hibernation In Bed of Chipped Ice May Halt Growth

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 20.—An Iowa farmer arrived in Philadelphia today to assume the winter-time role of a bear in a cave as a "hopeful experiment" in science's new cancer treatment.

The farmer, Max Harlan, 42, of Old Stockport, Iowa, is suffering from cancer of the pancreas.

Reclining in a wheel chair he reached Philadelphia on a morning train and was taken at once to Temple University Hospital.

There he has volunteered to undergo the treatment developed by Dr. Temple Fay and Dr. Lawrence W. Smith.

Since they informed a surprised medical world two months ago they had relieved certain types of cancer by a period of suspended animation induced by chipped ice packed closely around the bodies of human subjects the treatment has become popularly known as "frozen sleep."

Hospital attendants said the Iowa farmer would undergo a series of tests tomorrow. If they show he is a qualified subject the ice treatment will begin Tuesday.

That, the experimenters hope, will show up growth of the cancer cells that have carried Harlan toward death's door.

The treatment normally continues for five days.

Through that length of time, the patient lies in a dreamless sleep—much like the winter hibernation of animals. The temperature drops from the normal of 98.6 to around 90, sometimes as low as 85. Breathing slackens. The heart slows down. No food is required.

The condition of "suspended animation" is brought about with cracked ice packed closely about the naked body. A mild anesthetic prevents the usual pain of freezing.

A warm drink awakens the patient and restores normal bodily functions at the end of the five days.

Harlan's wife and Dr. F. L. Nelson, of Ottumwa, Iowa, his physician, accompanied him. It was Dr. Nelson who induced Harlan to volunteer for the experiment.

Dr. Fay was absent from the city tonight and not available for comment, but his coworker, Dr. Smith, declared:

Garibaldi-Columbia Lodge of Sons of Italy Holds Outing

Comment on international affairs—what there was of it—had to be wedged between "Neapolitan Serenade" and Italian style picnic fare at the outing of the Garibaldi-Columbia Lodge of Washington, Order of the Sons of Italy, yesterday at Marshall Hall.

By boat and auto, nearly 1,000 lodge members and their families came to the day-long celebration.

They sang, danced, played games, entered races and contests.

The tempo was set by a little orchestra, playing lilting native music. Three shoemakers and a tailor played the guitar, banjo, clarinet and accordion—prodding their fingers to forget the daily tools of their trade for an afternoon.

"Here in this crowd are doctors, lawyes, Government employes, iron workers, barbers, delicatessen owners, tailors, "declared Alfonso Tana, of 2511 Woodley avenue, himself a barber who cuts the hair of many an official in Washington.

"My brother in the Navy at a base in southern Italy says everything is calm in a letter yesterday," said Tana.

"And my brother-in-law said in a letter yesterday that he is going to stay in Albania, because he likes conditions there," countered M. Ferrari, 1310 I street northeast. "He volunteered to go to Albania six months ago, and now that he has permission to go home he turned it down."

In the crowd were Enrico Torino, president of the Washington organization of the Italian World War Veterans; Mrs. Margaret Ricciardelli, president of the Ladies Auxiliary of that organization, and eight representatives from Baltimore of the Regina Elena Auxiliary of the Order of the Sons of Italy.

L. H. Pasqualicchio is head of the Garibaldi-Columbia Lodge, and Dr. Eugene Forcione served as chairman of the outing.

Firefighters Gain Edge on Pacific Forest Blazes

San Francisco, Aug. 20 (AP).—Firefighters appeared to be gaining control today on some fronts of the many fires crackling through forests and brush lands from central California to British Columbia.

At least 600 people were homeless. One town lay in ashes. Hundreds of farm buildings had been damaged or destroyed. Standing and cut timber losses mounted so rapidly there was no estimate of the total.

British Columbia ordered closure of forests on Vancouver Island and the lower mainland. Oregon and Washington forest officials said logging operations might be ordered stopped today.

In southern Oregon the little town of Pine Ridge was wiped out last night. Charles Coons, office manager of the lumber mill, where the fire started, said the loss was about $2,000,000. He blamed incendiarists.

DuPont Proposes Feeder Air Lines To Serve Towns

Richard C. duPont, aviation expert, said yesterday he had recommended to officials of the Postoffice Department and Civil Aeronautics Authority the development of a nation-wide system of "feeder lines" to give hundreds of the smaller cities direct connection with the big cross-country airlines.

The Wilmington (Del.) president of an aviation concern said, "The ideal feeder system which has been suggested by experience with the present pick-up operations would be built around the country's principal air terminals, from which the feeder routes would radiate in different directions in comparatively straight lines for distances up to 250 miles. Although not necessary, it would be an advantage if these routes could make a trunk line connection at each end. Stations would be 10 to 25 miles apart."

An air feeder system, duPont said, "would enable millions of people now deprived of air transportation to have its advantages without an extravagant expenditure of public funds."

Joan Fontaine, Brian Aherne Wed

Del Monte, Calif., Aug. 20 (AP).—Brian Aherne, British stage star, and Joan Fontaine, Hollywood film actress, were married today.

The ceremony was performed in St. John's Chapel by the Rev. Theodore Bell, Episcopalian minister.

Miss Fontaine was attended by her sister, Actress Olivia de Havilland.

Neither Miss Fontaine nor Aherne had been married previously. In applying for the license, they gave their ages as 21 and 37.

D. C. Cinderella Squired by Star on Hollywood Visit

Special Dispatch to The Post

Hollywood, Aug. 20.—Thirteen-year-old Lyola Colburn, of Washington, learned today what it was to enjoy the life of a screen star. With 15 other orphans from all over the Nation she was guest of Linda Ware, 14, latest of fildom's child singing stars and herself an orphan.

Lyola, from St. Vincent's School and Home, Fourth and Channing streets northeast, Washington, was chosen for the three-day visit as one of the "most deserving orphans" of the Capital. The visiting children were greeted as they got off the train by Hollywood's outstanding players and Fred MacMurray became the escort for Lyola. He will take her around the film capital and escort her to the premiere of Linda Ware's "The Star Maker."

Nudists Decree Loin Cloths for Men and Women

Paris, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—The sylvan isle of Levant, off the French Riviera coast, today proclaimed itself the world capital of morally correct nudism and issued a fashion decree permitting devotees to strip as far as they like, so long as they wear a "minimum slip," a cotton loin cloth.

Drs. Andree and Gaston Durville, who founded the sun cult in 1932, said that, unlike many other cults of nakedness, the habitues of the isle are more interested in sun than sex.

The colony is a thriving community entirely self-supporting. Its sun-worshiping inhabitants have built roads, hotels, restaurants, bakeries, stores, private houses, a cinema, a clinic and a tailor shop.

Important from the viewpoint of national defense, part of the island has been taken over by the French navy, but sailors are kept at a good distance.

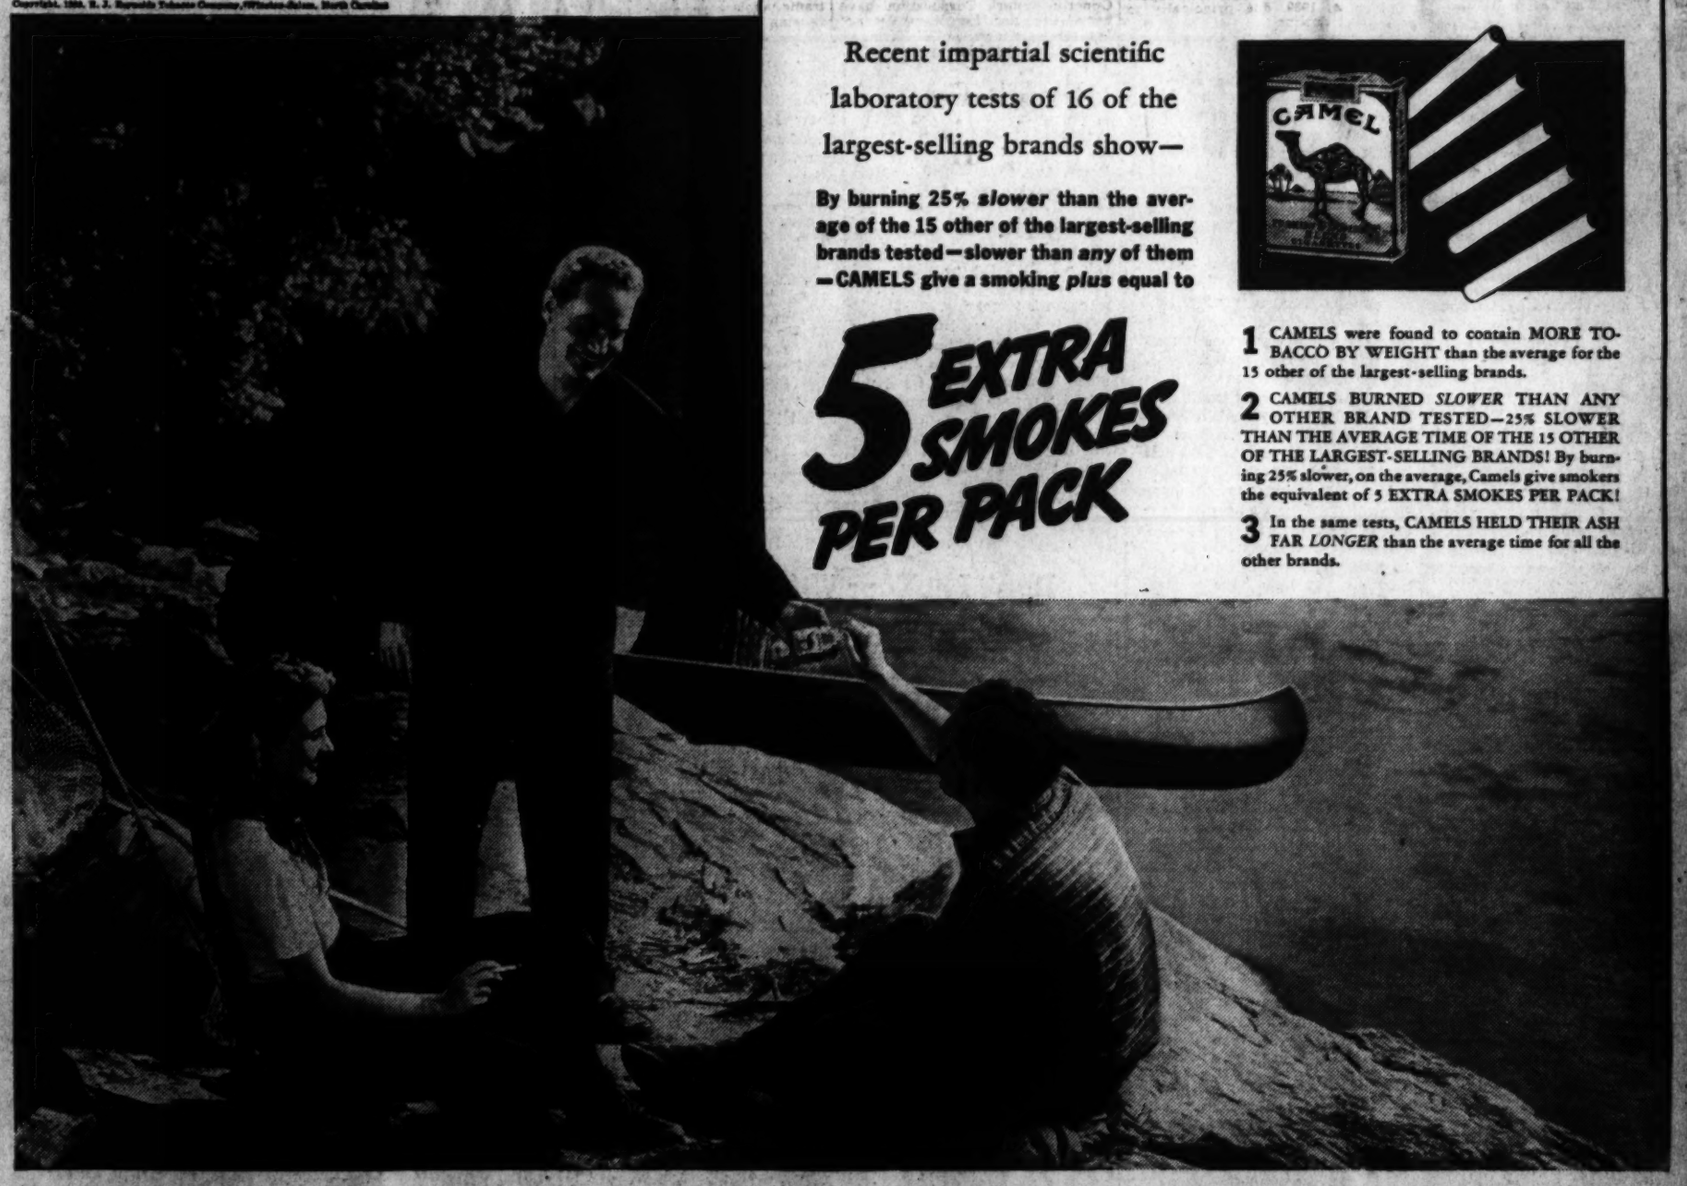
"WHEN YOU LIKE A CIGARETTE THE WAY I LIKE CAMELS —IT'S MIGHTY NICE TO GET MORE PUFFS PER PACK"

—says Owen Harding, Veteran Maine Guide



Copyright, 1939, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina

Recent impartial scientific laboratory tests of 16 of the largest-selling brands show—

By burning 25% slower than the average of the 15 other of the largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them—CAMELS give a smoking plus equal to

5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK

1 CAMELS were found to contain MORE TOBACCO BY WEIGHT than the average for the 15 other of the largest-selling brands.

2 CAMELS BURNED SLOWER THAN ANY OTHER BRAND TESTED—25% SLOWER THAN THE AVERAGE TIME OF THE 15 OTHER OF THE LARGEST-SELLING BRANDS! By burning 25% slower, on the average, Camels give smokers the equivalent of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

3 In the same tests, CAMELS HELD THEIR ASH FAR LONGER than the average time for all the other brands.

OWEN HARDING, who knows the woods, streams, and portages of his native Maine country like a book, also proves a good guide on cigarette quality, as he shares his favorite brand with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Stanford, from down in New York City. "Camels are a longer-burning cigarette," Owen says, "and that means more smokin' for my money. It means, too, that Camels taste cooler...milder. Puff for puff, Camels put more pleasure in smoking and a big extra measure of it."

Observe the way your cigarette burns. Recent impartial laboratory findings confirm the experience of Camel smokers. Camels are known to burn longer, delivering steadily to smokers more pleasure per puff and more puffs per pack. And all the while you get the mild, ripe goodness of finer, more expensive tobaccos, drawn from the largest treasure of choice tobaccos ever gathered in one place. Camels are the quality cigarette every smoker can afford.

Penny for penny your best cigarette buy—

British Leaders Halt Vacations To Study Crisis

Ministers to Meet Tuesday; Critical Week Is Anticipated

By the Associated Press

London, Aug. 20.—Prime Minister Chamberlain and Great Britain's key ministers interrupted their vacations today for a crucial meeting to consider the international situation.

The prime minister, who had been fishing in Scotland since Parliament recessed two weeks ago, had been expected to leave for London tomorrow night, but he left this afternoon instead.

War Secretary Leslie Hore-Belisha cut short his vacation on the French Riviera.

Press Fears Critical Week

Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, who returned unexpectedly yesterday, went back to his home in Yorkshire this morning, but only to spend the day.

These developments came as the British press said the coming week may be the "most critical since the World War."

The ministers will meet Tuesday. They will consider a report of European developments during the past two weeks and the rapidly deteriorating situation in the Far East.

The fact that Chamberlain advanced his retrun by 24 hours was regarded as significant, but it was not mentioned in a communique issued at 10 Downing street.

Intervention Warning Given

[Tuesday's meeting, in effect, will be a virtual cabinet meeting, International News Service said. In addition to Chamberlain, Halifax and Hore-Belisha, there will be Sir Samuel Hoare, home secretary; Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer; Earl Stanhope, first lord of the admiralty, and Sir Kingsly Wood, air secretary.

[It is expected in informed quarters that the meeting will discuss issuance of a public statement repeating what has already been told Berlin—that is, that Britain and France are willing to support any peace proposal devoid of threats or violence, but that they also are prepared to intervene if Poland is attacked.

[The United Press said the Ministers were expected also to consider additional defense measures, including calling up of fleet reserves in addition to the 12,000 called up in July, when the 133 ships of the reserve fleet were mobilized.

[Britain now has about 700,000 soldiers under arms, and both the home and reserve fleets in maneuvers in the North Sea.—Editor's note.]

The seriousness with which the government viewed the situation was indicated by the fact that Halifax spent Saturday afternoon at the foreign office. Ordinarily cabinet ministers are not at their offices from Friday to Monday.

The press reflected a changed tone.

The Sunday Express, which for several weeks had been declaring "there will be no war this year," made no mention of this today.

Times Urges Negotiation

The conservative Sunday Observer headed its main diplomatic story "A Critical Week Ahead."

The Sunday Pictorial said "This week may well be the most critical since the World War."

The Sunday Times warned that "any attempt to repeat at another victim's expense what has been done this year by Germany at Czecho-Slovakia's or by Italy at Albania's will bring the Union Jack into conflict."

It added, however, that if "Germany could return to spheres where negotiation is possible, could substitute calm discussions for violence and threats, she would not find her way blocked by London."

The treaty was cited as an "example that Germany as a consequence of its trade policy pursues as intensive an economic co-operation as possible with any other state ready to do so."

[The spectacular change in Germany's attitude toward the Soviet Union in recent months, eliminating nearly all the anti-Bolshevik tirades which used to be fixtures in the German scene, makes this agreement a logical step from the German point of view, according to The Post's special correspondent. There are many Germans who see in it a direct attempt to "appease" at least one of Germany's potential enemies.

"Appeasement" Doubted

[That the Soviet Union will regard it as "appeasement" is extremely doubtful. The Soviet Ambassador to Germany, Alexei Merekalov, who left Berlin last April, has not yet returned to his post, although he is reported to be alive and well in Moscow.

[Some Germans who remember the 1935 credit agreement with the Soviet Union—which ushered in the most unfriendly period of political relations—are not optimistic about the new credits as a political maneuver. Some suspect that the Russians may have desired this agreement as an additional lever with which to force England into a full-fledged alliance against German aggression.—Editor's note.]

Nazi Treaty With South Africa

Berlin, Aug. 20 (AP).—Germany will receive large quantities of raw materials from South Africa as a result of a barter agreement concluded at Pretoria yesterday, business circles here said today.

It was expected that wool valued at $17,316,000 would be taken by Germany, along with large amounts of whale oil, ores and leather.

Payment will be in German manufactured products.

Engineer Sells Yacht, His Home for 3 Years; Crew of 2 Children to Go Off to College

Robert B. Kellogg, chief engineer for the Potomac Electric Power Co. and a former Navy officer, will quit his home on the water at the end of the year and move his family ashore. Kellogg, who with his wife and two children called their yacht home, has sold the big 150-foot yacht

After almost three years of doing what the rest of the world dreams about but never accomplishes, Robert B. Kellogg has sold his 150-foot yacht, Tech, and will move back to shore.

Kellogg, a former naval officer and now chief engineer for the Potomac Electric Power Co., has lived aboard the Tech since 1936, with his wife and two children. Most of the time it was docked at the Wilson Line Pier, a mile from his job at Buzzards Point, and a street-car ride from his children's classes at Technical High School.

He will leave the craft, built originally for the late Senator T. Coleman du Pont, at the end of the year, because he has "lost his sailors." His son, Robert, who is 17, goes to Massachusetts Institute of Technology this fall, and Barbara, 15, goes to Michigan State University.

The engineer explained that he sold his home in Bel Haven, Va., and moved his family to the yacht for economy. There, with ample space on deck and below—large living and dining rooms, and adequate galley and a wealth of private cabins—his children did their studying. Mrs. Kellogg plied the trade of housewife—or yachtwife—and the children learned to "hand and reef and steer," lay a course, figure magnetic variations, and take down and put together the engines.

"I hate like sin giving it up," Kellogg said yesterday. "Mrs. Kelhouses, so we may build a log cabin on some high piece of land and set up housekeeping in a two and one-half room shack.

"This is just the right kind of a yacht, if it had the right engines, for a trip to the South Seas. A friendly crew of people aboard, just pack and sail off . . ." Kellogg gazed wistfully at the clipper lines of the craft, distastefully at the shoreline near the Washington Gas Light Co.'s west-end plant, where the Tech is docked, and sighed.

He declined to reveal the purchaser.

Pope Sends Peace Envoy to Poland

that the Pope had, in effect, recognized the justice of Fuehrer Hitler's demands against Poland and that he had pleaded for "just that peace most longed for by the German people and their leaders."

Pope Pius conferred Friday with Casimir Papee, Polish Ambassador to the Holy See, who was understood to have given him a detailed account of Poland's attitude toward Hitler's claims.

There was nothing official to indicate that the Italian government was directly involved in the Vatican's peace efforts, although it is a matter of record that Premier Mussolini regards the Danzig question as "not worth war."

Paris and London were reported looking to Mussolini as holding the key to a compromise.

Rome Sees Decision Near

Rome, Aug. 20 (AP).—Authoritative Italians predicted today the tension over Danzig would reach a climax within a few days with war the alternative to Germany's acquisition of the Free City.

The fascist newspapers, by government inspiration, urged the Warsaw government to accept Fuehrer Hitler's plan of last April.

This plan calls for return of Danzig, a German highway and railroad across the Polish Corridor, a free zone for Polish shipping at Danzig, and German guarantee of Poland's frontiers for 25 years.

Italians recognized the difficulty of winning Poland to such a plan, which was rejected four months ago. As "real friends" of Poland, however, they advised her to think it over.

With the situation increasingly acute, this week was expected to be one of considerable diplomatic activity in Rome.

Count Csaky, Hungarian foreign minister, is expected to return tomorrow to resume conversations with Mussolini and Foreign Minister Ciano, who returned tonight to Rome by airplane from Albania.

Ciano immediately devoted his attention to the international situation. He had cut short his Albanian tour by at least one day.

He was understood to have conferred with Bernando Attolico, Italian ambassador to Germany, who arrived from Berlin this morning, presumably with latest information on Germany's attitude.

Foreign circles conjectured that Germany and Italy hope to make Csaky the go-between for direct negotiations between Warsaw and Berlin. Hungary has been friendly with Poland and with the axis powers, particularly Italy.

Virginio Gayda, who is close to the government, wrote in La Voce d'Italia that "the time is near for resolution in the open political conflict between Germany and Poland."

"It is evident that the present state of tension created around the case of Danzig and the Corridor can no longer last," Gayda said. "It will have to be settled, one way or another, within a few days."

The choice, he said, was up to Poland, which "still has several days—not too many—to consider."

Hungarians Stress Neutrality

Budapest, Aug. 20 (AP).—The Hungarian press still refrained from direct comment on Foreign Minister Csaky's talks with German and Italian leaders today, but one political weekly reprinted a foreign dispatch declaring "German pressure on Hungary is still increasing."

While foreign reports that Germany has sought Hungary's military aid against Poland were indignantly denied, the newspapers stressed that Hungarians are determined to remain neutral if German demands on Poland bring war.

Danzig's 'Hour Approaches,' Forster Proclaims to 5,000

'When It Comes, We Will Win,' Nazi Leader Predicts in Speaking for Those Who Wish to Return to Germany

By the Associated Press

Danzig, Aug. 20.—Nazi District Leader Albert Forster proclaimed today before a crowd of 5,000 that "the hour approaches" for solution of the Danzig problem. He predicted victory for Danzigers who wish the Free City rejoined to Germany.

"The hour approaches now," he told a party rally in suburban Langfuhr. "When it comes we will win."

Approximately 3,000 members of various uniformed formations—some carrying rifles—and some 2,000 civilians stood under a hot sun listening to the district leader.

"We stand together in this serious hour and our soldiers also stand together," Forster said. He told of the "solution of the Sudeten problem" and the absorption of Czecho-Slovakia "without the firing of one shot."

"Now," he said, "the problems are the Corridor and Danzig. These problems the Fuehrer will also solve."

He said the Poles had indulged in "unashamed insolence" in rejecting Hitler's proposals for solving the Danzig problem.

Forster said "the situation is tense," but "the solution must come. The present conditions cannot and must not continue.

"Every citizen must know that in the life of nations there are problems which must be solved. Such a problem is the Danzig problem. The hour approaches, my comrades."

Forster will speak again Monday, when he opens a five-day meeting at nearby Zoppot of Danzig and German legal experts who will discuss the legal phases of the Danzig dispute and "other eastern European problems" and probably draft a legal justification for Danzig's reincorporation into the Reich.

Attending will be Ernst Bohle, chief of the Nazi department for Germans abroad; Phillip Bouhler, chief of Hitler's Chancellory staff, and Dr. Arthur von Seyss-Inquart, the man who prepared the way for Germany's absorption of Austria.

Two Men Drown After Rocking Skiff

Snow Hill, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—Two men were drowned and a third succeeded in swimming to shore today when their rowboat capsized in the Pocomoke River.

The dead are Bud Fisher, 18, of Snow Hill, and Howard Wallop, 19, of near here. William Drummons, 20, Snow Hill, swam to safety. All are colored.

Italian Storks 'Good Fascists'

Rome, Aug. 20 (AP).—Premier Mussolini is making "good Fascists" out of Italy's storks.

After more than ten years of campaigning by Il Duce and inducements of Fascist propaganda and prizes to parents, Italy's birth rate once more is increasing.

Official statistics issued today show 85,907 Italian babies were born during July and 79,590 in June.

Since Premier Mussolini and the blackshirt regime want more and more "bambinos" to insure a revival of the glory and power of ancient Rome, the present upward trend in the birth rate is a patriotic victory.

Briton Kills Two Chinese In Shanghai

Japan Views Affair Gravely, Charging Revenge Was Motive

By the Associated Press

Shanghai, Aug. 20.—The killing of two pro-Japanese Chinese policemen and wounding of six others by a British policeman with a sub-machine gun yesterday, threatened tonight to develop into another major incident aggravating British-Japanese relations in the Far East.

"We take a grave view of this affair," the Japanese Embassy announced after representatives of the Japanese army and navy held an emergency meeting aboard the cruiser Idzumo, flagship of the Japanese fleet in China waters.

Japanese said the conferees "reached important decisions . . . designed to meet whatever attitude International Settlement authorities may adopt concerning the affair."

Settlement authorities were expected to confer on the situation tomorrow.

The British policeman, W. L. Kinloch, a sergeant of the settlement police, was placed under a heavy armed guard of British troops and settlement police in the British hospital. Foreign authorities were taking no chances of being caught unprepared in event of attempts at reprisals.

The settlement police version of the affair was that some of Kinloch's adversaries, members of the Japanese-controlled Chinese police squad, were "armed and in plain-clothes" and that Kinloch had no way of identifying them.

Kinloch said "someone in the Chinese group shot me in the back and I then went into action."

Japanese military authorities charged the settlement police "plotted" the incident "as revenge" for the slaying of H. P. Krogh, a Dane, Friday, in the residential district. Settlement police termed the charge "absurd."

The scene of the Kinloch incident, on the border between the settlement and the Japanese-controlled area, has become an armed camp, with Chinese police of the Japanese-controlled regime in the Japanese-controlled area and Italian marines on the settlement side of the road. This area of the setttlement is part of the Italian defense sector.

New York, Aug. 20.—The Rev. Thomas M. Fitzpatrick, assistant superior of the Foreign Mission Seminary of the Holy Cross at the Catholic University of America, Washington, said today in his sermon at St. Patrick's Cathedral that the world no longer is God-conscious, and that as a result it is "torn, bloody, wounded almost to death, awaiting almost despairingly the coming of the Good Samaritan."

Nazis Demand Quick Decision By Poland on Danzig, Corridor

German Officials and Press Clamor for Immediate Solution, With Suggestions For Direct Negotiations Made in Italy

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Aug. 20.—Ominous declarations the "day of reckoning" with Poland is coming soon, piled one upon another in Germany today.

Both the press and officials kept to the theme of Danzig and Pomorze (the Polish Corridor), through which the Nazis want a connection to German East Prussia.

The phrase "Der Tag" (day of reckoning) was being spoken with increasing frequency.

The press was insisting that "Polish insolence" was fast exhausting "German patience."

The influential Hamburg Fremdenblatt headlined that Poland "Still has five minutes for reflection."

The Fremdenblatt mirrored the general official contention that the Polish dispute must be settled almost at once.

There was no time limit set, either officially or informally, but the impression was unmistakable that Germany counted on only a matter of days before taking some positive step.

[Europe's "war of nerves," according to the United Press, entered what may be its final week before a climax next Sunday in the little East Prussian village of Tannenberg, where Hitler will speak commemorating the twenty-fifth anniversary of the deefat of the Russian armies there.

[It will be Hitler's first important speech in more than three months. Many influential Nazis believe he may state in more or less exact terms how and when he intends to achieve his "final" solution of the Danzig question.—Editor's note.]

Some papers, including the Fremdenblatt, hinted that Poland might "save itself" by coming forward with an acceptable suggestion.

An implied invitation to Poland to take some "constructive initiative" was contained in the official news bureau's citations from Italian papers suggesting that Poland "drop England and France" and attempt direct negotiations with Germany.

But no responsible German source made any direct suggestion that Poland should try, without co-operation of her allies, to come to understanding with Berlin.

Fuehrer Hitler's Voelkischer Beobachter asserted "Danzig and the Corridor are and remain two unconditional German demands about which there can be no debate."

Beobachter and other papers close to the government were irritated by British and French newspapers' suspicions that German reports of mistreatment of Germans in Poland were exaggerated.

Mistreatment Charged

Gleiwitz, Germany, Aug. 20 (AP).—An abusive press was the only thing disturbing the Sunday morning calm of this Silesian town on the German-Polish border.

Civil and military crowds attended the half-dozen cathedrals in this Catholic community as Nazi Party news organs reported "chaos" in Polish business across the border and the "martyrdom" of hundreds of Germans.

"The business situation in Polish Silesia," said the official Wanderer of Gleiwitz, "is getting worse from day to day. The situation is critical in the extreme."

Four pages in the Oberschleische Volkstimme were devoted to a recital of alleged mistreatment of German-speaking persons of Polish Silesia.

Hitler, Minister Talk

Berchtesgaden, Germany, Aug. 20 (U.P.).—A flury of diplomatic activity and consultations among German government leaders developed today with Fuehrer Hitler playing an unexplained role at his mountain-top retreat here.

During the day, the Fuehrer consulted with Foreign Minister von Ribbentrop, who came here from his summer place on Lake Fuschl near Salzburg.

Ribbentrop earlier talked with the Italian Ambassador to Berlin, Dr. Bernardo Attolico, who then left for Rome.

One of the most mysterious elements, according to foreign observers, was the anticipated arrival at Salzburg of British Ambassador, Sir Nevile Henderson. Henderson probably will talk with Ribbentrop, although he is going to Salzburg ostensibly to attend the international motorcycle races.

Britain Obstructs Shipyard Seaway

London, Aug. 20 (AP).—A warning was issued tonight by the British Broadcasting Co. that certain "obstructions" to navigation would be established Monday in the Firth of Clyde, where an anti-submarine boom was located during the World War.

There was no explanation. The Firth of Clyde is on the west coast of Scotland, and is the waterway to England's largest shipyards and some of its key munitions works.

Poles Predict Signing of Pact With Britain

Treaty Would Make Permanent the Interim Mutual Aid Accord

By the Associated Press

Warsaw, Aug. 20.—Polish circles expressed confidence tonight that formal signing of the British-Polish pact of mutual assistance would take place within a few days—possibly Tuesday.

The pact would make permanent the present interim agreement by which Prime Minister Chamberlain told Parliament on March 31 that Britain was pledged to fight for Poland, if Polish independence were menaced and Poland herself took military action.

Chamberlain, in this speech, said he announced the pledge to make the British position clear while military details of the formal pact were being agreed upon.

Poles said they considered an announcement that the pact has been formally established would be an effective reply to what one Polish informant termed "Germany's latest efforts to isolate Poland from the western powers through unprecedented propaganda."

A feeling that the situation was becoming increasingly grave was being strengthened in the public mind. One responsible Pole said, "Germany is reaching the limit in words and only action, it would seem, remains."

Some circles expressed belief the stage was being set for a "final offer" by Germany, against a background of acute tension.

Officials said there was no change in the attitude of Poland, especially her stated determination not to negotiate "under intimidation."

Tokyo Hints Repudiation of 9-Power Pact

Treaty Inapplicable to Monetary Discussions, Foreign Office Holds

By the United Press.

Tokyo (Monday), Aug. 21.—The foreign office announced today that Japan refuses to negotiate with signatories of the Washington nine-power treaty on her currency and silver demands in China, as asked by Great Britain.

The Japanese government is considering a denunciation of the nine-power treaty, designed to protect China's integrity, said the influential independent newspaper Asahi.

"The nine-power treaty, said the foreign office announcement, is inapplicable to the stalemated Anglo-Japanese talks in Tokyo, which developed from the Japanese army's blockade of the British concession at Tientsin June 14.

Japan, it was explained, refuses to permit intervention by any third powers in the currency and silver questions, regardless of whether they are nine-power signatories.

British Offer Rejected

The foreign office statement amounted to a rejection of the British government's offer, announced in London Sunday, to consider revision of the nine-power and other treaties applying to China, provided all interested powers are consulted.

The British statement said that, in a note to Japan on July 14, the British government "made it clear to the Japanese government that it does not regard treaties as eternal and is prepared to consider any constructive proposals the Japanese government may make regarding a modification of existing treaties.

"His Brittanic Majesty's government considers it essential that all parties of the nine-power treaty and other treaties governing the situation in China shall be enabled at an appropriate time to express their views and make a contribution to a settlement equitable to all concerned."

Bilateral Action Demanded

Japan was told that, in the British government's view, no discussions on Japan's economic proposals "can lead to any useful result on a purely Anglo-Japanese basis."

The statement plainly revealed Britain's desire to avoid a breakdown in the Tokyo talks, which quite possibly might drive Japan into the Italo-German military alliance at a time when Europe appears to be on the verge of crucial events.

Britain, it was announced, indicated to Japan that it has "no desire to shelve the questions raised (by Japan) and realizes that these matters require full discussion in any ultimate settlement of the present dispute in China."

The Japanese foreign office said that the economic matters must be taken up directly between Japan and Britain in the talks on Tientsin.

Tokyo Cautions on Hongkong

Japan wants Britain to co-operate in suppressing Chinese nationalist currency and to surrender $4,000,000 in Chinese silver held in banks of the Tientsin British Concession.

Actually, the talks were in a state of suspension and British Ambassador Craigie was at the summer embassy at Nikko after an interview with Somatsu Kato, Japanese minister at large for China and chief negotiator, in which Kato was said to have threatened an imminent breakdown of the conversations.

The Tokyo government adopted a cautious attitude in regard to the Japanese army's threat to blockade British Hongkong because of Britain's alleged persistence in permitting a flow of arms and munitions through the leased area to the Chinese armies.

Government leaders indicated doubts the army would impose an immediate blockade on Hongkong, already isolated on the land side by Japanese troops moving up to the border, but admitted that the generals might be so angered at Britain's firmer stand as to order an increase in anti-British pressure.

Vanguard From Louisville Due Here Today To Open Catholic Mission Crusade Convention

One hundred students from Louisville, vanguard of 3,000 delegates to the annual Catholic Students' Mission Crusade Convention opening here tomorrow night, are scheduled to reach the Capital early today.

Shortly after lunchtime another group is expected to pull into Union Station from Brooklyn, for the conclave at Catholic University, where officials were busy yesterday supervising the assembling of various mission exhibits in the corridor of the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception.

Arriving yesterday were the Rev. Arnold F. Witzman, of Cincinnati, assistant secretary-treasurer of the crusade and general chairman of the exhibits, while his co-worker, Mgr. Edward A. Freking, secretary-treasurer of the crusade, will probably come today.

Among the 70 missionary societies of America, Canada and foreign lands to be represented will be the Arctic, by the Rev. Paul Schulte, O. M. I., the "flying priest," who has been instrumental in having planes, autos, motorcycles and motorboats used to help missionaries carry on their work.

Missionaries coming in last night were the Rev. Joseph H. Labonte, M. S., and Brothers John Rohrman, M. S., and Fred Julien, M. S., of Africa; the Revs. William J. McClimont, C. M.; William Devine, C. M., and Lawrence Curtis, C. M., and others.

Several mission priests will be interviewed in a special broadcast tonight at 9:15 p. m. over Station WOL. Bishop Donaghy, of Wuchow, China, will be interviewed by J. Paul Spaeth, director of unit activities of the national crusade office, tomorrow at 10:30 p. m. over WRC. The Rev. William Ross, of New Guinea, also will take part in the program.

Clergy Takes Part In 'Birth of Flag' Play in Arlington

The clergy of Arlington County took part for the first time yesterday in the "Birth of the Flag" pageant when the Rev. Perry Mitchell, of the Clarendon Baptist Church, pronounced a special benediction to youth at the performance in the Arlington Youth Center.

Other clergymen who were honored at the pageant included the Rev. Thomas G. Betchler, president of the Ministerial Union of Arlington; the Rev. Father Kenneth M. Rizer, of the St. Charles Catholic Church, and the Rev. R. K. Haddaway, of the Mount Olivet Methodist Church.

Tonight's performance of the pageant will close the celebration.

At the performance yesterday 18-year-old Virginia Gary, one of the 12 members of the queen's court, sang a special program of religious songs. She was accompanied by the Kiwanis Boys Club Band of Arlington.

2-3 of Planes Sold to Allies Not Delivered

Tension Finds Britain, France With Orders Here Far Behind

By the Associated Press

If war should come in Europe this month, or early in September, its outbreak would find Britain and and France sadly behind on delivery of the aerial armada they have ordered in the United States.

War would catch them with less than one plane delivered out of every three ordered. If the neutrality act were invoked, the other two could not be shipped.

The tremendous rush of the American Army and Navy for aircraft has kept orders from abroad from being filled as fast as they might otherwise have been. On the other hand, the foreign contracts have helped some factories to get into working trim for handling U. S. orders.

Britain and France have placed the largest orders for war equipment here since the World War. They began to place warplane contracts in June of 1938, the month after the first Czech crisis when President Benes mobilized his army and Hitler postponed the climax until September.

In the 13 months since, Britain and France have gotten export licenses issued totaling $121,432,419. But actual exports of war materials have amounted to only $36,170,352, 30 per cent of the orders. The total number of planes ordered here is calculated at 800 for France and 650 for Britain, and only 450 have been delivered.

Great Britain has fared much better than France in obtaining delivery, although the total value of her orders is smaller. She has received licenses for $42,022,195 worth in the last 13 months and France $79,410,224, but Britain has received actual shipments totaling $23,361,479, or more than half her orders, whereas France has had shipments of $12,808,872 worth, or only 16 per cent. France was longer in getting big shipments started; first real deliveries did not begin until this year.

Spies Hunted From Alaska to Puerto Rico As Army, Navy, FBI Work on 411 Cases

By International News Service.

One of the most intensive spy hunts this Nation ever has seen—extending over the continent and into Hawaii, the Philippines, Alaska and Puerto Rico—is under way.

Ace members of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, it was learned, have been assigned by Director J. Edgar Hoover to 411 "active" espionage cases and are working with secret service men of the Army and Navy.

Every plane factory, shipbuilding yard, munitions plant and machine factory engaged on war and Navy contracts has been placed under strict surveillance to guard against sabotage or theft of secret plans designed for war emergency use.

Japanese Boats Watched

Special Agent Richard C. Vogel has already taken up his post in Juneau, Alaska. There has long been some deep suspicion regarding the real activities of the fleets of Japanese fishing boats plying about the Alaskan coast.

Special Agent Edgar Thompson has been assigned to Puerto Rico, regarded as a "key" spot in the defenses planned for the Caribbean Sea and the Panama Canal.

Special Agent Robert Shivers sailed Thursday for Hawaii, where he will maintain a constant watch over activities of potential spies in those vital islands.

Director Hoover confirmed reports he soon would assign a man to the Panama Canal Zone, to supplement the operations of Thompson.

This is in line with the Government's policy of bolstering the defenses of the Panama Canal locks through increased troops and war planes.

Since January 1, last, 1,200 spy cases have been under F. B. I. inquiry. This compares with only 600 in the entire 12 months of 1938.

Quest Co-ordinated

Under President Roosevelt's new policy, developed early in the year, the F. B. I. is co-ordinating all anti-espionage investigations. The Coast Guard, Customs Service and Secret Service operatives, as well as the postal inspection service, are co-operating with the G-men under White House orders.

Important changes are being made within the F. B. I. D. M. Lagg, agent in charge at Chicago, will be promoted this week to the post of assistant director in charge of the identification division and criminal laboratory in Washington. He will be succeeded at Chicago by W. S. Devereaux, now agent in charge at Miami.

Army Flier Killed, One Hurt in Crash

Monticello, N. Y., Aug. 20 (U.P.).—One Army flier was dead and another was reported in "fair condition" tonight after a plane crash on fog-enveloped Denham Mountain in the Catskills.

Lieut. John B. Smith died en route to a hospital. His companion, Lieut. Willard Ewing, has been unconscious since he was pulled from the wreckage. Both were from Chicago.

On The Spot

We have at least one piece of cheerful news this morning. Those sunspots about which you have been hearing so much for the past couple of years are gradually being cleaned off. It will take some time to get rid of them—maybe four or five years—for there are some pretty large spots of a billion square miles or so. Nevertheless, people who believe these spots are responsible for bad luck of one kind and another have cause to rejoice.

Sunspots should not, of course, be considered as a sort of solar measles. They are really not spots at all, but explosions which make the places where they occur seem darker than the rest of the atmosphere. That is no reason, however, to underestimate their importance. It seems pretty thoroughly established that they are responsible for a good deal of magnetic mischief in the way of putting ships' compasses, radios, telephones and telegraph instruments out of whack.

Moreover, some very learned and respected scientists are convinced that sunspots exert a tremendous influence on the kind of weather we have down here on earth. Some of them, like the late Father Ricard, actually made use of sunspots to predict the weather a month in advance. Whether sunspots are responsible for plagues, famines, wars, floods, mass hysteria, and styles in women's hats, as some persons claim, is still an open question.

However, some interesting data may be offered. Sunspot activity recurs in cycles averaging somewhat less than a dozen years. The present sunspot epidemic reached its peaks in 1937, the year of the great Mississippi and Ohio River floods and the fight over reorganization of the Supreme Court, and in 1938, the year of Munich. There had been no such pronounced sunspot activity since 1870, the year which saw the fall of the Second Empire in France and of the temporal power of the Pope in Rome.

The previous sunspot maximum had occurred in 1860, the year South Carolina seceded from the Union. The one before that came in 1848, along with the great Irish potato famine and revolutions which cost two great monarchs their thrones. In 1805, Europe was convulsed by the Napoleonic wars. In 1649, King Charles I was beheaded and in 1693 Mount Etna erupted, killing 60,000 persons. All these were years of sunspot maxima.

Coming back to more recent times, sunspot maxima occurred in the following years: 1883, the year of the Java earthquake in which 46 volcanoes erupted and 36,000 lives were lost; 1906, the year of the San Francisco earthquake and of other great disturbances in Formosa and Valpariso; 1917, the year in which the United States entered the World War and adopted the prohibition amendment.

Of course, if you wish to make anything out of these coincidences you must do so strictly on your own responsibility. But, between ourselves, perhaps it's just as well that the sunspots are fading out.

Philatelic Americans

An example of a hobby that has grown to assume many of the aspects of big business is that of stamp collecting. If you are a boy, you collect stamps; but when you grow up in years, you are a philatelist. One of the most famous of the latter is President Roosevelt, who should be told by Thurman Arnold that he has unfair advantages over his competitors in the field. Many little boys could probably make a satisfactory collection from one day's Presidential mail.

So numerous are the philatelists of the country, that they form a rather powerful lobby, affecting the sale and issuance of stamps. Sometimes when the mail runs unusually heavily, it is not correspondence that increases the bulk, but philatelists in search of a stamp.

Naturally, as in any collecting, the more remote and exotic the stamp, the more pleasure and value it has for the owner. Postal clerks, therefore, were particularly rushed recently when a postoffice opened up for business under the sea. Despite the rush of mail, the only inhabitant of that region, excepting the fish, is explorer John Ernest Williamson and his assistants. They have been observing life from a photosphere near the Bahamas for nearly a quarter of a century. Again the President stole a march on other philatelists by being, with King George, the first recipient of a letter mailed from "Sea Floor, Bahamas."

The seventeenth annual convention of the Precancel Stamp Society, Inc., is now meeting in Baltimore, soon to be followed by the forty-fifth annual convention of the Society for Philatelic Americans. While few can understand the intricacies of the business which these societies will transact, all can appreciate the pleasure stamp collectors get from their occupation. A rare stamp to them must bring the same elation as an ordinary purple "three" conveys when adorning a letter in a favorite handwriting.

The Right To Criticize

Refusal of the Ford Motor Co. to comply with a recent order of the National Labor Relations Board clears the way for another important court test of the act under which the NLRB operates. The United States Circuit Court of Appeals, and probably the Supreme Court also, will be called upon to decide whether the NLRB may restrain an employer's freedom of speech in order to protect workingmen in their right to organize and bargain collectively.

There seems to be no question that Mr. Ford used his influence to prevent his employes from joining any union. The board cites numerous interviews and Ford publications showing that the manufacturer distrusts labor organizations and has, in effect, advised his employes against joining then. Even the company's reply to the board's order takes note of Mr. Ford's ill-founded opinion "that employes are better off outside of a union than in one."

The NLRB concluded that by distributing anti-union literature in its plants the company "interfered with, restrained, and coerced its employes" in the exercise of their right to organize and bargain collectively. Through his attorneys, Mr. Ford argued that his propaganda was merely an appeal to the reason of his workmen. But since the publications in question were issued during an organization drive by the United Automobile Workers, the board found that they had "the unmistakable purpose and effect of warning employes that they should refrain from joining the union."

That seems to be a reasonable conclusion. But it does not necessarily justify the board's order that the Ford Motor Co., in effect, cease and desist from "disseminating among its employes statements or propaganda which disparages or criticizes labor organizations or which advises its employes not to join such organizations."

The American people take pride in their right to criticize any organization or individual, so long as they do not tread on libelous ground. It is not unnatural that that right should be exercised, during a labor dispute, by all the parties involved. The disparaging statements of union leaders about employers are not questioned. And, of course, employe groups are free to use the most vitriolic language in denouncing one another. Only the employer, under the NLRB ruling, must remain aloof and refrain from criticizing or advising labor organizations.

It is questionable whether the National Labor Relations Act was ever intended to impose such restraints as the NLRB has ordered in this case. And if it were so intended, that disparity of treatment becomes a powerful argument for revision of the act. Free expression of honest convictions is a fundamental right under our Constitution, whether those views are sound or foolish. To interfere with that right, even for the worthy purpose of bringing about more effective organization of labor, would be an extremely dangerous course for any democracy.

Employers may properly be forbidden to coerce their employes into following any course of action. Where there is conclusive evidence that the Ford company dismissed workers for engaging in union activities, the board has a clear right and duty to order their reinstatement and to forbid future discrimination of that sort. There will be a good deal of sympathy, too, with the NLRB's contention that Mr. Ford's anti-union statements were merely part of a general movement to prevent the unionization of his plants. Yet a line must be drawn between coercion and exercise of the right of free speech. If the language of the Constitution is still to be interpreted in its simple and fundamental meaning, an employer has as much right to criticize a labor union as he has to criticize the Government.

An Optimistic Note

Even more important than the evidence of business improvement cited by the United States Chamber of Commerce is the attitude of optimism which that organization's current statement reflects. The chamber was not content to point to rising production indices, to an all-time peak for electric power consumption at this season, to plans for raising new capital and an upturn in business loans made by banks. It also hopefully forecasts a return this fall of the relative prosperity enjoyed in 1936-37, unless "adverse influences from the outside" interfere.

The Chamber of Commerce is considerably more optimistic than the American Federation of Labor. In its survey of economic conditions last week the A. F. of L. noted that "business today is actually in a particularly favorable condition for sound, healthy expansion." But it also expressed fear that "there is no immediate prospect of the widespread industrial expansion this country needs." Spokesmen for the federation believe that "venture capital" has too little incentive for profitable investment to draw it out of tax-exempt Government bonds and similar havens.

Business and industrial leaders have many times voiced the same complaint. But the Chamber of Commerce now takes hope in the prospect of tax revision at the next session of Congress. A still more more important factor behind its optimism probably is the "other favorable developments in Congress" which the statement notes. In the last session of Congress control over national policy very definitely passed from the White House to Capitol Hill. Since Congress is more favorable to the business viewpoint than is the President, this shift has undoubtedly contributed to the revival of confidence in industrial circles.

No doubt some companies will continue to follow a cautious policy because of the state of affairs in Europe. Yet, as a group, business and industrial leaders must realize that failure on their part to increase employment and output would lead to a much strengthened demand for a new spending program when Congress reassembles. If the national policy is to swing back toward greater reliance on jobs in private industry, employment in factories and construction activities must necessarily increase. That fact should be a strong incentive to employers to take advantage of every reasonable opportunity to expand their operations.

The Democratic Way

Education for democracy has become a popular theme in these days of totalitarian propaganda. Thoughtful citizens have been properly concerned over the seeming apathy of self-governing peoples during a period when dictatorial regimes are demanding and obtaining from their subjects devotion that often amounts to fanaticism. What step can the democracies take to overcome this advantage of Fascist and Communist governments in the struggle for world power?

Fortunately, the Congress on Education for Democracy held in New York last week has given, in general terms, a sane and constructive answer to this question.

It has been too often assumed that to match the unity and strength attained by totalitarian powers governments controlled by free peoples would have to use similar tactics. In Germany, for example, an apparent unity of national purpose is attained by restraining freedom of expression. And the feelings of the people are aroused, in accord with every whim of the Nazi leaders, by a constant stream of propaganda. This situation has suggested to some that democratic countries wishing to preserve their own systems of government should counteract Nazi denunciation of self-government and glorification of dictatorship by initiating propaganda systems of their own.

But this superficial reasoning found no encouragement in the conclusions of the Congress on Education for Democracy. Rather the consensus of opinion appears to support a statement by Dean William F. Russell, of Teachers College, Columbia University, chief sponsor of the gathering. "The defense against propaganda," Dean Russell said, "is education; and it is in education that democracies must place their trust."

Totalitarian powers, which look first to the welfare of the state, may command patriotic service from the people by appeals to their emotions, by deception or by terroristic methods. But democracy, as noted by the New York gathering, "is a way of life and social organization which above all others is sensitive to the dignity and worth of the individual human personality." By its very nature it can succeed only through an appeal to human intelligence—through elevation of the individual to a state in which he is capable of sharing civic responsibility and of passing judgment upon national policies devised by elected representatives.

Superficial attempts to whip up patriotic fervor might produce some temporarily beneficial results. But the Congress on Education for Democracy is not interested in any such expedient. Instead, it aims at the long-range objectives of encouraging "straight thinking," of building character, of disseminating economic information and of more fully developing the capacity of the people to manage their own affairs.

That is a task of infinite magnitude. If it is carried out in a comprehensive way, it will require the co-operation of the schools, the churches, civic organizations, labor unions, industry, agriculture and many other groups. In contrast to a brief propaganda campaign, this attempt to revitalize democracy contemplates continuous efforts over many years. It offers no hope of mobilizing free peoples into a blind force that might be hurled at an enemy on short notice. But it does hold promise of slowly strengthening the political system under which civilization has attained its highest state of development.

It's remarkable the many things advertising writers can think to say about a little tobacco rolled in a small piece of paper.

"Are you in favor of dressing for dinner?" "Yes—if there isn't too much pepper in it."

When you start out to get something off your chest, take care that you don't tear your shirt.

Fish, Flesh or Fowl

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The spectacle of Representative Hamilton Fish engaged in an hour's conversation with Germany's Foreign Minister Ribbentrop reminds one of the conversation between Red Ridinghood and the wolf. A country which has announced that relations with other nations must be relations of force, and whose Ambassadors on dress occasions carry daggers in their belts, can hardly look upon a representative of the richest country in the world except as lamb marked for slaughter. When our Nation begins to place character before cleverness the naivete of our representatives will cease to be a byword among dictators and our Nation will halt its course toward destruction.

Spanish Question

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In Phillip Bonosky's "Questions Concerning Spain" there is a real challenge to those men who have fought to uphold Franco in his ruthless tactics. Some time ago about 60 of the representatives of our American Government sent to the republican government in Spain a note expressing their sympathy to them in their untring fight to preserve democracy.

Men who claim to be American patrioteers who are forever waving the American flag on every occasion; men who claim to be champions of democracy, are the very ones who criticized our representatives for recommending the Spanish government in their losing struggle for liberty and freedom. Now Franco has made Spain a Fascist nation which those men told the American public would never be done. A SUBSCRIBER.

Thanksgiving Day

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As my contribution to the discussion on the date for Thanksgiving, I would like to quote from the Book of Common Prayer of the Protestant Church:

"In addition to the above (Table of Feasts), the first Thursday in November (or, if any other day be appointed by the Civil Authority, then such day) shall be observed as a Day of Thanksgiving to Almighty God, for the Fruits of the Earth, and all other blessings of his merciful Providence."

This book of prayer was established by "convention, the sixteenth day of October in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eight-nine."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: We desire to express our appreciation of the serial, "The Yearling" recently concluded in your paper. It held our interest to the last chapter. To a reader who hasn't a great deal of time to give to a morning paper the length of each chapter was well chosen.

We hope at some future date you may be able to give your readers another serial from the pen of this author. We like her style.

Hardships Of Mock War

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: This is the voice of experience and not from the major's desk. The prelude to the grand and glorious Battle of Manassas occurred on Sunday night, August 13. After the technical details of the battle were discussed a staff officer informed us that the war would be called off daily at 3 p. m. The time in between was to be devoted to washing, resting and eating, also very little hiking.

Here is what actually happened. We left camp 6:30 a. m. Monday morning and rode approximately 5 miles to our reserve position, where we lay in the boiling sun until 4:30 p. m.

Instead of camping where we were, we hiked until 9:30 that night over rough roads and fields with nothing to eat and very little to drink. When we finally camped, we ate supper, which consisted of unpeeled potatoes three dogs and a spoonful of unflavored sauerkraut, a small piece of pineapple and a half cup of lukewarm coffee. We then pitched tents in the dark.

At 5:15 a. m. Tuesday morning we were kicked in the feet and ordered to roll our packs. When finishing this task we were called to breakfast. The general then rode up in a big car and ordered us to dump our meal on the ground and get on the march. They gave us two sandwiches for dinner and told us there was no water for our canteens.

After throwing away our breakfast, they walked us about one-quarter mile and then they sat around for two hours with nothing to do but talk about the meal we were forced to throw away, and wonder what we were going to use for water that day.

Our problem for the day was to outflank the enemy which necessitated a hike of 7 miles through a hot, sultry woods. Through misguidance, we were forced to countermarch twice two additional miles. In this woods we came upon some water which we were not allowed to touch. The heat was so intense and our thirst so great they forced us to sit down to rest on our own initiative. We were ordered to push on immediately or be court-martialed. But neither our body or our spirit responded to this command. They finally called a halt to activities at 2:15. We then had to march a mile or more to our next camp site, still without water. About 4 p. m. we finally got a drink of tepid water. For supper we had some warm water with a piece of fat beef pulled through it.

Wednesday we finally thought we were going to get a break. After a fairly decent breakfast we were moved out into a reserve position. Then lay around all day until 4:30 and then hiked us 7 miles to another camp site. They had men in the companies who had sore feet, sprained joints and some sick from the effects of our wonderful food. But still they were forced to march. But when an officer had anything wrong with him he was sent back to the main camp to rest without delay.

That night we had a fairly good meal, except the potatoes were raw. They sent three of our men back to camp this evening for medical attention. They were envied by every man in the regiment. After supper we were told to rest, as we were going to move out at 11 sharp for an all-night problem. They stopped in an open field and lay down to sleep a couple hours with no protection but a raincoat.

It is the writer's opinion that all officers should have the respect of their men. The small amount of respect built up by the officers during the drills at the armories is shattered by this treatment.

GUARDSMAN.

The King-Hall Letters

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I couldn't help wondering what my father would have said had he heard the remarks of one of our radio commentators, which came from London the other evening. As a born Englishman, he always told me that an Englishman's home is his castle. The program brought the information that an Englishman of today is very proud of the fact that his letters to the citizens of another country with which England is still supposed to be at peace have reached them in their homes, and makes his purpose very clear.

Could it be that this is more propaganda, by those bound to start a war some place, again, but will they "save their face" by doing that this time with our assistance? Having known Hitler before and since he has been in power, and having had a chance to observe how his mind works, this present attitude of many can only arouse a feeling of sorrow, for all who do not know the true facts.

Could they but realize that Hitler is only a tool of those millions of youths, from 16 to 25, who came home from the war to, as they used to tell me, an existence worse than in the trenches. For there they were facing a quick death, while at home it was a slow starvation, hopeless for two generations to come. (The Versailles Treaty called for reparations for 60 years).

If anything were to happen to Hitler now Germany would be the scene of such a horrible massacre that the Wars of the Roses in England would have been moderate.

Having survived the war in Germany and some ten years of observing the effect of the Versailles Treaty, I was more thankful every time that I returned to the land of my birth, for the standards which we have set up here but not there.

Isn't it still possible for us to bring pressure to bear so that the foundation, as it was put by the English author Keynes in his book written in 1919, for another war, in as far as the Treaty of Versailles is responsible at least, can be removed?

E. POMEROY.
Washington, Aug. 16.

Ford And The NLRB

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Concerning the article headed "Ford Calls NLRB Ruling 'Invasion of Free Speech'" in The Post of August 19, please permit me to state, Mr. Henry Ford is to be commended for calling the hand of this labor board, which is telling Mr. Ford how to run his vast business. This board originally created to bring peace and harmony in our industrial world, has one the contrary, by its decisions, mostly always in favor of labor, especially of the C. I. O., caused more strife and disorder, in our industrial life than we ever had.

How can labor serve conscientiously both the union and the employer? Henry Ford also truly says "A dissatisfied worker is a poor workman." On this philosophy Mr. Ford has tried to make his vast army of workers into one big happy family, all working together for the general good of all. How far he has succeeded is amply attested by the comfortable workmen's homes, hospital, recreation centers, schools, etc.

Let me suggest the NLRB members quit their luxurious easy chairs for a while and get work with Henry Ford. They will not be obliged to pay dues either, because Mr. Ford says justly "I do not see why any man should pay, because he works for me." I am sure the NLRB will learn that the employer has some rights, and is not always in the wrong, as their decisions now indicate.

RICHARD J. PAHNKE.

The Post Impressionist

In The Wilderness

MY WORLD is not your world, and my thoughts are not the bright little waterdrops that yours are.

They tell me that I'm not mad, and surely I can't be. When the four walls of my room start to close in on me so that I must run out—out into the garden—to keep from being crushed to death, I remember what Dr. Potter says. I am making the walls move, because they can't move by themselves. Sometimes, though, when I sit still on my bed they come faster toward me. The ceiling, too, lowers and, as I look up, the cracks widen. The little creatures are trying to force their way through. They want my soul—to eat.

I would not be here today had it not been for the little creatures. Once in a dream I spoke to them and said, "You may have my soul some day, but not now. Only Paul can share it with me while I am free to dance and to love." But the greedy little fellows could not wait. And, I, looking at them, pitied their lean purple bellies, because it was a dream. And so I allowed them to nibble at my soul. But then when I awoke, I wept. For the May dance was a dance of witches. But I know now, for Dr. Potter has told me, that the yellow, green, and pink ribbons were tied to the pole so that the young girls could celebrate happiness. But my poor soul was eaten away like cheese, so that I was ill and went away so I would not drown in the bathtub.

Dr. Potter blames Paul, but it is not his fault. Poor Paul did not know that sometimes the little creatures hid in his long dark hair and peeped out at me. I did not tell him, for he might have been frightened. But Paul's baby won't love him when she sees little creatures all around and Paul's wife can't tell him how to keep them away.

But I am safe now. Every morning when I go down to breakfast I describe a circle like that of Orestes, which only humankind can enter. And then when I go to the sunporch I make another. Once Dr. Potter asked me why I would not go walking. When I told him my circles covered only a little space at a time, he grew up two inches and said I must face the daemons and fight them. I told Dr. Potter I could not grow two inches whenever I liked, and so I would not be large enough to fight. He shrank because he felt sorry for me.

Sometimes I play the piano. I must play loud to drown out the whining voice in the room next to me. The voice has no body, because when once I looked in the room to see if the little creatures were after someone, a soul flew out the window. I would not want that soul. I do not like to whine.

So I keep the loud pedal down when I play Chopin. I have torn up my Bach. Bach used to walk up straight garden paths and never stop to pick flowers. He was afraid of the keeper. He could not grow two inches when he liked. He drowned in the bathtub because his own mind made the water deeper than it was.

Someday my soul will be new and shiny. Paul promises to die soon so he can kill all the little creatures. The little creatures cannot help it that they are hungry. But they must not beg my soul of me at night. They must let it heal.

VIRGINIA IMLAY.

Handel's Water Music

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: On August 18 a letter on your editorial page, signed "Music Lover," makes a positive statement that the Water Music of Handel has never been played at a Sunset Symphony. Our records show that this music was played on July 28, 1935, with Sandor Harmati conducting. Incidentally, this was early in the first season of this series of outdoor concerts. Since then Dr. Kindler has played this music at one of our students' concerts.

The point may be made that the worth of the music is such that it is time to repeat it. To this I will agree, although it will now be necessary to wait until next season to do so. C. C. CAPPEL,

Epicureanism

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Epicurean philosophy of democracies simply cannot stand against Spartan philosophy of dictatorships. Let us openly acknowledge this fact and join with other democracies in an endeavor to save civilization but not to save epicureanism. The latter cannot possibly be saved because it isn't worth saving.

Fair Enough

Back-Stabbing

I WAS around town for a few hours today, and, my friends, it would make your blood boil to see the back-stabbing that is being committed openly in our marts of trade. Women back-stabbers churning around the counters in the stores. Men back-stabbers knifing President Roosevelt in the markets. Hundreds of thousands of treacherous betrayers of the New Deal straining brain and brawn in offices and plants to manufacture and sell goods so that recovery may occur in the land to the discredit of the President. For let there be no mistake about this—that if business should rebound in spite of the rejection of President Roosevelt's latest formula for recovery the formula will be discredited, and that puts it up to all loyal supporters of the New Deal, in the Administration and out, to resist this sinister scheme in every possible way.

Do you need a pair of shoes? Don't buy yet. Wait. Every sale of a pair of shoes in the critical months to come will be a contribution to recovery and a knife-thrust in the back. Were you thinking of opening a store or adding a new line to the shelves of an old one? My friend, have you considered what that would mean? Are you one to pull a knife on the President? So you sort of planned to toss the old lady into the family crate and go tripping for a couple of weeks' vacation, did you? And you were going to spend some money for gas and oil and maybe a new tire or even a new car, you back-stabber, and leave a few dollars along the roads at the restaurants and beer-joints and flea bags?

Passive Opposition Called Stabbing

YOU WERE going to do this fully realizing that every dollar you would spend would be a contribution to the defeat of the Administration's proposition that recovery would occur in no other way than Mr. Roosevelt's. Were you going to shingle your roof or put in a new icebox or sink or buy a new radio or get the kids some new clothes for school? All right, have it your way. It is a free country, but you know that would be back-stabbing, don't you? You know what that makes you, don't you? A back-stabber.

Maybe you don't think so, but if you will just refer to the vocabulary of the New Deal as of the last year or so you will discover that any act of opposition to the New Deal—even passive opposition, for that matter—is back-stabbing. Jack Garner, that evil old man, was guilty of back-stabbing when he hadn't said aye, yes, no or go to hell. Although it was he who had finally put Mr. Roosevelt over in the first place, he was a back-stabber when he just didn't go along with the President. He didn't pull back, exactly. Friends, that there would have been worse than back-stabbing. Friends, that there would have been ax-murdering. No, he didn't pull back, but he didn't go along, either.

He just held still, and that was stabbery in the back, first degree.

Congress Guilty Of Back-Stabbing

THIS LAST Congress was guilty of back-stabbery, first degree, too. Maybe the degree was a little bit firster than common-ordinary first because this Congress not only held still but pulled snoots at the President and put the patriots of the country on the spot. This is the spot that the patriots are on: If they employ a lot of new hands and if the new hands accept that employment and the factories use up material and the new hands use their wages to buy things and numbers of them pull away from relief jobs and the country gets off its knees and starts to stagger forward, the New Deal is fully betrayed, and you can put the recovery down to a dirty, underhanded conspiracy against the program of progress. It will be reaction.

I just don't think decent Americans would do their President that way. Say what you like about businessmen, you will find that they are patriots under their fine linen and will not offer new jobs or contract for new goods when they realize that a recovery would repudiate the President. And the common man will not accept a job if he understands that every single subtraction from the army of the unemployed is a loss for the Administration. There are plenty of traitors around, brazenly working at their jobs and talking up recovery, but public opinion will take care of them. They will get theirs.

And if it comes to a crisis with the dark clouds of recovery lowering over the Administration and menacing streaks of optimism flashing through the storm, there is still hope. Harold Ickes, the Department of Justice, the Treasury, the Labor Department and the Labor Board can be relied on in a crisis to devil the life out of the back-stabbing ingrates and chase those clouds away.

Inside Germany Today

I—How Popular Is The Nazi Regime?

By H. P. S. Matthews

Special Correspondence of The Post.

Berlin.

THE VISITOR from a democratic country who goes to Germany to discover the state of opinion suffers from certain important handicaps.

Evidence tending to show that the regime is popular is not difficult to come by. Chance acquaintances, whether they be Nazis or not, will refrain from giving vent to criticisms of the existing order, for six years' experience has taught the danger of talking indiscreetly to strangers.

In railway carriages and in cafes one encounters the type of proselyting Nazi who makes it his business, in season and out, to enlighten the foreigner about the "true state of affairs" in Germany, and to "undo the effect created by the lying propaganda of the Jewish world press." Even in the privacy of friends' houses Germans are reluctant to speak critically in the presence of third persons.

The disastrous consequences of an unguarded word are all too well known, and Germans who reject National Socialism and all its works have developed the habit of concealing their true feelings from all save those whom they absolutely trust.

BUT, if there is a danger of overestimating the strength of the regime by attaching undue importance to superficial evidence, there is an equally great danger of underestimating it through "wishful thinking." The visitor who has known a different Germany, and who believes the German people capable of a more civilized form of government, grasps with avidity at evidence of a desire for better things.

Wishful thinking was certainly responsible for very many of the confident predictions of Hitler's impending overthrow which gained currency outside Germany at the beginning of this year.

There are two permanent elements in Germany, the element which accepts unquestionably every act of the government, and the element which with equal certainty rejects National Socialism and all its works. Both are small minorities—some observers place each of them in the neighborhood of 10 to 15 per cent of the population. The great mass of the German people, belonging to neither minority, alternates between approval and disapproval, between enthusiasm and dissatisfaction. When the regime achieves a success in the field of foreign affairs they applaud; when butter is short, or hours of work are increased, they feel resentment.

NATIONAL SOCIALIST propaganda has always boasted of the sacrifices which the German people have been ready to make in the interest of Hitler's policy. Three factors have, in the main, been responsible for the degree of willingness with which these sacrifices have been made.

The most obvious reason for the acquiescence of the ordinary German in the privations involved in National Socialist rule has been the success of the regime in the field of foreign policy. The young fanatics of the party, and in a lesser degree all those Germans who are not fanatically opposed to everything for which Hitler stands, have felt that they were spectators of and even participants in, a process comparable to the union of Germany under Bismarck or the Italian Risorgimento.

They have been taught to regard themselves as having the good fortune to live in the Golden Age of German history; Nazi propaganda seeks to persuade the people that such trivial discomforts as a periodic shortage of butter or eggs are as nothing when it is recognized that they are rendered necessary by such historic developments as the union of Austria and the Sudetenland with the Reich and the "breaking of the chains of Versailles."

SECOND only in importance to the success of the regime in the foreign field is the feeling that there is no conceivable alternative to national socialism.

Democracy is still remembered by many of the older generation of Germans as a regime of liberty and tolerance, a time to which one looks back with feelings of longing. The younger generation, on the other hand, regards democracy as synonymous with weakness, and would not contemplate returning to a system which involved the existence of a score of political parties. Every success of the regime serves to underline the difference between the relative failure of the Wimar republic and the brilliant achievements of Hitler; at the same time it points the same moral by demonstrating the ability of Hitler to flout the wishes of the western democracies.

Particularly among the army leaders the idea of a Hohenzollern restoration has always found a certain measure of support. It long seemed that the only serious alternative to Hitler was army rule, with a restoration to give the new regime an alternative emotional appeal and with the revival of the trade unions as a means of gaining support in the working class. But the appeal of the monarchy is lost on the younger generation of Germans, who never experienced the glamour of Hohenzollern rule.

Communism too has lost much of its power to attract the loyalty of the working class. Having experienced more than six years of authoritarian rule, they feel no desire to exchange one dictatorship for another.

FINALLY, the present labor shortage has served to underline once more the achievement of the regime in liquidating unemployment. When Hitler took power in 1933 the unemployed in Germany numbered little short of seven million; today Germany is compelled to import labor from Italy, Slovakia, Bulgaria and Poland. The constant reiteration of this fact, and the contrast drawn between the disappearance of unemployment in Germany and its continuance in the "democracies" is one of the most constant themes of Nazi propaganda.

Until March of this year the most important force militating against the popularity of the regime was the belief that ultimately Hitler would bring about a second World War. Whilst there are many people who applauded the success of Hitler's policy in September, there were also many who felt that he had been sailing too near the wind.

Despite the success of the government in winning the Sudetenland for Germany, it has seldom been as unpopular as it was during the months between October and March last, and, though the program played a very considerable part in creating this unpopularity, the feeling that Hitler had taken too great a risk was an equally important contributory factor.

It is for this reason that Hitler's success in March was of such tremendous psychological importance. In March there was no suggestion of foreign opposition. Thus, many Germans, who had opposed Hitler's policy the previous September, came to feel that, after all, he had been right and they had been wrong. The ease with which the March coup had been carried out had justified the risks of the previous autumn.

THE ACCEPTANCE by Great Britain of guarantees to Poland and Rumania came as a godsend to the official propaganda.

"Encirclement" was a word to conjure with. It revived war-time impressions of England, jealous of the new strength of Germany, seeking to bar every avenue to German expansion.

Germany, Dr. Goebbels explained, was well able if left to herself, to solve by peaceful means the problems arising between her and Poland. Only the machinations of British diplomacy, inspired by a desire to "keep Germany down," could prevent Herr Hitler from achieving his aims by peaceful means; British policy was inspired by the desire to prevent German commercial expansion so that the British navy, by "starving women and children," might once again force Germany to surrender.

It required but little ingenuity on Dr. Goebbels' part to produce the arguments which form the basis of his anti-English campaign; they were taken, lock, stock and barrel, from the official propaganda of the war years. But the very fact that the German people recognized, in this picture of British policy, something with which they had long been familiar served to increase its power to carry conviction.

ing cows or goats, putting the milk into containers, cooling it, and storing it on the farm. Furthermore, the legislative history of the act indicates that if the farmer and his employes engage in such operations as separating the cream from milk obtained from the farmer's cows or goats, bottling such milk and cream, or making butter and cheese out of such milk and cream, those operations also fall within the exemption."

The term "forestry or lumbering operations," the interpretation said, "refers to the cultivation and management of forests, the felling and removal of timber, and the conversion of logs and timber into rough lumber and similar products. It also includes the piling, stacking and storing of all such products. "Wood working" as such is not included.

Further exemptions under the first processing clause, where the employer is not necessarily a farmer, but may merely work with raw farm products, are:

A complete exemption from the hour provisions to employes "in any place of employment" where their employer is engaged in the first processing of milk, whey, skimmed milk or cream into dairy products.

The same complete exemption where the employer is engaged in the ginning and compressing of cotton, or in the processing of cotton seed.

The same complete exemption where the employer is engaged in the processing of sugar beets, sugar beet molasses, sugar cane or maple sap into sugar (but not refined sugar) or into syrup.

An exemption, for a period aggregating not more than 14 work weeks in any calendar year, from the hour provisions for employes "in any place of employment" where their employer is engaged in the first processing of, or in canning or packing, perishable or seasonal fresh fruits or vegetables. (Canners of tomatoes are allowed this partial exemption.)

(An employer entitled to the above exemption may select any 14 work weeks in the calendar year. They need not be consecutive. The work weeks he selects however, must be work weeks in which he is engaged in the exempt operation.)

The same partial exemption from the hour provisions where the employer is engaged in the first processing, within the area of production (as defined by the administrator) of any agricultural or horticultural commodity during seasonal operations.

Where this exemption is applicable, there is no limit to the hours which the employes may work during the exempt period without being entitled to any overtime compensation under the act.

Some other conclusions in the interpretative bulletin are:

That the word "agriculture" as used in the act does not include the science and art of cultivating forests.

Europe Alarmed

By Ernest K. Lindley

Report On Europe

EUROPE IS moving directly and swiftly toward its most dangerous crisis since the World War. Information coming into Washington through diplomatic and military channels and from well-posted unofficial sources abroad is almost unanimously to that effect. It is more uniformly alarming than at any time in more than 20 years, except perhaps for a day or two last September, when the Czech crisis momentarily seemed to have escaped diplomatic control.

Even in the worst moments of the Czech crisis, however, there were well-informed people who were confident that it would not eventuate in a general war. Such confidence is absent now, both among our chief diplomats abroad and among our State Department officials.

As to whether the chances favor war or a continuation of the present state of affairs euphemistically known as "peace" there are, of course, differences of opinion— or, rather, different guesses. A common appraisal is that the chances are "about 50-50." But, as used with reference to Europe, this is not meant to fix betting odds. It is simply a way of saying that there is no way of knowing. The answer rests in the head of one man, whose emotional and mental processes are abnormal (unless he is a remarkable actor).

General Agreement On Four Points

ON FOUR points there is general agreement among the experts:

1. The most acute stage of the crisis will come soon. Some think within ten days, others within four or five weeks.

2. Hitler's real objective is his stated objective—Poland. This follows from the disposition of German troops on the Polish borders of Germany, the vassal state of Slovakia, and East Prussia. Hungary might be taken in a flanking movement. The guess that Hitler might move in that direction this fall was advanced months ago by some of our State Department guessers. But these experts are now in agreement that Poland is the objective and that a movement in another direction would come only from fear of the consequences of pushing the "Polish question" to a conclusion. It is no longer the "Danzig question," which, from the military viewpoint, was only a step toward putting Poland in a strait-jacket. It is the "Polish question," which means the extinction or immobilization of Poland as an effective military power, just as the "Sudeten question" meant, in fact, the extinction of Czecho-Slovakia.

3. There is no sign of faltering, as yet, on the part of Germany, Poland, France or Great Britain. In the "war of nerves," nerves have not yet cracked. From all accounts, the Poles, the French and the British are steeled for war.

4. The Italians are eager to avoid war, but almost certainly will fight on the German side if England and France go to war. With the second half of that sentence one important State Department official disagrees and his views have support among some well-informed and experienced observers outside the Government.

May Be Difficult To Retreat Now

BEYOND THIS, information and conjectures based on it vary. There seems to be no escape, however, from the conclusion that Hitler is pushing the Polish issue to a point from which it will be extremely difficult for him to retreat. It may be, as some observers think, that he is ready to invade Poland. It may be, as some think he believes, that he can smash Poland within six weeks, that the Soviet Union won't fight, that he can then come to terms with the British and French. It may be, as some think Hitler is convinced, that the British and French will abandon Poland as they abandoned Czecho-Slovakia.

What is feared here, however, is that Hitler, as a result of past experience and ignorance of the characteristics of other peoples, is misjudging the British and French. The general conviction here is that both of these peoples are now resigned to war. The British are by nature phlegmatic and, by long experience in the practice of government and diplomacy, predisposed to compromise. But when they get set in the belief that their national and imperial existence is at stake their celebrated bulldog qualities assert themselves.

An alternative hypothesis is that Hitler may sense the risks but will take the supreme gamble because his military strength relative to Great Britain and France is greater now than it will be next year. Those who entertain this hypothesis expect to see Hitler drive into Poland as soon as he has satisfied himself that another "Munich" is not in the cards—probably within ten days or two weeks.

At best, the outlook is grim. Even if, happily, no general slaughter ensues, the Senators and Representatives who left Washington predicting blithely that there was no danger of war in Europe already look rather silly.

Refugee Committee To Meet in October

A meeting of the executive committee of the Intergovernmental Committee for Refugees, originally scheduled for September, will be held in October, the State Department said last night.

The date fixed by President Roosevelt was postponed a month. Setting of an exact date for the conference awaits the return of the President from the north Atlantic.

On The Record

By Dorothy Thompson

Not By Dostoevsky

HERMANN RAUSCHNING'S book, "The Revolution of Nihilism," * to which reference has already been made in this column, is now available in English. In view of the news from Europe, it has appeared at the right moment, and is, I should think, absolutely essential reading for all who wish to understand a crisis which is certainly not the crisis of Danzig, of Poland, of eastern Europe or of the Mediterranean but a crisis of Western civilization.

The blurb on the book cover calls it "The most important book on German Nazism since Hitler's 'Mein Kampf.'" I should think that is probably so. It is peculiarly interesting at the moment because Herr Rauschning was once the Nazi president of the Danzig senate.

It is a terrifying book and is not recommended to those who want to believe that things are going to settle down, differences be negotiated, injustices righted by contact between reasonable men. What Herr Rauschning himself thinks is not, perhaps, particularly important. But what he reports is of the greatest importance.

The shape of the National Socialist world revolution emerges according to a consistent pattern, with, however, possible alternate strategies as a means of achieving the same ultimate goal. The essential thing always to bear in mind is that this German program is not German in the ordinary sense of the word. It is a program designed by a clique of ruthless revolutionaries convinced that the entire existing structure of the world is doomed and that they will ride into world domination on a wave of history.

Having captured all the instruments of power in one state and that the most populous in Europe, they have a center from which to effect the reorganization of the world. War is implicit in this reorganization, but it is only one means. The revolutionary arm is recognized as a weapon no less powerful than the military.

Similar To Revolution Envisioned By Trotsky

HERR RAUSCHING does not say so, but the entire program bears a remarkable similarity to the revolution envisaged by Leon Trotsky, whose essential quarrel with Stalin arose over the latter's belief that socialism could be established in a single country and that the Soviet state could live alongside nations organized according to different conceptions. Italian fascism, in its early years, apparently also accepted the Stalinist concept of the limited national revolution.

Not so the Nazis. On the contrary, theirs is the "permanent revolution" envisaged by the most brilliant Communist mind. Herr Rauschning uses Trotsky's exact phrase to describe the Nazi concept of the total world revolution.

Furthermore, all the elements of Trotsky's revolution are present in the Nazi plan except the Marxist class-struggle concept. The Nazi revolution, appealing not to the workers, whose trade union organization and devotion to political democracy make them difficult to penetrate even with Communist organization, addresses itself to the "proletarianized" middle classes, who, being largely unorganized and discontented, are more susceptible to a new revolutionary propaganda. With this audience in mind its propaganda directs itself against "international capitalism"—but not against capitalism per se—and appeals to nationalism wherever that appeal is most effective with, of course, the old war cry of the Ku-Klux-Klan.

It is effective wherever nations conceive themselves to be "proletarianized" and "have not" nations. It is not effective in other cases, and in such other cases the propaganda takes an entirely different turn. There is no use, for instance, in appealing to the nationalism of the Czechs, the Poles, the Swedes or the Swiss, so in these cases the argument is economic—an invitation to federate themselves in a huge unit whereby they will become rich and their security be assured by a mighty protector.

Colonies Would Be Exploited Collectively

THE FEDERATION which they envisage has no relation, however, to any such concept as the federation of the United States, which is a balance of State and Federal powers based upon a Constitution and all resting upon popular representation, or to the federation of British commonwealths, which are actually sovereign states under the crown. In the new world which the National Socialists are preparing there will be a few great empires—a European continental empire dominated by Germany and including European Russia; for Italy, Mediterranean Africa, Asia Minor, French Africa and pan-Arabia; for Britain, her overseas empire, but with Britain ruled out of Europe; for Spain, a hegemony over South America; a North American empire, and an Asiatic empire ruled by Japan.

Colonies will be collectively exploited by the great empires, which will be organized according to the same ideology and plan. Smaller, now independent states will be absorbed as protectorates; political freedom based upon the individual will be eliminated; state socialism will be complete; the whole structure will be hierarchical, the biggest and most central empire being the overlord of all the others; the concept of the citizen, as we know it, will pass altogether, for the great empires will be the property of the great races, and all will be held together by a new Nietzschean religion, embodied in a priesthood of Elite Guards, maintained by an inquisition of the Gestapo and spread by Propaganda Cardinals—a total union of Church and State—with a new church which is the state.

Now, of course, this all sounds like a particularly violent paranoia, a dream of one of Dostoevsky's maniacal revolutionaries, in which National Socialism lays claim to the heritage of Rome, Charlemagne, the Christian Church and the dreams of Communist conspirators—an incredible synthesis of monopolistic state capitalism, revolutionary discontent, religious mysticism and Prussian militarism.

It is precisely because the concept is so boundless, of such gargantuan and ruthless imagination, of such a distorted genius even, that it succeeds, step by step, simply because very few people believe it!

New German Would Be Like Ancient Roman

PEOPLE ARE still discussing Danzig and the Corridor, and even Poland itself, as though they were ends instead of being merely pawns in the biggest game in all time.

Herr Rauschning tells us—and his authority is Prof. Hanshofer, a retired German general, now president of the German Academy—that this concept of world-wide reorganization is called "geo-politics" (geographical politics). Intensive settlement east of the Rhine is no longer the central aim of Nazi policy, he says. Germany today realizes the impossibility of agricultural colonization eastward. Anyhow, the new German is not to be a grubbing peasant. "Blood and soil" is a myth and a catchphrase, not a policy. The future of Germany does not lie in colonies of German peasants but in large-scale collective farming with the labor of alien races. The new German is to be a ruler, a soldier and an administrator, like the ancient Romans.

Nor has National Socialism been counting seriously on a great war. The idea is no longer the subjugation of France but a deal in which Britain and France, like Italy, will agree to take second place and allow Germany to organize the world.

The original slogan of "union of all Germans in the Reich" has been completely abandoned. Czecho - Slovakia demonstrated that and so do the new demands on Poland. Pomorze and Silesia are as Polish in population as Warsaw. The new slogans are "room politics" and "biological pressure."

Envisaged, according to Rauschning, are the movements of whole populations.

The eventual removal of the Czechs to Siberia has actually been discussed.

The strongest state will be the most populous.

What stands in the way of this dream is "greedy capitalism"—the attack on England now is that she is the international Jewish money-lender among nations—and a few backward and reactionary "democracies" who, being unwilling to undertake the organization of the world, yap futilely at the heels of the revolution which intends to do so.

The "renovating powers," as they call themselves, will take up the world mission which Britain is too old, feeble and stupid to want, which France is too underpopulated and amiable to desire ("we will relieve the French, a charming people, of every political task") and which the United States is too timid, provincial and disorganized to undertake.

Certain U. S. Will Soon Revolt

This concept is put forward by the Nazis as the "true" League of Nations in which the doctrine of race will combat the idea of equality, and German efficiency make international state socialism really work. It is the apothesis of the rule of force and privilege combined with the modern concept of social security. "It is," says Herr Rauschning, "not a world union but a world following."

Herr Rauschning says that there have been two concepts of military, diplomatic and revolutionary strategy in the campaign to achieve these ends—overland, along the Danube basin; southeast, through Turkey and India. The journalists who have been advising the world not to concentrate on Poland but to keep an eye on Hungary and Yugoslavia have been counting on this concept, but it collides with Italian ambitions. The other is the "geo-political" line—"Flushing to Vladivostok," which would divide Italy and England and mean the absorption of Poland.

Herr Rauschning informs us finally that the Nazis are certain that the United States will soon have a revolution. Their policy is to hold us aloof from Europe until we can be brought into the new world order.

It is fantastic to think it is in the light of such dreams that we must read the news from day to day.

The Once Over

By H. I. Phillips

The Man Who Wants To Hear What He Sees

I give you the portable radio toter. Outright. With waiver papers and everything. He is too deep for me.

Radio is radio and music is music. Programs are programs, and all that. But there ought to be intermissions.

Consider the portable addict. It is not enough to have radio in the house, the auto, the store and ye favorite tavern. It is not even enough to have two in the house. He must carry one around with him like an umbrella.

His cry is "Let there be cacophony with no time out for anything!"

His greatest fear is that he will be caught in a situation where he will have peace and quiet.

He is haunted by the horrible prospect of an hour with no static.

He is afraid of being trapped by tranquillity.

He dreadeth the idea of going some place for a rest and getting it.

He is chilled by the possibility of going away to get away from it all . . . and getting away from it all!

He totes his demi-tasse radio set everywhere he goes.

And this includes business conferences, weddings, dental appointments, Turkish baths and wakes.

He goeth to the seaside to hear Twipsey's Band Concert and takes his radio along so he can confirm it.

He goes to the prize fight to follow it with his own eyes and takes his portable so he can hear blow by blow what he has seen punch by punch.

He goeth to the ball game and with his own optics seeth the game broken up by a home run with the bases full, and taketh his portable set to verify what he saw.

He watcheth the first baseman trade blows with the umpire and he followeth the riot, but he keepeth his radio tuned in at his elbow just in case he is two other fellows.

He heareth the umpire bellow "Strike three!" and putteth his ear to his portable because he would rather be right twice than wrong once.

He goeth to the race track to SEE the races and takes his radio along to HEAR if what he sees is correct.

He wants everything double or nothing.

Verily, I thinketh he taketh his set to bed with him and attaches a microphone to the pillow so he won't miss a thing if he talks in his sleep.

I give you the portable radio addict. And you can keep him.

Tung Tree Cultivation Is Growing in U. S.

Tung oil, an important constituent of paint, although used for centuries by the Chinese, did not become a commodity of foreign commerce until the sixteenth century when Portugese traders accepted it with other merchandise. It was called China wood oil and the name still clings to it, as not until the year 1902 was any attempt made to produce it in America.

Now over 100,000 acres are under tung tree cultivation in our Southern States. The oil is obtained by crushing the nuts of this tree. China is still the source of about 99 per cent of our supply.

Gasoline Prices Gain Firmness as Crude Dwindles

Tulsa, Okla., Aug. 20. (AP).—Added firmness in the refinery gasoline market appeared near tonight with the opening of the first full week of the six-State crude oil production shutdown.

Another advance of perhaps one-eighth of a cent a gallon in gasoline prices at the refinery was predicted here in face of an estimated drop of 1,315,975 barrels daily in the Nation's flow last week.

The New Mexico Oil Conservation Commission ahnounced a public hearing for August 31 to consider extending the shutdown beyond that date.

Washington in Grip of Dog-Day Doldrums As Residents Adjourn to Spa and Sea; Those Who Stay Try to Get Away Week-Ends

By Elizabeth Henney

While Washington mopes in the grip of dog-day doldrums, the nearby resorts and spas are becoming increasingly gay with a sudden influx of smart Capitalites. Many have taken cottages for the entire season, and have settled down to sunbathing and listening to the swooshing waves. Those whose official duties make their presence in Washington necessary during the hot months, find occasional week-ends to dash out of town for a bit of a sea breeze.

Mme. Fotitch, wife of the Minister of Yugoslavia, and her daughter, Pola, just returned from Poland about a week ago with the Minister, but already they have taken a cottage at Rehoboth Beach and will be there for the remainder of the hot season.

Ralph Snowden Hill, taking his vacation late this summer, has left for York Harbor, Me., where he will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Legare. Later he will go to Bar Harbor, and will not return to town until after Labor Day.

Charles Edison Goes Fishing

The Acting Secretary of the Navy, Charles Edison, with a week-end to spare, gathered up a small group of cronies and took them on a fishing trip aboard his boat, the Milan. They left on Friday atnd returned to Washington last night.

In the party were Commander Ralph S. Riggs, who is Mr. Edison's aide; Al Jube, of New York, and Arthur Walsh. The boat is named after Milan, Ohio, the birthplace of the Acting Secretary's late father, Thomas A. Edison, the famous inventor, and was put at the Secretary's disposal when he assumed office as Assistant Secretary of the Navy.

The Chinese Ambassador, Dr. Hu-shib, who chose a mountain resort for relaxation, is expected back in town Tuesday or Wednesday from Blue Ridge Summit, where he has spent the past few days.

Capitalites Visit White Sulphur

White Sulphur Springs has drawn a number of Washingtonians lately, among them Mr. and Mrs. Francis S. Whitten, of this city and Miami Beach, who have leased the summer residence of Col. Arthur W. Little, of New York, for the remainder of the season.

Mrs. D. L. Moorman, Mrs. David Dulop and Miss Laura R. Dorsey, of Washington, are among those who have arrived at the Greenbrier for "Old White" and "Robert E. Lee" weeks, which began Sunday and continue through September 1. These weeks mark the peak of the summer season and events have been planned in tribute to the memory of Gen. Lee, who spent many summers there, and to the famous "Old White" Hotel, which was known throughout the nineteenth century as the "first" resort in America.

Senator Byrd A Beach Visitor

Virginia Beach, just whirling into its pre-Labor Day stretch of celebrations, seems like a bit of old Washington from a glimpse of the hotel registers. Senator Harry F. Byrd has made a series of visits to the Cavalier Hotel during the past week accompanied by various members of his family.

Representative Thomas C. Hennings, St. Louis, Mo., recently arrived at the Cavalier from Washington. Mr. and Mrs. William E. Schmid, of Washington, are recent arrivals at the Cavalier, as are Mr. and Mrs. William Fitts, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Keane, jr., Mr. and Mrs. William P. Arnold, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Sweeney, Mrs. R. G. Webster, accompanied by Miss Rita Joyce McCabe; Mrs. Orrell I. Ellis, Miss Frances Brown, Miss Sally Murray, Miss Bernadine Quinn, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Watson, Mr. George T. Walker, Mr. F. L. Jenkins, Mr. John Hayes, Mr. Arthur Bulger, Mr. Don Loftus, Mr. P. D. Hobbs, Mr. M. P. Canby, Mr. Robert G. Nixon, Mr. Monroe Warren, Mr. Ray T. Adams and Mr. Harold J. Clay, all of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. O'Toole At Cavalier

Mrs. Joseph O'Toole, of Washington, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Katherine O'Toole, a recent graduate of the Visitation Academy in Georgetown, has been sojourning for the past fortnight at the Cavalier. Mrs. O'Toole assisted by Miss O'Toole, gave a series of dinner parties at this hotel in compliment to a group of young ladies and midshipmen, including Midshipmen William T. O'Bryant and Stewart Bosl, both attached to the United States battleship Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Folliard, of Washington, with Robert, jr., and the Misses Kay and Patricia Folliard, are sojourning at the Cavalier Hotel. Mr. Folliard is an executive of the RKO pictures.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Edwin Ryan, Washington, recently celebrated the thirty-sixth anniversary of their marriage at the Cavalier.

Mrs. Katherine Herring, of Washington, is sojourning at the Cavalier with Mrs. B. K. Hutchinson, of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Talbott, of East Falls Church, Va., have joined the resort colony at the Cavalier Hotel, Virginia Beach.

Mr. H. Bruce Green, of Arlington, recently sojourned at the Cavalier, as did Mr. Charles N. Casey and Mr. P. O. Shepherd, also of Arlington.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Ward, and Mr. Kent Ward, Chevy Chase, Md., recently passed some time at the Cavalier Hotel, Virginia Beach, Va. Dr. and Mrs. S. J. Waddill, Miss Nancy J. Cramer and Mr. E. J. Mather, all of Chevy Chase, are recent arrivals at the Cavalier Hotel.

Fanny Carter Keith Visiting the T. M. Days At Plainfield, N. J.

MISS FANNY CARTER KEITH, of Warrenton, left Friday for a ten-day visit to New York. She will stay with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Day, in Plainfield, N. J., and will also visit her cousins, Mr. and Mrs. George S. Clay in Plainfield before she returns to Virginia. Miss Keith, the daughter of Mrs. John Keith, of Warrenton, and the late Mr. Keith, will be married to Mr. Francis P. Day, of Plainfield, the son of her host and hostess, on Saturday, August 23, at 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon, at St. James' Episcopal Church, Warrenton. A reception will follow at the Warrenton Country Club.

The wedding will be one of the most important social events of the month in northern Virginia. Miss Keith has selected as attendants Mrs. Hugh Reed, of Plainfield, and Mrs. Harrison C. Colket, of Ardmore, Pa., who will be matrons of honor, and as bridesmaids, Mrs. Melville Bearns, Mrs. Alan Day, Miss Virginia Randolph, Miss Virginia Bowman, Miss Sally Appleton and Miss Dorothy Montgomery, all of Warrenton.

MISS GRETCHEN THOMSON, of New Orleans and Summit Point, W. Va., is at Colonial Beach, Va., attending a house party given by Larry Williams at his parents' cottage there. Miss Thomson will go to Summit Point the last week in August to visit at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Thomson, and will spend the fall months there, at Berryville and Middleburg, where she has a score of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Vanderpool Clark entertained at dinner Saturday night at their home, Mount Defiance, near Middleburg. Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. Charles V. B. Cushman, Mr. and Mrs. Turner Wiltshire, Capt. and Mrs. Richard Kirkpatrick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sabn, Mr. and Mrs. T. Beatty Brown, Mrs. Hubert Phipps, Miss Elizabeth Gaddis, William Gordon, of New York, who is visiting his sister; Mrs. Phip s and Harris Bucklin, of Providence, R. I.

OTHER WEEK-END ENTERTAINMENTS included a dinner party given by Jack Butler at his home, Kelvedon Farm, Rectortown, in honor of his cousin and house guest, Miss Priscilla Macy, of New York. The guests, who, after dinner, attended the dance at Delaplane given by Miss Jane Green and Miss Dolly Lease, were Miss Mary Dougherty, Miss Georgia Herbert, Miss Jane Calvert, Miss Sally Marshall, Miss Mary Welby Plaskett, Miss Van Meter de Butts, Graham Dougherty, Frazier Dougherty, Sammy Marshall, Bryson Wood, Welby Wood, James Herbert, King Stone, jr., Aldrich Dudley and Carter Foster.

Mr. and Mrs. William Cooper Stevenson and their son, Willie Stevenson, have returned to their home, Eglinton, in Middleburg, after a visit of several weeks to his parents, the Rev. and Mrs. William P. Stevenson at Maryville, Tenn. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson McIlvaine, of Washington, son-in-law and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson, have been staying at Eglinton during her parents' absence. Mr. and Mrs. McIlvaine went to Downingtown, Pa., for the week-end to visit Mr. McIlvaine's mother, Mrs. Gilbert McIlvaine, and will return to Washington this morning.

MRS. COCHRAN HOBSON and her daughter, Miss Catherine Hobson, of Louisville, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cochran, at The Plains. Mrs. Hobson and Miss Hobson attended the dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. John Rawlings Saturday night in honor of Miss Polly Montague and H. Gwynne Tayloe, jr., who will be married in Middleburg, October 7. The party that Mrs. Shields McCandlish and Miss Nancy McCandlish, of Fairfax, were to give in honor of Miss Montague and Mr. Tayloe, Saturday night, August 26, has been postponed.

Miss Sundstrom, F. H. Froom Wed At Takoma Park

Father of Bridegroom Officiates at Rites; Honeymoon in Jersey

With the father of the bridegroom officiating at the 8 o'clock evening ceremony, Miss Margaret Elizabeth Sundstrom, of Takoma Park, Md., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sundstrom, of Elizabeth, N. J., yesterday became the bride of Fenton Henry Froom, son of the Rev. Leroy E. Froom and Mrs. Froom, of Takoma Park. The ceremony took place in the Takoma Park Seventh Day Adventist Church. Dale Hamilton sang, accompanied by Perlie deF. Henderson at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white marquisette trimmed with old lace, over satin, its long train having insertions of the lace which also formed the trimming on the short puffed sleeves. The bride also wore separate sleeves of marquisette from the elbow to the wrists. Her fingertip length veil fell from a coronet of pearls and she carried a shower bouquet of gardenias, roses and lilies of the valley.

Alberta Hodde Maid of Honor

Miss Alberta Hodde was the maid of honor wearing an orchid moire taffeta gown made with a sweetheart neckline and short puffed sleeves, the full skirt trimmed with two ruffles of the same material. She carried an arm bouquet of assorted summer flowers tied with ribbon to match her gown, and in her hair was a cluster of fresh roses.

The bridesmaids, Miss Eloise Froom, sister of the bridegroom; Miss Leona Albee, of Takoma Park, and Miss Mary Duska, of Woodridge, N. J., were dressed in gowns made like the matron of honor's in shades of light blue, yellow and pink. They carried mixed flowers. Little Fern Mae Gibson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Gibson, was the flower girl carrying a basket of rose petals and dressed in a pink organdy frock.

The best man was Henry Witzke while the ushers were Dr. Walcutt Gibson, Kemp Moore, Raymond Carey, Jack Carr, and Paul Carnig.

Reception Held In Home Garden

A large reception followed the ceremony in the garden of the bridegroom's parents' where the bridal couple received before the lily pool. Japanese lanterns were artistically arranged for the setting.

Mrs. Sundstrom, the bride's mother, received in an orchid crepe gown combined with lace, wearing white gloves and a corsage of sweetheart roses. Mrs. Froom, who wore the same kind of flowers, was in a light blue lace gown.

When the bridal couple left on their wedding trip, Mrs. Froom was wearing a light blue lace dress with white accessories and a corsage of gardenias. They will honeymoon along the New Jersey coast and return to Takoma Park after September 1, where they will make their home for a year. They plan to go to Loma Linda, Calif., where Mr. Froom will study medicine at the College of Medical Evangelists, after completing his third year at the Washington Missionary College here.

The bride, who attended the Washington Missionary College, was graduated in 1938 from the School of Nursing at the Washington Sanitarium.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Anna Colberg, of Glen Cove, Long Island; Miss Lillian Sundstrom, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Sundstrom, and Gustave Adler, of Elizabeth, N. J.

Married

Underwood & Underwood.

Mrs. Donald V. Potter, who until her recent marriage at the Woodside Methodist Episcopal Church, was Miss Mary Adele Lehman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul V. Lehman. The couple are making their home in Silver Spring, Md.

Mary Rollins Becomes Bride

Now on their honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. John Eldon Edgerton will make their home in Beverly Hills, Alexandria. The former Miss Mary Leone Rollins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Manning Rollins, of Messick, Va., and Mr. Edgerton, son of Mrs. James A. Edgerton and the late Mr. Edgerton, of Alexandria, were married Saturday at the Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church at Messick.

The Rev. William Bascom, of Alexandria, assisted by the Rev. Boyd Hudson, of Messick, officiated at the 3 p. m. ceremony. Mrs. Mitchell Rollins played the nuptial music and accompanied Mrs. Fred Koci, who sang.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a Mary Wynn model, princess style, fashioned of white satin. Her fingertip veil of illusion was trimmed with heirloom lace and she carried a white Bible with streamers of white satin and showers of lilies of the valley.

Miss Marguerite Rollins, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a cornflower blue marquisette frock over taffeta. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Bridesmaids were Miss Janet Sue Rollins and Miss Barbara Anne Rollins, nieces of the bride. They were gowned in blue organdie.

Justin L. Edgerton, of Washington, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man and ushers were Randolph Rollins, John F. Rollins, Harvey Herring and Fay Forrest, all of Messick.

Following the ceremony, there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents. When the couple left for the wedding trip, the bride was wearing a black and white sheer suit with white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The Earl Calhouns Fete Comdr. Thomas

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Clark Calhoun entertained at a cocktail party Friday in honor of Commander Robert E. Thomas, U. S. N., who is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith.

Also entertaining in honor of Commander Thomas was Mrs. H. B. Willson, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Marshall, at cocktails for him Wednesday, followed by a dinner that evening given by Mr. and Mrs. Donald Lathrom.

45 Take Boxes For Regatta In September

Robert Woods Bliss And Others to See Start And Finish

Of the 100 boxes available for the sailing and motorboat races to be held here September 16, 17, 22, 23 and 24, under the auspices of the President's Cup Regatta Association, 45 already have been taken. The boxholders include social and business leaders.

Among those thus assured of a place at the start and finish line of the races are Robert Woods Bliss, who with Mrs. Bliss is now at their summer home in Santa Barbara, Calif.; Keith Merrill, Theodore Noyes, Mrs. Christian Heurich, David Maxwell, Jonathan Bourne, jr., E. C. Graham, Floyd E. Rush, R. D. Caves, Minor Hudson, president of the Junior Board of Commerce, and chairman of the coronation committee, which will select a beautiful queen for the regatta; Aubrey Bogley and Mrs. Julius Manger.

William K. Ryan Among Boxholders

William K. Ryan, one of Capital society's most enthusiastic yachtsmen, who spends a large part of every summer cruising about in his handsome boat, has taken a box for the duration of the regatta events. All the chiefs of mission of the Diplomatic Corps will be invited, and one diplomat, Col. Vincent Coppola, Air and Military Attache of the Italian Embassy, has already taken a box.

Other boxholders include Gen. Albert L. Cox, who heads one of the committees for the regatta; Thomas P. Morgan, jr., who is in charge of promotion for the events; Mrs. Jean Bennett, William C. Shelton, B. Houston McCeney, John E. Ryerson, John A. Remon, president of the Regatta Association; Charles M. Trammell, jr., H. Gordon Edmonds, Thomas E. Lodge and Miss Elizabeth Amole.

Cocktail Parties To Be Features

Dinners and numerous cocktail parties—on board and on shore—will feature the regatta. On Sunday evening, September 17, there will be an open house and presentation of trophies at the Capitol Yacht Club. The climax of festivities will come with the President's Cup Regatta dinner on Saturday evening, September 23. As soon as a queen is selected, several entertainments will be planned in her honor. Festivities will end with an open house on Sunday evening, September 24, final day of the races, at the Corinthian Yacht Club.

A series of President's Cup Regatta luncheons will be held beginning Wednesday, September 6. The others will take place Monday, September 11, and Monday, September 18.

Budny Will Sail Home Tomorrow On Liner Batory

Michal Budny, Second Secretary of the Polish Embassy, will leave tomorrow for New York, where he will embark Tuesday for Europe on the liner Batory.

After three years of duty here he has been ordered to the foreign office in Warsaw.

Mr. Budny has made many friends during his stay in Washington and was feted at several farewell parties before his departure.

Maj. Allen Takes Arlington House

Maj. Frank A. Allen, jr., U. S. Cavalry, and Mrs. Allen have taken a house at 1421 North Twelfth street, Arlington.

Maj. Allen will be a student this fall at the Army War College. The Allens have just come from a tour of duty at Fort Riley, Kans. Four years ago they were stationed at Fort Myer.

Benefit Fiesta Planned

Mrs. Ann Boni Wickes, president of the Board of Lady Managers of Alexandria Hospital, will open her estate, Buenos Aires Villa-on-the-Potomac, on August 26 for a fiesta to be given for a joint benefit of the Alexandria Hospital and historic Pohick Church.

Your Figure Madame!

By Alice Hughes

Average Age Listed In 'Who's Who' 51, Diet Aiding Success

New York, Aug. 20.

WHO SAID it's the young man's world! In 1899, men became successful enough to have their names listed in "Who's Who" at the average age of 38, and in recent years the average age for inclusion has advanced to 51! At the same time, there has been a marked extention of longevity, with which diet has much to do.

The country is older, competition keener, it is pointed out in the sociological statistics of the famous register of the noted, and it is becoming harder all the time for a man to win recognition.

Usually Start at 23

While men are older by the time their names are included, they continue to give the age of 23 as the average at which they started their careers. That is the same as in 1899.

"Who's Who" is published biennially, and, according to A. N. Marquis, publisher, the average number of new names added with each edition is 2,500. The number deleted on account of death approximates the number of new names and the total remains at about 31,000.

Bachelors who subscribe to the theory that "he who travels fastest who travels alone" might be disconcerted to learn that at least one of the most famous men in this country took unto himself a helpmate at the age of 15, and the majority married at the age of 27—which is comparatively young.

Women Silent On Age

Eligibles for listing are divided into officials whose positions give them prominence, and those selected because of special prominence in creditable lines of effort. Women who make the list are on the increase. Of the total 31,000 names, about 6,200 women appear in the current edition.

There is a significant parallel in the fact that, along with the advance in the average age for success, there has been an extension in the prime of life. Scientific discoveries in nutrition have extended a man's prime by about ten years. The increasing importance given to milk, fruits and vegetables in the dietary is no passing fad—it has been proven to be the means to attain a longer period of vigorous activity.

Women appear to be somewhat more reluctant to give their birth dates than men—particularly if it is an actress who is still playing ingenue roles at the age of 35! Mr. Marquis tells us that the men do not seem to mind giving their actual age.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Never Having Met, Couple Fall in Love by Mail; Should Man Pay Girl's Way Here?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I read your column every day and I think you give very helpful advice. I am a man 29 years old and the girl I will tell you about is 22. I have never seen this girl. I got to know her through a mutual friend who comes from the same State. He is a very good friend of mine and he has known this girl all his life. I have been writing to this girl for more than a year and now I feel that I really love her. I have told her all about myself and, from what my friend says, she has told me the truth in turn. We seem to have much in common.

Now, this girl was supposed to have come here some months ago on a visit. But things did not turn out as she hoped, so she didn't come. But now she wants me to send her the money, which would be about $28, for one-way fare. She says if she can locate a job she will not go back. It happens that I am able to furnish her fare, and that I could also provide her a place to live until she finds work. But I want to know what you think about it. I do not want to do anything I might regret, later on. She is waiting for me to send her a ticket and I would appreciate an early reply. Sincerely yours, UNCERTAIN.

DEAR UNCERTAIN: If you were to bring the girl here, and she turned out to be a disappointment, you certainly would have backed yourself into a corner. In vew of your long-time tender exchange by mail, sight unseen, it would be difficult, indeed, for you to tell her that it had all been a mistake. And if she should prove to be as tenacious as her attitude implies, you might have a grim time getting rid of her.

Offhand, I should be inclined rather to distrust the ethical quality of that person who would solicit financial assistance from a romantic acquaintance (shall we say). However, the girl may be naively innocent of scheming intent. She may be, simply, ardently determined to fight her way out of the bottom of the well (in a manner of speaking), even at considerable cost to her pride. She may have reached the conclusion that your supposed mutual love is worth every sacrifice each may have to make, in order to translate it from a dream into reality.

If you wish to keep everything on the up-and-up and yourself in the clear, why not spend your surplus cash on a trip to see her? After you have seen her at first hand, and are somewhat acquainted with her background and family life, you will know—far better than anyone can tell you—just how much risk you would be running in bringing her to Washington for an indefinite stay.

You must consider that, in bringing her here, you would be incurring moral responsibility for her welfare while here. She is young, of course, and would be, I assume, virtually penniless. City ways are probably strange ways to her. She would be looking to you as chaperon and cicerone, and if she failed to measure up to your sentimental expectation, you would be in for a highly uncomfortable interlude. There is the added consideration, of course, that her parents or other relatives might strongly disapprove of the whole arrangement, and might hold you to blame for allegedly luring her from home. The more one weighs the proposition, the more ill-advised it seems.

M. H.

Where to Go and And What to Do?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a high-school graduate with some knowledge of clerical work and nursing. I manage to keep busy during the daytime, but durin the evenings I am free, with only the movies for entertainment. I haven't met many persons in Washington, and, therefore, don't get out much. Can you give me any advice which would make me happier? By that, I mean suggestions about interesting places to go and things to do. Thank you. UNHAPPY.

This Newspaper Offers Special Directory

DEAR UNHAPPY: Some months ago this newspaper prepared—for free distribution—a "Directory of Educational and Recreational Opportunities in this District of Columbia," compiled in tabloid form and issued upon request. Prepared under the supervision of the Adult Education Association of the District, and containing a brief foreword by Harold L. Ickes, the directory has proven so popular that it is now in its second printing. You may obtain a copy at Room 304, on the third floor of The Washington Post Building.

To read this directory even casually is to gain a new vision of Washington as a center of education, research, art, recreation and sports. It contains a "preliminary list of educational and recreational opportunities," of which it says: "This list does not exhaust the possibilities, but is suggestive of the many courses which exist (here) to enrich adult lives."

The index of study courses, for instance, begins with accounting and ends with zoology, running through a brilliantly diversified list of more than 500 possibilities—as for instance, bacteriology, badminton, calculus, dressmaking, Gaelic, pharmacy, typewriting, voice culture, volley ball and wrestling! M. H.

Miss Haworth will be gald to help you in solving your problems. Write her in care of The Post Woman's Page.

Cranberry Is New Lipstick Shade

Praises have been sung about apple blossoms and orange blossoms in the world of beauty, but have you heard about a new fashion accent called cranberry? A new lipstick shade for fall has been named cranberry. This lovely rich red shade can be worn by everyone with almost any shade of dress, excepting the plum and wine shades. It is especially alluring when worn with browns and cinnamon shades, beaten gold, blues and greens and blue greens.

Budget Frock for Busy Girls

Whether fall finds you entering marble halls of learning, dashing from vacation to office, or just puttering about the house, there will be need of a simple, becoming woolen like the one above. Although it may sound sacrilegious to mention a fabric heavier than batiste at the present, this all-wool jersey is really a find at any season. Not only is it a well-tailored sports classic, but it is priced well under $10. Its colors are the soft blue of a pigeon's wing, moss leaf green or the rosy red of Bermuda potatoes

A Woman's New York

By Alice Hughes

New York, Aug. 20.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—Manhattan tragedy. Most of the leaves have been knocked off Mr. Rockefeller's eight famous elms on Fifth avenue by the long-continued drought. Citizens here take this as a personal loss . . . .

The tall, stately and very social-minded Mrs. Vincent Astor is living out at fashionable East Hampton, Long Island, this summer. There's a woman who is really one of the outstanding citizens of this village. Her particular care is for unemployed musicians, and she toils for them year in, year out, with benefits and other practical measures . . .

Personally, myself, I think the wonderful little Bette Davis has topped herself in "The Old Maid".

New Yorkers are always interested in our popular ballplayers, and at present we are sentimentally agog over the romance of the San Francisco fence-buster, Mr. Joseph DiMaggio, of the Yankees, and the very pretty movie bit-player, Dorothy Arnold. They do say the couple will be spliced after Joseph pockets his next World's Series check—if he does. If not, they'll get hitched anyhow . . .

Towns around these parts simply love to celebrate anniversaries. For instance, they had a hot time up in old Sharon, Conn., the other day—the 200th birthday of the village. Of course, there was a peerade, and then Gov. Baldwin made a speech to the folks on the Town Common. Then the church ladies put out some fried chicken.

Did you read about that girl in Scranton, Pa., who completely lost her bathing suit while swimming in Newton Lake, and then tried to swim clear across to cover her embarrassment? Gallant canoeists hauled her out and lent her a coat. I've been waiting for such a tragedy to happen ever since swim suits got so skimpy.

Goose Livers With Rice, Says Greek Minister Sicilianos

By Martha Ellyn.
The Post Food Editor.

THE GRAND CROSS of Commander is worn by a member of Washington's diplomatic family. King George II of Greece awarded this honor in 1937 to Demetrios Sicilianos, the Greek minister to the United States. But four living persons are privileged to wear this coveted cross.

Mr. Sicilianos

Mr. Sicilianos is distinguished not only for the diplomatic services rendered to his country, both here and a number of European posts, but he is also an authority on Byzantine art. He is a collector of rare old embroideries, a linguist and one of Washington's most popular bachelors.

In his food preference the minister follows Greek tradition by choosing a rice dish, goose livers with rice. Rice dishes are very popular in his native land, where there are various kinds of pilaffs. There are only two substantial meals during the day—breakfast is very light, consisting of coffee and a roll or "crescent" and a large meal at 1 o'clock. Another important meal is served about 8 o'clock in the evening, when the pilaff is usually served. Sometimes between lunch and dinner a few pastries are eaten with a glass of water or milk.

The following recipe for cooking pilaff is one used by Mr. C. C. Pandelis, proprietor of the Salonika restaurant, London, who is a former chef to one of the members of the royal family of Greece.

Pilaff

Fry 1 cup of rice for 5 to 8 minutes in a little butter. Some rich stock is then added gradually, and it is simmered for 20 to 25 minutes, and then a few sliced tomatoes are added with salt and pepper. When properly done the rice should be only just moist and each grain detached from the other.

About 15 minutes before serving, tender, well-seasoned goose livers should be added to the rice.

Budgeting Aids Money Worries

SNOWED under by bills—a common complaint if you don't budget.

You may think, "A budget won't give me more money to meet them!" And it's true that a budget can't turn a salary of $1,500 into one of $2,000. But it does get your bills under control, it helps you to manage your money to get the things you really want.

You begin by keeping a month's record, putting down every dollar you spend under rent, food, household operating, clothing or personal items and good times. Keep a savings column, too.

Then when you compare your spending habits with model budgets for your income, you're ready to cut your "pattern" to fit your needs. You learn to cut items that are too high, add to items on which you've had to skimp too much.

On a salary of $125 a month, $28 is too much for monthly household operating. So you keep an eye out for leaks—watch lights and gas, mend tiny tears in linens, which can become big rents in the laundry! Cleansers, soaps you buy at sales. In such ways you may save $5 a month—and that adds up to $60 a year.

Moreover, you have that elusive item, household operating, where it won't suddenly shower you with unexpectedly large bills!

Likewise you plan and trim other items—rent, clothes, food—often getting better values. You may have in all $200 to $300 a year more for the things you want—a car, a nicer home, trips.

Send 15 cents in coins for our booklet, "How to Budget Your Income," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Daniel in the Lion's Den

MRS. GINK—And then there was this red-headed girl on the boat——

MR. GINK—You mean that little Patty?

MRS. GINK—Little! Why she weighed 140 pounds if she weighed an ounce.

HOSTESS—She probably had on a "little girl" bathing suit.

MISS TEAZLE—It's funny how men fall for that racket.

MR. GINK—No! That wasn't it! What I mean is, well—er, what I meant was, she was young.

MRS. GINK—Young!

FEMININE CHORUS—He! He! He!

MRS. GINK—Say, she wasn't a day under 28!

MR. GINK—Oh, now, she couldn't have been over 18—well maybe 19—just a child.

HOSTESS—She certainly must have had you vamped, Mr. Gink.

MRS. GINK—She had all the men insensible.

MR. KINK—No, No. Now let me explain——

MISS TEAZLE—They always fall for that red hair racket.

MRS. GINK—Well anyway, she was the talk of the whole boat—the way she carried on with this sugar planter.

MR. GINK—She really meant all right. She wasn't a bad kid.

MRS. GINK—Kid!

HOSTESS—Never mind, Mr. Gink. I understand how you feel.

MR. GINK—No! No! Now what I mean is——

MISS TEAZLE—Never explain, Mr. Gink. That's my motto.

MRS. GINK—Then there was this New York divorcee. She had a crush on the moon.

MR. GINK—What do you mean—the moon?

MRS. GINK—Don't you remember? She showed you the moon—out on deck one night?

FEMININE CHORUS—He! He! He!

MR. GINK—Well, the moon was very unusual that night.

FEMININE CHORUS—He! He! He!

MR. GINK—Say, I hardly knew this woman. What I mean is, she was all right—very sensible girl. She'd really had a lot of hard sledding——

FEMININE CHORUS—He! He! He!

MR. GINK—Say, now, you don't understand. What I mean is——

HOSTESS—Oh, yes, we understand perfectly, Mr. Gink.

MISS TEAZLE—Say, I hope you kept him away from all those South American sirens?

MRS. GINK—Well, there was one—of course, she was with her husband——

MR. GINK—You mean the one with the real black eyes?

MISS TEAZLE—See! He remembers her eyes all right.

MR. GINK—No! No! What I mean is——

HOSTESS—Say, just what is it those Latin women have, anyway?

MISS TEAZLE—That's what I'd like to know. What about it, Mr. Gink

MR. GINK—Oh, I don't know that they have anything. Of course, now, this woman had a very good figure——

MRS. GINK—She was about 20 pounds overweight. She was a fat slob.

MISS TEAZLE—I really believe men like 'em fat.

MR. GINK—No! No! No! Say, I didn't even know this woman. What I mean is——

HOSTESS—That's all right, Mr. Gink. We understand. Oh, say! Were there any Latin lovers on the boat?

MRS. GINK—Oh, yes! There was one particularly. He was a big sugar planter.

MR. GINK—They're all big sugar planters.

MISS TEAGLE—Don't be catty, Mr. Gink. Well tell us all about him.

MRS GINK—Well of course I didn't approve of him—he was very bold. But he did have a sort of fascination——

MISS TEAZLE—They all do.

MR. GINK—He was nothing but a gigolo.

HOSTESS—Now Mr. Gink, you're just jealous.

MR. GINK—No! No! What I mean is——

MRS. GINK—Well, this man—of course I had to put him in his place several times, but then I understand that their social customs are very different from ours—

MISS TEAZLE—Yes, of course, you have to make allowances—

MR. GINK—Ha! Ha! Ha!

MRS. GINK—What are you laughing at?

MR. GINK—Me! Oh nothing!

Baked Cucumbers

Baked cucumbers are a new delicacy but delicious. You slice the cucumbers in half the long way, scoop out the insides, season, cook like squash, then refill cucumber shells with this, cover with bread crumbs already toasted, put the whole thing in the oven just long enough to heat through and serve. This way the shells keep their bright green color and look as fresh as daisies.

Plumbers Strike Today For $1 Raise

Walkout Further Handicaps Building, With Sand, Gravel Men Still Off Job

Labor Department conciliators attempting to end Washington's sand and gravel strike, will have a second construction dispute to settle this week, officials of the Plumbers Union indicated last night, on the eve of a strike which is to call 300 plumbers from their jobs today.

The two strikes spell almost complete stopping of public construction here.

Ernest S. Ott, business agent for the union, a local of the A. F. of L. affiliated United Association of Journeymen Plumbers and Steamfitters, said today's strike followed a series of meetings with local union contractors in the Plumbers Guild, in which negotiations for a new contract were deadlocked.

U. S. Offers Aid

He said that Conciliator Howard T. Colvin, who has sought for a week to bring about a settlement of the Smoot Sand & Gravel Co. strike, had offered the Labor Department's assistance and that "there is not a doubt in the world" but that the Conciliation Service will be asked to help end the dispute.

Ott and Plumbers Guild officers were in agreement that the issue of the strike was a request for a raise of the daily wage from $12 to $13.

Ott said that several plumbing contractors had signed temporary agreements to keep the men working, and that "half a dozen more" had indicated yesterday they will be on hand today to negotiate similar arrangements, granting the $1 increase, pending a final settlement.

He estimated that the strike would affect the Juvenile Court, Police Court, Bethesda Cancer Hospital, University of Maryland, District Jail, St. Elizabeths Hospital, Gallinger Hospital, Morgue, Nurses Home, and Doctor's Hospital projects. He said the National Gallery of Art also would be struck today, although there was a probability work would soon be resumed.

Strike Voted Wednesday

The Plumbers Union voted to strike Wednesday, if the raise were not granted at a meeting Saturday. No agreement was reached.

Colvin declined to comment on the plumbers' strike yesterday, pointing out that the Labor Department had not entered the dispute. He expressed hope, however, that a settlement could be reached to end the walkout of 200 sand and gravel workers, which has made an estimated 3,000 workers idle on $54,000,000 in projects still in the concrete-pouring stage.

Colvin said he hoped to bring Smoot officials and leaders of the Sand and Gravel Workers' Union together "probably Tuesday."

John P. Shields, union official, yesterday denied that his organization had approved any temporary arrangement to resume work and insisted strikers would not go back to their jobs without an agreement for higher wages and shorter hours.

Mary Duley Dies at 96; Saw Early's Raid

Stood Near Lincoln As He Watched Battle Of Fort Stevens

Mrs. Mary Duley, member of a pioneer District family who saw her home destroyed in a Confederate raid on Washington, died yesterday at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Richard Crompton, at 1011 Maple avenue, Silver Spring. She was 96, oldest resident of Silver Spring, and had been in ill health since Easter.

Born on a farm which included the area now known as Petworth, Mrs. Duley was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McChesney. She often recalled scenes of the Civil War, and frequently described how her home was burned when the Unionists acted to save Washington from Gen. Jubal Early's assault at the Battle of Fort Stevens.

She remembered, too, standing near President Lincoln as he anxiously watched the outcome of the crucial battle.

Only two weeks ago Mrs. Duley heard a great-granddaughter describe the film "Young Mr. Lincoln." When the speaker came to the part where Mary Todd asked Lincoln to dance, Mrs. Duley spoke up. "And Lincoln said, 'I dance behind the plow.'"

Mrs. Duley lived in Washington most of her life, first at the Petworth farm, later in the Brightwood area. She went to live in Silver Spring 15 years ago.

Mother of nine children, Mrs. Duley leaves three, Mrs. Crompton, Mrs. Edward Jones, also of Silver Spring, and Mrs. Mary D. Sweet, of Chevy Chase, Md. Also surviving are 26 grandchildren, 41 great-grandchildren and 8 great-great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. in the Warner E. Pumphrey funeral home, 8424 Georgia avenue, Silver Spring. Officiating will be the Rev. Horace E. Cromer, pastor of Emory Methodist Church, of which Mrs. Duley was a lifelong member. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Practical Gospel Urged by Pastor

"A practical gospel" is the only cure "for the present confusion of many about the spiritual side of life," the Rev. Marvin S. Cooper, pastor of the Arlington Church of the Nazarene, said in services there yesterday.

In their efforts for a "direct approach to God," many persons think of Him in materialistic terms, "omitting Christ . . . and forgetting He is God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost," he asserted.

"Since there is one God, and one Mediator between God and man . . . there can be no other way of salvation than through Jesus Christ," the Rev. Cooper concluded.

Herndon School Work Is Pressed

The central heating plant for Herndon High School, costing $12,400, is nearly completed. Two additional classrooms will be finished when the school opens on September 7.

Construction of the improvements was financed by a PWA grant. The new classrooms will relieve congestion that has caused classes to be held in the school auditorium for several years.

Herndon Young Women Plan Benefit Dance

The Herndon Young Woman's Club will sponsor a dance in the Herndon High School Auditorium Friday night.

The committee in charge of arrangements includes Miss Alice Bready, Mrs. Thomas S. Kite, Miss Mary Hurst, Miss Roberta Anderson, Miss Willie Kirk and Mrs. Russell Gillette. Proceeds will be used for the Herndon Health Center clinic.

500 in Old Job Service May Get Merit Status

Security Board Puts Classification Up To Civil Service

A strong possibility 500 employes of the former United States Employment Service, transferred by the reorganization program to the Social Security Board, will be given civil service protection by noncompetitive examinations was seen yesterday by Civil Service Commission and SSB officials.

Almost all the employes are in Washington.

The SSB has submitted a brief to the commission arguing that, although the positions were exempt by the Wagner-Peyser act, creating the USES, now that that they are transferred to a classified agency they should be filled in accordance with civil service regulations. If this were done, incumbents would be permitted to take noncompetitive examinations.

Under the reorganization act, officials declared, all laws governing each agency affected are to remain in effect so far as applicable. The exemption for the USES, however, is believed to be inapplicable since the positions are now thoroughly intermixed with those in the SSB and an administrative impasse would result if some are civil service and some are not.

A decision by the commission is expected in a few days.

Civitan Outing To Be Held on Bay

The Civitan Club of Washington will hold its annual outing tomorrow at the estate of Martin J. Hysong at Broadwater on Chesapeake Bay, it was announced yesterday. Ashby Leeth, head of the outing committee, has arranged a program of softball, bowling, fly-casting, apple bobbing, horseshoe pitching and other sports. Phil J. Stach, who lives opposite Hysong, will maintain open house all day.

Czecho-Slovakians at Play Hope for a Free Homeland

District Czechs and Slovaks Gather For Picnic to Help Cause Abroad; Throng Encourages Vladimir Hurban

Even if Czecho-Slovakia is missing from the map of Europe at the moment, a singing, cheering fragment of it came to life again yesterday afternoon in a grove at Koday's picnic grounds, Hillside, Md.

Laughter and songs, the hum of accordion and a violin blended merrily under the trees, sounding like anything but the echo of a lost cause. The Unity of Bohemian Ladies, Czecho-Slovak Society of America and the American Czecho-Slovak Center, all of Washington, had the outing to help keep alive the idea of Czecho-Slovakian independence. The funds will aid the Czech-American National Alliance in carrying on the work.

Vladimir Hurban, still clinging to his title of Minister from Czecho-Slovakia, stood in the midst of the merriment and conversation, with his face sometimes sad and sometimes cheerful. Americanized Czechs gathered around him to say, "Don't give up." "You are right to hold on."

"We are confident that Czecho-Slovakia will become a free nation again," declared Dr. K. Cervenka, first secretary of the legation.

"Do most of these people believe that?" he was asked.

"Most?" he repeated the word, only to reject it. "Why, 100 per cent of them believe it!"

Under the trees the little band in shirt sleeves played Czech folk tunes. Rosy-cheeked Bohemians gave a twirl on the wooden platform and then paused breathlessly to eat kolacky, round coffee cakes filled with cheese.

Antoine Herl, portly tailor of 2112 Pennsylvania avenue, quaffing a glass of beer and beating time to the music, declared: "None of us will lay down before Hitler."

A tall young man, Emil Soukup, who came from Prague only two months ago, worked as a mechanic with the telephone company there through the crisis.

"Food was getting short when I left . . . and, of course, the Germans want to get all the business for themselves," he said through an interpreter.

Someone in the group mentioned "America." He picked up the word. "America—liberty!" he said.

Although his face looked grim, he nodded when someone took up the refrain that "Czecho-Slovakia will be a free country again some day."

"Look at these people. Every one of them believes that," declared Dr. Victor Neuman, of Washington. "The spirit is in the air. It's not something they argue about. It's just a universal feeling."

From Czech colonies in and near Baltimore and from Washington the crowd grew until more than 100 were gathered in the grove.

"It's not so different from the picnic we had near here in 1915," declared Joseph Swantner, of 2804 Connecticut avenue, pulling out an old picture of that former scene. "Back in those days before the World War was over, we did not know when independence would come to our country. But it came. And now—we do not know, but we believe, just the same."

The Czecho-Slovakian Minister, just returned from a fair at a Czech colony in Iowa and from a stop in Chicago, had another celebration in store after the outing was over. He and his wife celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary last night, she returning from New York just in time to do so.

If any doubts about the ultimate future of Czecho-Slovakia crept into the conversation at the outing, the lively music would have routed them. With Edward Joseph Hruby leading, the musicians dashed off one Czech air after another, saving the patriotic anthem, "Kde Domv Muj" ("Where My Homeland Is") for the end of the occasion, along with "The Star-Spangled Banner."

Most of the persons in the crowd were American citizens, but they realized that little gatherings like this might some day help bring their homeland back to the map.

As Dr. Gervenka summed it up, "In our other struggle for independence we looked to the United States for the idea of democracy. Again we look to her."

Capital News in Brief

Me and My Shadow

It seemed like a nightmare and for a while he thought the bottle might have had something to do with it, but officers at the Twelfth Precinct Station certified him as sober enough to drive when he told the story in the early hours of yesterday morning.

The nameless hero of this story had been sleeping it off in his parked car at Second street and Rhode Island avenue northeast. When he started off, his brakes seemed to drag, but he kept on going. At Fifteenth and Rhode Island he turned around and saw a car following, hardly a foot behind him. He speeded up, looked around again, and there was the same car, still just as close. At Twentieth and Rhode Island he looked back, and there was that car again. So he jammed on his brakes and got out.

Alone in the street, he saw the trouble. The bumpers of the two cars were locked. And there the scout car found him, bitter and softly profane.

Baby Lost 4 Hours

A frantic four-hour search for 18-month-old Stephen Kassel by his distraught parents failed last night, but the parents were happy. At 11:15 p. m. the Kassel maid walked up the street with the baby in her arms.

City-wide police look-outs were flashed for the child who left home with the maid at 4 p. m. and was still gone when the parents returned from Charlestown, W. Va., at 7 p. m.

Hot on the Trail

Detective Sergeant Richard Felber, recently promoted for his work in the milk investigation, spent most of an hour locating his suitcase yesterday, though it never left the custody of police.

The trouble started when a prisoner, whom Felber had brought back from Massachusetts, got too used to carrying Felber's bag for him.

While the detective filed his report at headquarters, the prisoner took the suitcase with him to the First Precinct Station, where he was to be locked up. Then while the station clerk sent the bag to headquarters, another officer shooed Felber to identify the bag as his own. So Felber went to the First Precinct, and the suitcase went to headquarters, and the laugh was on the detective.

Burglar Ties Up Girl

A burglar who calmly ignored the occupant of an apartment he was ransacking escaped with $4.25 last night after reprimanding his unwilling hostess for keeping so little money around.

Gertrude Howard, 28, of 1322 Rhode Island avenue northwest, was awakened by a rustling in another room of the apartment. Investigating with a flashlight, she found a thief ransacking the room. Despite her protests, the thief kept on with his search, and when she screamed, he tied her to the bed and continued the quest until satisfied that $4.25 was all he could get.

D. C. Students Get Degrees

Two Washingtonians are among the 540 students to receive degrees from Northwestern University at the end of the eight-week summer session, it was announced yesterday.

They are Norma Small Miller, of 520 E street northeast, master of arts, and William E. English, Fairfax Hotel, bachelor of science in education.

Evie Robert to Utah

Mrs. Evie Robert, wife of "Chip" Robert, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, will head a movie expedition into the Bad Lands of southern Utah this week to take travelogue pictures, the United Press reported last night.

D. C. Heads Invited To See 'Hail! Nero' At Sylvan Theater

The Summer Festival Committee yesterday invited the Commissioners of the District to witness a satire on modern dictators, entitled "Hail! Nero," at 8:15 p. m. Tuesday at the Sylvan Theater, Washington Monument Grounds.

The play will be performed by the East Washington Community Center Troupers, many times first-prize winners in the District of Columbia one-act play tournaments, who are making their first appearance at the Sylvan Theater. The Chevy Chase Dairy Band will give a concert before the performance.

Other civic leaders who are invited to be guests of the committee include Mrs. Henry Grattan Doyle and C. Melvin Sharpe, of the Board of Education's committee for the newly organized District of Columbia Recreation Department; Lewis R. Barrett, director of the District of Columbia Recreation Department; Dr. Chester W. Holmes, Robert L. Haycock and J. J. Crane, assistant superintendents of schools; Harry N. Stull, Evans H. Tucker, R. C. Goodhart, A. H. Gregory, Horace J. Phelps, Harry S. Wender, Mrs. Charles Ballard, Mrs. Martin N. Huff and Mrs. Ella Scott.

Earle W. English Dies in Arlington

Earle W. English, secretary-treasurer of the Arlington Motor Co., died yesterday at his home, 3320 North Pershing drive, Arlington. He was 43, and a resident of Arlington for the last ten years, having moved from Washington, of which he was a native.

Mr. English was a Mason and active in the affairs of the Kiwanis Club. He leaves his wife, Mrs. Elsie Mace English, and a daughter, Peggy Ann English.

Funeral services will be held at the home at 10:30 tomorrow. Burial will be in Columbia Garden Cemetery.

Bible Class Hears Talk on Drunk Driving

Traffic Bureau Chief Likens It to Robbery And Similar Crimes

Drunken drivers are more menacing to the community than the much-publicized gunman, Capt. Milton D. Smith, head of the Police Traffic Bureau, declared yesterday.

"Drunken driving should be placed in the same category as carrying concealed deadly weapons, assaults, robbery and similar crimes," he told the Congress Street Methodist Harrison Men's Bible Class, of which he is a member and in which many police and firemen are enrolled. Fire Chief Porter, vice president, presided. Maj. Brown, another vice president, is vacationing.

Capt. Smith quoted statistics from Southwestern States indicating that 18.4 per cent of auto drivers involved in fatal accidents had been drinking. He said a New York City traffic judge showed that 20.4 of pedestrian deaths were caused by the pedestrians being under the influence of alcohol. Retired Inspector William Harrison, president of the class, was among almost 100 men who heard the talk.

Bishop Hughes Preaches

Man's selection of a personal creed must embrace a "complete vote" of heart, mind and will, Bishop Edward Holt Hughes told a large congregation yesterday morning at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

Paying his first visit to the historic former Southern Methodist Church since unification, the now resident Bishop of the Methodist Church said "man must give his mind a single vote, his heart a clean vote, and his will a deciding vote, bringing all of his nature to service." He was Bishop of the Washington area of the original Methodist Episcopal Church.

"Imperfect human fellowships are at the base of all the suspicion and fear abroad in the world today," the Rev. Edward Gabler, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Navy Yard, said yesterday at the Washington Cathedral.

Envoy Visits Greek Churches

Addressing the people's evensong service as guest cleric, the Rev. Mr. Gabler said that the only hope for the world rests in putting into practice the virtues of kindness, love, goodness, charity, generosity and mercy, "the foundation stones of the Christian faith."

Vassilios Papadakis, Greek Ambassador at large now on a country-wide tour, yesterday visited the Greek Church of SS. Constantine and Helen, Sixth and G streets southwest, and St. Sophia's, 1103 Eighth street northwest, to greet the parishioners and priests.

He remained only a few minutes at each place, and hurried off to keep an appointment in Baltimore. He has visited various Greek communities and the New York and San Francisco fairs.

Cass, White House Aide, Best Police Shot in Tourney

John J. Cass, of the White House police force, won the trophy for the highest individual score at the eighth annual International Police Pistol Shoot yesterday in Teaneck, N. J.

Cass, according to the Associated Press, scored 998 points.

The White House police lead all Federal police service units with a team score of 1,180 points. Greensburg, Pa., State police took first place in the shoot with 1,191. New York City police were second with 1,190.

Youth Missing, Aunt Halts Hunt For Girl Friend

The mystery surrounding the disappearance Saturday morning of a 16-year-old Washington newsboy heightened yesterday as the aunt of his 16-year-old girl friend asked police to abandon a search for the girl.

But the father of William C. (Billy) Smith, jr., of 5100 Fifth street northwest, asked police to continue the hunt for his son.

At about 7 a. m. Saturday Smith, who is an accountant with the income tax unit of the Internal Revenue Bureau, found that Billy had disappeared during the night with the family car and his German police dog, Tim.

Police were told that the girl disappeared at the same time. She attends Central High School.

N. Y. Banker, D. C. Native, Dies at 48

Short Hills, N. J., Aug. 20.—George Lippitt Lewis, 48, died today at his home here.

Mr. Lewis was born in Washington, the son of the late William Chandlee Lewis and Anna Lippitt Lewis, and lived there until he went to the officers' training camp at Fort Myer when the United States entered the World War. He served in France as lieutenant with the 312th Infantry. He joined the Bankers Trust Co. in 1920 and was made trust officer in 1928.

Surviving are his widow and a son, Lawrence, a student at Kent School. Funeral will be at 2 p. m. Tuesday.

7,000 Yield As Rain Wins At Watergate

Crowd Stubborn, But Forced to Leave; Concert Deferred Until Tonight

By John Chabot Smith.

Rain won the battle at the Watergate last night—a sudden torrential rain, unscheduled by the Weather Bureau, that fought for half an hour with 7,000 stubborn, hopeful music-lovers before they gave up and went home.

The National Symphony Orchestra, directed for the second time by Guy Fraser Harrison, had barely finished the second number on the program before the rain began, in heavy drops that brooked no argument.

The curiously involved melodies of Debussy's impressionistic prelude, "The Afternoon of a Faun," were fading when the rain fell. An agitated rustling of raincoats and snapping of umbrellas drowned the last calm chord, and as the shower broke into a downpour, the applause died in the rush for shelter.

Hardy Souls Keep Seats

While several hundred hardy souls, used to Watergate showers, kept their places under umbrellas, Manager C. C. Cappell cast a mournful look at the driving rain and summoned a conference of conductor, guest artist, and concert master.

"This can go on all night," they agreed, and Harrison recalled the bad omen of the next number on the program. "The Sorcerer's Apprentice," which is the story of a lad who started the water running by a magic charm and then couldn't stop it.

It was then announced through the amplifiers that the concert would be postponed till tonight, when the same program will be played under the same conductor with the same guest artist, the Finnish pianist Reino Luoma.

Then They Went Home for Sure

A short break in the rain a few minutes later brought thousands back to their seats, only to find that some of the musicians were already leaving.

"Shame," cried the audience. "We want music." Hopefully and defiantly they began to applaud. But suddenly the rain swept down again in still greater torrents, and the music lovers dashed once more for shelter. Even the hardiest deserted their posts under this new attack, and the last water-filled canoe, whose four occupants had dared the storm under the protection of a transparent parasol, cut loose from the barge ropes.

Trade Practice Code Is 'A 'Code in the Head'!

Motion Picture Industry Stymied by Government; Disney Announces 'Pinocchio' for New Year; News Notes and Gossip of the Theater

THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY, at the moment, may be said to have its hands full. Ordinarily, the production of a sufficient number of worthy pictures to supply the public demand has been enough to keep the major producers, and most of the independents, occupied. Now they are not only occupied, but pre-occupied.

BELL

For years now, the industry has been ruminating over the formulation of an internal practice code that would be satisfactory to all factions involved, including the United States Department of Justice. The best minds and foremost legal counsel in the film industry have been working on the formulation of such a code for more than a year. Its final draft—or what was hoped would be its final draft—was recently submitted to the Attorney General's office. A week-end bulletin is to the following effect:

"The trade practice code proposed by the majors and completed after months of laborious negotiation was declared illegal by the Department of Justice with a public statement issued in Washington on Thursday morning. The release included a letter from Thurman Arnold, addressed to the code conferees, in which he declared the document based on an unlawful structure and reiterating his insistence on divorcement of production and distribution from exhibition."

This is equivalent to an edict that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the Warner Brothers, Paramount and all of the other companies that have played a part in developing the motion picture industry into one of the leading commercial enterprises of the country either will have to stop making and distributing motion pictures or cease to own and operate theaters in which they may be shown.

To the lay mind this is tantamount to a declaration that the film industry must be completely disjointed if not totally wrecked. To the legal mind it may mean something entirely different. I seem to recall that the Standard Oil Co. once was told by the government to dismember itself and has been going great guns ever since. If it happened once, it might happen again.

But all of this preoccupation on the part of the master minds cannot but have its effect upon the one factor in the business that most directly affects the greatest number of people—some 80,000,000 a week of them—and that is the concentration on good pictures and the one thing the industry was developed to create—entertainment.

Or am I crossing a bridge too soon?

We guessed 1,000 per cent on Col. James Jeremiah Lake's plans for the new season at the Gayety, but will bat only .500 on their fulfillment. The good Col. Lake drops word that his temple of frivolity will open, as stated here, on Sunday, September 3, and was to have had Ann Corio as its first star of the season, but announcement was withheld owing to the critical illness of Miss Corio's mother. Word has just been received that Ann's mother failed to survive and was buried on Tuesday of last week. A close friend of the family, Jimmy has advised burlesque's famous beauty to defer her appearance until she has fully recovered from her bereavement. Star and cast of the Gayety's inaugural attraction will be announced later.

The boys and girls on both sides of the footlights are in for another busy week at the Earle. So great is the public clamor to see Bette Davis, Miriam Hopkins, Jane Bryan, et al., in the Warner Brothers picturization of "The Old Maid," that five de luxe performances will be given daily throughout the remainder of the engagement, instead of the four customary, except over week-ends. This means that doors will continue to open at 9:15 a. m., with the first showing of the picture at 9:30—just a few minutes past bedtime for some of us.

If the calendar and the clock could just get together, they could be doing practically the same thing down at the Mount Vernon open-air automobile theater, a few miles below Alexandria on the Richmond highway. Manager Irving Shapiro called up and reported in short pants last Thursday night that he had just broken all midweek attendance records with 964 cars, bearing approximately 3,000 customers, passing the gates to see "Nothing Sacred." Business was holding up last night for Gary Cooper in "The Adventures of Marco Polo." This open-air venture has been so successful that I understand E. M. Loew is planning another one for the other side of town for next season, if that is not spilling the frijoles.

Stanley Barlup, the efficient assistant manager of Loew's Palace Theater, presided over by Signor Orangelo Ratto, the "Mayor of F Street," is doing a fortnight's managerial pinch-hitting at the Loew house in Wilmington, Del. He got a nice break in the bookings with "The Wizard of Oz" opening right under the du Pont noses on Friday. What a picture! But Stan says he misses my favorite Hains Point breeze, at that. So did I the last time. There wasn't any.

Speaking of screen fantasy—as we were indirectly in that mention of "Oz"—word comes along from Janet Martin, of the Walt Disney organization, that the Technicolor production of "Pinocchio" will be released the first of the year. It will have to step a little to beat "Snow White." Anything of the sort, following 'Snow White,' has two called strikes on it before ever being seen on a screen.

Afterthoughts on "Going Native"

This year's principals in the Capitol's seventh, annual, all-Washington revue get on and off and take their bows more like professionals than any of their predecessors in the series . . . Particularly Robert Youmans, Marjorie King, Evelyn Foster, "Miss Washington of 1939," and little Dot Walsh . . . Miss Foster, by the way, bears a striking resemblance to Joan Crawford . . . Or am I wrong? . . . Her toe-dancing gives her a better chance than usual in next month's Atlantic City "Miss America" pageant . . . Talent counts as much as looks down there . . . The "line girls" have their lines, too, no kidding . . . Shapely lot . . . Sylvia Kaplowitz' Accordion Septet is more than fulfilling the hopes of last year, when it was barred out at the last minute by that asinine "child" labor law . . . Wonder how George "Cotton" Crouch, Warner executive, feels about his daughter Bernadette's hit on an opposition stage? . . . You will have to look close to discover any stage fright anywhere on the bill . . . But who wants to be Columbus to a mess of the fidgets, anyhow?

That Violinist-Pugilist Now Fights on the Screen

A MOMENT OF TENSENESS IN "GOLDEN BOY"
Barbara Stanwyck, William Holden, Adolphe Menjou and Joseph Calleia, reading in the usual direction, as they appear in Columbia Pictures' filmization of the Clifford Odets stage hit, coming next to the screen at the Warner Brothers' Earle Theater. Louella O. Parsons

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Aug. 20 (1939).—Kay Francis planed in from the East with such a bad summer cold that she has been confined to her Coldwater Canyon home ever since she returned. She has an engagement to talk terms with Gene Towne for the lead in "Swiss Family Robinson." He already has Tim Holt and Freddie Bartholomew signed.

LOUELLA PARSONS

Marriage has certainly proved lucky for Louis Hayward and Ida Lupino. Both of them have had better breaks the last year than at any time during their careers. Young Hayward is being sought by Warner Brothers for the role of Edgar Allan Poe. It looks fairly definite that he will do it before "My Son, My Son." Ida has created so much interest with her performance in "The Light That Failed" that Edward Small is negotiating with her for "South of Pago Pago" opposite Jon Hall.

Chatter in Hollywood: Connie Bennett, who has been curiously secretive about her divorce from the Marquis de la Falaise, finally met up with him in Europe and according to a close friend, preliminary negotiations have been started. Rumor which Connie has never denied is that the marquis is demanding that she divide her property according to the community property laws both in California and France.

Thirteen years ago August 23, since movie fans all over the world mourned the passing of Rudolph Valentino. Next Wednesday the Valentino Memorial Association will meet at the Hollywood Cemetery Chapel where Fred Niblo, one of Rudolph's directors and friends, will deliver a brief eulogy. Let us all hope that there will be no reoccurrence of the "Mysterious Woman In Black" publicity which marred so many of the services in the past.

A line or two: The whole country will soon be doing Fred Astaire's version of "Begin the Beguine"—or I miss my guess. Fred talked M-G-M into planking out a pretty penny to use the song hit in "Broadway Melody of 1940" and he's created the new dance which he'll introduce with Eleanor Powell . . . Willie Wyler spent the week-end on Long Island trying to convince Lillian Hellman and Herman Shumlin that Sam Goldwyn's offer of $100,000 is plenty for "The Little Foxes." But Shumlin still wants $225,000 and is coming out to the Coast to try to get Sam to see it his way . . . Alan Dinehart has turned author and written a stage comedy, "Behind the 8 Ball," with Joe Carroll. Ida Lupino and Louis Hayward are reading it and may decide to star in the local presentation . . . You have to hand it to Lupe Velez. She's nothing if not ambitious. Come September 15 Lupe takes off on a world tour with a beef act consisting of her two sisters (Spanish dancers), a rumba band and, of course, Lupe herself as the chief firecracker.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Cobina Wright, jr., has had Hollywood's best dancer, Cesar Romero, as her escort these last few evenings; wonder what happened to Isabel Jewell and Owen Crump; her new heartbeat is a Mohammedan prince by the name of Bey Hadji Selimovitch; Edna Best, on the high seas returning to England, is expected back in the fall with her daughter to make her home here permanently; Anatole Litvak has gone to New York to see Miriam Hopkins which ought to stop divorce rumors; Allan Jones has been commanded to give a performance before the King and Queen October 18 so he and his bride, Irene Hervey, will take themselves to London; heartwarming was the birthday dinner given in honor of Gus Edwards Friday night. Mervyn Leroy, Sid Grauman, Eddie Cantor, Harry Rapf and Dr. A. H. Giannini on the reception committee, welcomed Gus' friends.

Eda Mastbaum, widow of the Philadelphia theater magnate, is heading for Hollywood on her annual visit.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow.

The New Yorker

By Leonard Lyons

By Erna Anderson

(Famous European figure skater, who is today's guest columnist for Leonard Lyons.)

IT IS STRANGE for a little Norwegian girl who has never been to America before to be writing a guest column for Leonard Lyons, and a little bewildering, too. I have never done anything journalistic, although several of my friends in England, where I have skated many times, are writers. But I will try, because it is so wonderful to have the opportunity to say in print what I have felt so many times about this marvelous America.

I HAVE lived in England at various times because of my appearances there and am told I speak rather good English. This always pleases me because I have tried so hard to learn. I learned to skate and ski at the age of 4. In my country children learn to do these things almost as soon as they learn to walk. Afterward, my mother had me take lessons in swimming, to aid in gracefulness. There were lessons in the ballet, too. And always hours and hours of practice in ice skating and figure skating.

YOU SEE, the people in my family have always been good skaters and skiers and mother wanted me to be even better. She was wise, indeed, because nothing in the world do I enjoy as much as skating. Being a figure skater is like being in love always. The excitement of the crowds, the heart-uplifting thrill of winging on the smooth ice, the spotlights and the pretty costumes—all these make you feel like an exalted person.

THEN THERE are the joys of traveling to new places. I have skated in Paris, Brussels, Stockholm, London and most of the lovely continental cities. And there have been the thrills of command performances before the British royal family and the Swedish royal house.

In London they starred me in several ice ballets, and there the ice ballets are as popular as musical comedies and the theater here. That is where my ballet training was so helpful. And there were ice pageants—real plays given with the ice as a stage.

DURING THE periods I was not performing, I returned to Oslo to my family. Once, I skied behind an airplane, itself equipped with ski runners. That was on Lake Landesen and it was like flying behind a great bird. But my father put a stop to that.

I came to America for the first time in April of this year to skate at the New York World's Fair. It has been wonderful, just as being in America has been wonderful. This feeling for America is rather hard to describe, but I will try. Perhaps you who have always lived here will think it surprising that one should be so struck by this country. Perhaps it is, but it is a feeling I have had since I stepped off the ship that brought me from England.

AMERICA is so vast. As soon as I unpacked my baggage after my arrival I went out to buy some maps. I bought one of the United States and one of New York. First I looked at the former, with an American friend I had met in Stockholm at my side. As my finger traced its way across the map from east to west, she explained to me what the cold, indifferent lines on the map meant.

She explained it in terms of the loveliness of New England, which I have since seen; of the coal and steel of Pittsburgh and the great Mississippi, of the waving fields of wheat and corn in the Middle West, of the sun and warmth of Florida, the deserts of the Southwest and of the Rockies, where there is such good skiing. It was like putting all of Europe into one country and I could hardly believe what I saw and heard. Now I have one great ambition—to take a train or drive an automobile across the United States and see all this for myself. When the World's Fair is over this fall, I intend to do that. It will be as exciting, I am sure, as my first skating competition.

THEN there is New York. Oh, what a city! In my spare time once I took a boat trip around Manhattan and it is a sight to make one shiver with delight. I have been accustomed to tall buildings, but nothing like this did I ever see. So many of them and so tall! Like a stone forest. And the shops, what marvelous shops! Fifth avenue is like a paradise created especially for women. I live near the fair, but many times I go to New York just to look in the windows and see the jewels and the furs and all the lovely things that all women desire. Sometimes I buy gifts for my folks back in Norway.

PERHAPS I should not say this, being an athlete, but I love New York's night clubs. Of course, I must get plenty of sleep, so I do not stay late. But they are so exquisitely decorated, so sumptuous looking. And the music!

Already I have learned to rumba, although it is a rumba, I am sure, with a Scandinavian and not a Latin touch. I do not drink, of course, but I do not need to drink to feel a little light-headed in these gay, light-hearted places.

ONE of the most amusing things that has happened to me since I arrived was the selection of my legs, my sturdy skaters legs, as the "Legs of Tomorrow." I was dumbfounded when I heard about it. A committee of artists, and they included Bradshaw Crandell, James Montgomery Flagg, Dean Cornwell, Arthur William Brown and John La Gatta, said that I had them.

But there you are, it is but one example of how delightful America can be to a stranger. First it thrills you with impersonal things like skyscrapers and then with such a heartwarming gesture.

AND because everybody asks me anyway, I might as well say here what I think about American men. They are so unbelievably gallant! They are so kind and considerate and always say the right thing at the right time. Believe me, please, American women are most fortunate.

Oslo, if this be treason make the most of it Thank you, Mr. Lyons.

Swiss Family Gives Studio Staff Headache

Story Confab Proves Horses and Blondes Sometimes Forgotten

By Frederick C. Othman

United Press Hollywood Correspondent

Hollywood, Aug. 20.—Jokes are legion in Hollywood about the production conference, where the boys are supposed to talk about their hoss race bets and the beautiful blonde they met night before last.

So we sat in today on a production conference for one of the outstanding movies of the forthcoming season, and we came out with our head swimming—and not over horse races or blondes. We never saw so many men thinking so hard in our life.

The scene was RKO Studios. The picture was "The Swiss Family Robinson," set to start next month. The experts on hand were Gene Towne and Graham Baker, the producers; William Ludwig, the director; Sam Ruman, his assistant; Sid Rogell, studio manager; J. R. Crone, production manager; Walter Ferris, the scenarist; Maj. Ramsay Hill, technical director; Walter Daniels, assistant producer; Darryl Silvera, set decorator; Verne Walker, special effects man; Van Polglase, art director, and Perry Ferguson, his assistant.

A Book and $2,000,000

What these gentlemen had was a famous book—and $2,000,000 with which to turn it into a movie.

What they were worried about was how to get their money's worth. Under discussion was the island, upon which the Swiss Family Robinson will be marooned.

"I want an island that looks like paradise," Towne announced weeks ago. "Okay, give me $500,000 and I'll build it for you." Polglase replied.

So he took the $500,000 and started building. Paradise now is in the blue print stage. It will cover eight acres on the RKO ranch, and will include a river, rapids, waterfalls, beaches, caverns and $27,000 worth of greenery.

Studio plasterers now are in the Redwood Forest, near Santa Cruz Calif., taking casts of the bark of the trees for reproduction in Paradise. An expedition is about to start for Mexico for giant ferns and orchids and other tropical flora.

Two fishing sloops are cruising near the Galapagos Islands, seeking a few 600-pound turtles, as demanded by the script.

Play's the Thing

"We're working on the theory that the play's the thing," Towne said. "We're looking for actors who will fit the story, and not vice versa. If big names fit, so much the better. If not, we won't worry."

The session broke up with Ludwig, Ruman, Daniels and Ferguson heading for the ranch, to see how much ocean they'd have to build to fit their lsnad—and how to build it. Rogell went to his office to fire some cables to the camera crew in Jamaica, taking background shots.

Walker locked himself in his laboratory to decide how to make a storm at sea in the center of the San Fernando Valley; Maj. Hill went to the library to consider the fauna of Paradise; Towne and Baker got in touch with actors' agents, and Ferris went out to play some golf.

"The script is finished—I hope," he said.

In Hollywood

With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, Calif., Aug. 20.—What with the column, "Brenthouse" on the air every Saturday, guest spot with Bob Burns, I had nothing to do. So took a part in "Listen Kids," which should be called "Four Grandmothers." It's for New Universal. It's new, too. Because Marjorie Rambeau, Janet Beecher, Cecil Cunningham and I got beautiful bowls of flowers from Producer and more from Director Al Rogell. That never happened at old Universal.

HOPPER

But evening of the first day I felt as though an elephant had sat on me. We went into a song and dance routine with curtseys thrown in. Hadn't used my bowing muscles for years—no royalty in my life. It's a funny idea. Four old girls from the theater put up $5,000 each to spend the rest of their days in an old ladies' home, only to have it fold under them. Then we put on a show with kids in a son-in-law's night club which saves him, ourselves, and the day. But that didn't save our pride and tired legs.

We've been trying for years to appear young, then go into an old ladies home—in a picture. They told us we didn't look old enough. "Listen, mister, a hard life put these lines in our faces, and we're not going to add more," said we.

Marjorie Rambeau's a riot. Plays a Baby Snooks dressed like Hope Hampton, pink bows and all. Janet Beecher whispered: "You don't think Marjorie is overdoing it, and they'll think she's an idiot, do you?" I had to find out why Marjorie came back to the screen after her happy marriage to a rich man. Said Marjorie: "I never learned to play. Was no good at bridge, golf, tennis or swimming. His friends looked at me with pity. So for a year I did needlepoint, and wept. Even now when I look at that needlepoint I want to fight it. Then hubby said: 'Go get yourself a picture. We'll both be happier'" Marjorie added: "You know, Hedda, we've worked so hard we've had no time to develop an inner peace. Now it's too late." She's got something there.

Then Cecil Cunningham reminded me that she was Wolfie's prima donna in "Iolanthe" when we were married. I said: "Yes, and do you remember a verse he had to sing in that? And because of it we kept our marriage secret until end of the run." Wolfie, as the Lord Chancellor sang:

"For I'm not so old, and not so plain,
And I'm quite prepared to marry again,
But there'd be the deuce to pay in the Lords
If I fell in love with one of my wards."

Poor Robert Cummings. There's an older actor by same name. The other night when Bob came home late from work his wife greeted him with, "And where were you last night, too?" She'd read of a gay party at the Troc where Robert Cummings had taken a glamour gal and wouldn't believe that he had been working. So she left him. Studio finally straightened it out for Bob.

W. C. Fields has gone and hired himself a trainer, and every morning can be seen a-puffing and a-huffing up and down Bel Air roads. When he appeared at a conference with bear grease on his hair, Lester Cowan ribbed him. "Well," said Bill, "I'm trying to convince you guys I should win Mae West at the end of picture. And how can I do that bundling scene unless I build up my sex appeal?"

Trans-Lux

The world under arms is the keynote in the fast-moving news section of a top-notch bill at the Trans-Lux theater this week.

The greatest mobilization of American land forces in four years is seen in action. Uncle Sam's forces are well trained, according to Gen. Drum, but the equipment isn't what it should be—all sounding familiar with the return of Gen. Pershing, who speaks in similar vein.

For Europe the war scare is real, with Germany's official "Siegfried Line" in constant rehearsal, while Italy practices a "Thunderbolt Attack." Great Britain drills its conscript army, and France is on her toes at the "front." Stanley Baldwin pleads for the life of democracies, Ralph Guldahl wins the Dapper Dan golf tournament, the King and Queen of England enjoy a day at a boys' camp in Scotland. F. D. R., on vacation at Campobello, N. B., holds a press conference and advance Thanksgiving Day date a week, the raising of the Squalus, and a new submarine rescue device for Great Britain's navy, all are covered in the news.

The travelogue takes you to Jerusalem and unfolds the historic scenes of the land of Biblical days in Technicolor. A camera visit to the Library of Congress urges a visit to this treasure house of rare and great American documents. "Sea Food" depicts the life and background of the Scotch fishermen and Walt Disney supplies "The Pointer," featuring Mickey Mouse and Pluto.

New Stage Bill Packs the Atlas

Stage entertainment has caught on with a vengeance out northeast way.

They were rug-cutting up and down the aisles at the Atlas Theater yesterday afternoon to the tunes of George Berg and his Swingsters and in time with the "Jitterbug Sextet," six hepcats who turned the matinee into a solid jam session.

Paul Rich, known as the "Wizard of the Harmonica," stopped the show with his intricate arrangements of classic and popular numbers. Masters and Rollins had the matinee crowd in stitches, with Masters whipping the performance at a hot pace as master of ceremonies—or should that be Masters of ceremonies?

On the screen, the feature of the early-week bill was Gene Autrey, singing cowboy, in "Colorado Sunset," paired with Laurel and Hardy in "Way Out West."

*X WASHINGTON: MONDAY, AUGUST 21, 1939 13

Nats, Red Sox Split Twin Bill Before 27,000

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

Lou Ambers fought under the name of O. Paradise for a year . . . in his first professional bout, Ambers substituted for one Otis Paradise and scored a quick knockout . . . the victory was mistakenly credited to Paradise and Ambers, wishing to cash in on his triumph, accepted future fights in Paradise's name . . . the Italianized version of Ambers' name is, incidentally, unpronounceable . . . joke of the week was the stories from Ambers' training camp to the effect that Jack Dempsey was helping him with his defense for the Armstrong bout tomorrow . . . Dempsey has never before been accused of being an authority on defensive boxing . . . his idea of defensive fighting was always a two-fisted attack . . . one thing is certain about the fight tomorrow night: The largest ovation will be raised for Dempsey who will be making his first public appearance since defeating that Greek, Peritonitis, at Polyclinic Hospital.

POVICH

Ted Williams is the most refreshing character to move into the big leagues in years . . . he is the antithesis of Charley Keller, the Yankees' prize rookie outfielder who is Williams' only challenger as the outstanding recruit of 1939 . . . Keller, close-mouthed and on the surly side, will never be a popular character . . . Williams exudes color in his every action of his loose-jointed self . . . Williams confesses that he wants to be a hitter like Joe Jackson, whom he never saw but has heard about . . . he asks every old-timer in baseball how Jackson stood at the plate and how he hit . . . Williams made eight straight hits against the Washington pitching in Boston last week, but in his last 20 times at bat at Griffith Sadium during the last three days he made only two blows . . . the fact that the Washington club loaned Jimmy Wasdell to Minneapolis paid dividends to the Nats in the bidding for Jimmy Pofahl, the Minneapolis shortstop . . . Mike Kelley, Minneapolis owner, favored the Nats against the Cubs and Red Sox in the bidding.

Pros vs. Collegians

The psychological advantage will be with the College All-Americans against the New York Giants, pro football champions, at Chicago on August 30 . . . the pros do not get an even break in the pregame ceremonies which feature the Collegians and whip the college boys into a high competitive pitch for the game . . . last year Coach Ray Flaherty of the Redskins squawked loudly that the pros were given a bad deal . . . "They introduce the Collegians one by one under the spotlight before the game," said Flaherty, "and then they introduce the pros as a squad It may sound absurb but the fact is that the pros are not encouraged to reach the same high mental pitch as the collegians" . . . forward passes won for the collegians last season and on that basis they should defeat the Giants this year, because both Davey O'Brien and Sid Luckman will be in the Collegians' backfield . . . the pros, three or four years older than the Collegians, are not in the same physical condition as the All-Americans at that stage of the season, and Flaherty has vowed that if the Redskins ever get in another All-Star game he will build his team for that night around his recruits who are just out of college ranks.

The Cincinnati Reds remind us of nothing as much as the okapi, the Congo animal which, according to zoological authorities, can look in two directions at once . . . they are looking longingly at the National League pennant and at the same time gazing apprehensively at the second-place Cardinals . . . "Are we men or Mize?" said Johnny Mize yesterday as he hit a home run for the Cardinals to help beat the Reds in the second game of the double-header . . . do you remember Johnny Vander Meer? . . . it seems he pitched two no-hit games in succession last season and this year he can't get anybody out except himself . . . Doc Cramer, of the Red Sox, the only registered pharmacist in big league baseball, runs at least 500 miles every winter on his New Jersey farm . . . where he is a professional trainer of fox hounds and actually keeps up with them in their trials cross country. Buck Ross, who beat the Yankees yesterday for the Athletics, worked for $3,000 a year last season as a rookie pitcher.

Menu for Johnstown

The suspicion is that they should serve Johnstown a menu with his races . . . so he can order up a track to his liking . . . the famous Travers Stakes became a joke affair after Johnstown scratched out due to the muddy track . . . where was Eight Thirty when they were staging the Preakness and the Derby . . . the field for the Pimlico Special is now shaping up nicely with Johnstown, Challedon, Eight Thirty, Kayak II and Sun Lover to be invited . . . it will be the race that will decide the 3-year-old championship beyond all dispute . . . race-track operators count on 1 per cent of all moneys bet through the mutuel machines as their approximate share of the "breakage" due to the fact that they pay off to the nickel rather than to the penny . . . Frank G. Menke, the former sports writer who authored Menke's Sports Record Book, will succeed Matt Winn as general manager of the Churchill Downs track whenever Mr. Winn retires . . . Menke was one of the original ghost writers, grinding out the literary efforts of Jess Willard, Jack Johnson and Babe Ruth.

Joe Grimm, the original iron-man of the prize ring who died over the week-end, was knocked down 20 times by Jack Johnson but was never knocked out . . . in another fight he arose from the canvas 14 times to stay the limit . . . the expression "batty" is derived from punch-drunk fighters' habit of batting their eyes as they talk . . . Clark Griffith visualizes Jimmy Bloodworth and his new $40,000 shortstop, Jimmy Pofahl, as the finest double-play combination in the American League . . . inevitably they will be named the James boys . . . Jimmy DeShong won his first start for the Newark Club after being farmed out by the Yankees, and will be recalled if the Yanks find the going hard in September . . . Rival American League club owners will squawk loudly this winter when the Yankees buy First Baseman George McQuinn from the Browns which, of course, they will do.

Miss Barnett Wins Women's Parks Net Title

Seymour Greenberg, Of Chicago, Takes Men's Championship

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 20.—A couple of "upsetting" youngsters, Marta Barnett, of Miami, Fla., and Seymour Greenberg, 19-year-old Chicagoan, walked off with the National Public Parks singles tennis championships today.

Given virtually no regard in title calculations, Miss Barnett took the women's crown by trouncing the highly rated Mrs. Marjorie Blair, of Santa Ana, Calif., 6—2, 6—1, and Greenberg outlasted Leonard Hartman, of New York, 6—2, 5—7, 6—2, 4—6, 6—2, to capture the men's championships.

Scores in Doubles

Miss Barnett later teamed with Mrs. Catharine Sample, of Miami, and won the women's doubles crown, turning back Grace Rothberg and Eveline Kemptner, of New York, 6—1, 6—0. The men's doubles title went to Julius Heldman and Willis Anderson, of Los Angeles, the No. 1 seeded pair, who swept through Irving Gurman and Max Bloomfield, of Detroit, 6—3, 6—3, 6—3.

Miss Helen Germaine, a former singles titleholder, and Jesse Greenberg, of New York, teamed to win the mixed doubles crown with a 6—0, 7—5 victory over the Blairs, Marjorie and Walter, of Santa Ana.

Only Champ to Score

Anderson was the only successful defending champion. He won the doubles crown in 1938 with Elbert Lewis.

In the men's singles semifinals Hartman, runner-up for the title in 1933, had defeated Phil Rubel, Brooklyn mailman, 6—1, 7—5, in a match shortened to the best two out of three sets by mutual consent, and in the women's semifinals, Miss Barnett had raced through Mrs. Merceina Parker, of St. Louis, 6—4, 6—1.

In the semifinals of men's doubles, Heldman and Anderson won from Gene Quinn and Herb Mertz, of Chicago, 6—0, 2—6, 6—4, 6—4, while Gurman and Bloomfield put out Wayne Smith and Ward Parker, of St. Louis, 5—7, 7—5, 7—5, 6—4.

Women's Golf Qualifying Carded Today

Medal Record of 76 Expected to Stand Up On Long, Wet Course

By the Associated Press

Darien, Conn., Aug. 20.—Because the long, up-and-down hill Wee Burn Club course is still drying out after a 12-hour rain, it appeared today that the medal record of 76 in the women's national championship will stand safe from all attack when the 18-hole qualifying round of the forty-third championship is played tomorrow.

In today's final practice rounds, the course was considerably longer than it had been while Pam Barton, of Britain, Fay Crocker, of Uraguay, and Mrs. Estelle Lawrson Page, of Chapel Hill, N. C., were going around in the low 70's. It took Mrs. Page, the 1937 champion, an approximate 80 this morning, which was the chief reason she went out again in spite of the broiling sun that shone this afternoon.

That record 76 was fired six years ago at Exmoor by England's Enid Wilson. If it's even equaled tomorrow, it will be a good trick, and Leo Mallory, the Wee Burn pro, is confidant that the lowest score returned by anyone in the field of approximately 200 will be at least a shot or two higher.

If Patty Berg, the Minneapolis freckle-face, were on hand to defend the title she won last year at

JIM ROBINSON

Foggy Bottom Heavy Meets Robinson in 10-Round Affair

Marty Gallagher, Foggy Bottom's Rip Van Winkle, will start his attempt of what appears as the impossible tonight when he makes his comeback debut against Jim Robinson, of Philadelphia, in the 10-round feature fight at Griffith Stadium.

In the fight game, Marty can easily qualify as a Rip Van Winkle although he waited two years instead of 20 for this latest comeback attempt. Thirty years old, Gallagher will be giving away nine years in age to Robinson tonight.

District Pilot Sets Power Boat Record

John L. Hyde Drives Gypsy Lass at 52.173 M.P.H. in 135-In. Class; 5 Other World Marks Fall; Auerbach's Helper Wins Both Features

By the Associated Press

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 20.—John L. Hyde, jr., of Washington, D. C., established a 135-inch power-boat record, one of six new world marks set today as the two-day program of the ninth annual National Sweepstakes Regatta came to a close on the North Branch of the Shrewsbury River.

Hyde's Gypsy Lass sped at 52.173 miles an hour in the first heat but lost the championship to Edison Hodges, of Atlantic City, who won the last two heats.

Stocky Tony Pezzillo, of Atlantic City, mechanic for S. Mortimer Auerbach, took over the boss' job and won both feature races.

Pezzillo, driving Emancipator III, a 225 cubic-inch hydroplane, won only one heat in six. His second places in the three 15-mile heats of the King's trophy race, however, brought him 825 points and the award.

Hamlin, Jr., Sets Mark

Chauncey Hamlin, jr., of Buffalo, N. Y., sent his Voodoo III across the line first in the first heat at 6 .176 miles an hour for a new world record.

The national sweepstakes, also three heats of 15 miles, went to Pezzillo, who finished second in the first two heats and first in the last heat.

Arno Apel, of Ventnor, N. J., winner of the national 91-cubic-inch title, slipped over the north branch of the Shrewsbury River at 48.361 miles an hour in the first heat of 5 miles for a new world mark.

D. C. Man Third

Tony Lazzeri Makes Debut As Pitcher

Montreal, Aug. 20 (AP).—Old Tony Lazzeri's legs may have given out, but his arm hasn't.

The veteran infielder, who played regularly with the New York Yankees for a dozen years and then skidded out of the majors into the managership of the Toronto Maple Leafs in the International league, made his debut as a pitcher today.

LAZZERI

After the Montreal Royals had scored seven runs in the second inning off Bill Werr, Lazzeri took over with two on and none out. He hurled for five innings, giving eight hits and three bases on balls. He had only one bad inning, the sixth, when the Royals scored four times to win, 13 to 4.

Grand American Skeet Event Opens

Vandalia, Ohio, Aug. 20 (AP).—America's premier clay target marksmen finished their tune-up events today and set their sights for tomorrow's opening championships in the fortieth annual grand American trapshoot program.

P. O. Harbage, 40-year-old West Jefferson, Ohio, farmer, broke 200 in a row to beat 200 shooters for the open championship today, while H. S. Shellito, 43-year-old Ames, Iowa, bookkeeper, took the last of the preliminary events, the 100-target handicap, with 99 of 100, after a 50-target shoot-off with Art Stifal, Casey, Ill., merchant. A field of 280 fired in the handicap.

Five championships and the qualifier for the East-West team match will be decided Monday as the 1,000,000-target, five-day title program gets under way. The big barrage winds up Friday with the Grand American Handicap, top event in the trapshooting sport.

Primo Wins Argentine Heavyweight Title

Buenos Aires, Aug. 20. (U.P.).—Eduardo Primo, of the Argentine, today won the heavyweight championship of South America from Arturo Godoy, of Chile, when the latter was disqualified in the eighth round for striking a low blow.

Cards Thump Reds Twice to Narrow Lead

Cincinnati Margin Cut to 3½ Games By 7-1, 7-5 Defeats

By the Associated Press

Cincinnati, Aug. 20.—The Cincinnati Reds crumbled before the St. Louis Cardinals' express in a double collision today and the Reds' lead was slashed to 3½ games before 28,432 fans.

Johnny Mize hit his twenty-first and twenty-second homers and batted in six runs in the second game to give his mates a 7-to-5 victory after the refueled Gas Housers battered Bucky Walters in the first for a 7-to-1 win.

This was the seventh double-header victory for the Cards this season and gave them a sweep of the series. Yesterday's game was called in the ninth because of rain with the score tied at 3-3.

Fans First Three Reds

Slaughter's single scored Pepper Martin in the first inning of the first game. Weiland struck out the first three Cincinnati batters and the Reds failed to reach first until the sixth inning, when Craft singled and later came home on Joost's hot safety to tie up the game.

An eighth-inning grand rally broke up the evenly matched duel between Weiland, the winning pitcher, and Walters, who left the field still seeking his twenty-first victory.

The Cardinals went to bat in the eighth when the Reds went haywire. Stu Martin, batting for Lary, walked and Weiland was safe when his tap near the pitcher's box was thrown too late by McCormick. Pepper Martin loaded the bases with a single and Brown singled in two tallies. Pepper Martin scored when Werber muffed Billy Myers' throw of Medwick's bounder. Werber's finger was injured on the play and Lew Riggs went to third.

Three Straight Balls

After Padgett was purposely passed to load the bases again, Walters lost his control and fed three straight balls to Terry Moore. This was the setting when Milburn Shoffner, who flew here from Boston to join the Reds last night, came to the hill.

His first pitch as a Red walked Moore and forced in a run. Stu Martin popped out to end the inning.

In the second game two singles and a sacrifice scored one St. Louis run in the first inning of the night-cap.

Mize, the league's leading slugger, homered with two aboard in the third. With two out in the sixth, two singles and a walk loaded the

White House Police Score in Pistol Shoot

Teaneck, N. J., Aug. 20 (AP).—The Greensburg (Pa.) State police piled up 1,191 points to win team honors in the Eighth International Police Pistol Shoot which concluded here today.

One point behind the Pennsylvanians, who annexed team laurels for the second straight year, came the New York City police with 1,190.

The White House police, of Washington, scored 1,180 points to lead the United States Service units.

Ann Hardin Victor In Women's 3-Mile Swim

Clementon, N. J., Aug. 20 (AP).—Ann Hardin, a pretty 15-year-old miss from Louisville, Ky., won the senior national 3-mile swimming championship for women today at Clementon Lake Park in the record time of 1 hour, 20 minutes and 15.7 seconds.

Bob Johnson's Homer in 6th Beats Gomez In Opener; Steve Sundra Wins Seventh Straight in 2d Game, Giving Only 5 Hits

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 20.—Steve Sundra subdued the Philadelphia Athletics on five hits in the second half of a double-header today to win his seventh straight game, 5 to 1, and give the World Champion Yankees an even break after losing the opener, 5 to 4.

The undefeated right-hander received adequate batting support from the Yanks, who clustered two runs in the sixth and three more in the seventh when Red Rolfe hit his second home run of the day and eleventh of the season.

Rosar Gets Four Hits

With this exception, all of New York's hits in the nightcap were singles, Buddy Rosar getting four in four chances, plus a pinch-single in the first game for a perfect day at the plate.

Philadelphia's only run came in the fifth on Dick Siebert's double, a single by Bill Nagel and a sacrifice fly by Joe Gantenbein.

Siebert also led the successful attack in the opener, hitting a home run behind Frank Hayes' double in the second and scoring Bob Johnson on a single in the fourth.

Gehrig to Return To Mayo Clinic For Examination

Chicago, Aug. 20 (AP).—Lou Gehrig, erstwhile slugging first baseman of the New York Yankees, left by train this afternoon for Rochester, Minn., where he will undergo a routine checkup at the Mayo Clinic.

GEHRIG

This will be his first return trip to the clinic since his illness was diagnosed as a form of infantile paralysis two months ago.

"The doctors at the clinic will check my condition," Gehrig said," and see what progress I'm making. It's just routine and I expect to rejoin the Yankees in Chicago Tuesday night."

Gehrig retired as the team's regular first baseman early this year and shortly thereafter went to Mayo's for the diagnosis. He still travels with the Yankees but spends all his time in the dugout.

Cobb's Racer Set For Speed Dash

Bonneville Salt Flats, Utah, Aug. 20 (AP).—An atmosphere of confidence tonight enveloped this desert camp where John Cobb's crew prepared the 2,600-horsepower car in which he hopes to break the world's land speed record.

Cobb, a London fur dealer, hopes to make his lightning dash between the salt flats' measured mile markers Tuesday morning. "We will definitely go then," he said. "If the weather holds good and other circumstances remain favorable."

The Londoner's goal is 360 miles an hour or 6 miles a minute, at the least.

George McQuinn's Brother Signed By Detroit Club

Another young McQuinn is ticketed for the major leagues, it was learned yesterday. Kenneth McQuinn, younger brother of the St. Louis first baseman, George, who is one of the American League's brightest recent "finds," yesterday was promised a contract by the Detroit Tigers.

Kenneth, star shortstop of the Ballston A. C. nine with which George attracted attention of big league talent hunters, was given a binder by Zinn Beck, Tiger scout, at a double-header between Ballston and the Georgetown Athletics, and was promised a contract in September. He is to report to Detroit for spring training next season.

Sam Breadon, Owner of Cards, Injured in Fall From Horse

St. Louis Club Boss Suffers Head Cuts And Broken Thumb

St. Louis, Aug. 20 (AP).—Sam Breadon, owner of the St. Louis National League baseball club, was seriously injured this afternoon when he was thrown by a horse he was riding at his farm at Fenton, about 15 miles southwest of here.

Suffering from head injuries and a fractured right thumb, he was brought to a (St. John's) hospital here. Dr. Robert F. Hyland, the club's physician, attended him.

Leonard Wins 14th In Opener

Krakauskas Hit Hard in Nightcap; Joe Cronin's Error Costly in First Game

By Shirley Povich.

Dutch Leonard, who has won 14 games this season, and Joe Krakauskas, who will soon be bidding for his fourteenth defeat, functioned in true to form fashion yesterday as the Nats split a double-header with the Red Sox. Griffith Stadium's largest crowd since the opening game, a shirt-sleeved mob of 27,000, sat in on the great divide.

In masterful fashion big Leonard and his knuckle ball shut out the Red Sox, 2-0, in the first game and built the 27,000 up to the let-down by Krakauskas who pitched the Nats into a 10-5 defeat in the second half of the program.

But it was a faithful mob which was whooping it up as late as the eighth inning of the second game when the Nats, trailing by 9-2, made motions as if to tie the score and forced the Red Sox to use three pitchers in the inning until Joe Heving made the game safe for Boston by causing George Case to pop up with the bases full.

Fight Pitcher's Duel

Leonard's game was the happy item for the huge throng which filled the grandstands, overflowed the runways and railings, and spilled 6,000 of their number into the bleacher seats. It was a tight duel in which Leonard outpitched Jack Wilson and Joe Heving and protected the 2-0 lead the Nats gave him in the first inning.

Rather it was Joe Cronin who gave Leonard his two-run lead because it was a wild throw by Cronin which figured directly in both of the Nats' runs. With George Case on third base after opening the inning with a two-bagger, and two out, Cronin heaved Taft Wright's third-out grounder past Jimmy Foxx into the Washington dugout, and Case scored while Wright reached second. A single to center by Travis scored Wright with the second and last run of the ball game.

Leonard held the Red Sox to seven hits while Wilson and Heving were limiting the Nats to six. But only in the fifth and sixth innings was Leonard in danger of losing his fourteenth victory of the season. Joe Vosmik opened the fifth with a two-bagger and was wild-pitched to third before anybody was out, but he was cut down at the plate when he attempted to score on Tabor's grounded to Travis.

Nat's Defense Brilliant

The brilliant defense the Nats threw up behind Leonard's pitching served him nobly after he entered the ninth with a four-hit game in his possession.

The Red Sox packed three hits into the ninth inning but were unable to score because Rookie Bob Prichard and Jimmy Bloodworth turned in sensational plays.

After Foxx opened the ninth with a single, Prichard grabbed Williams' hot drive and converted it into a first-to-second-to-first double play. Cronin and Vosmik followed with singles to put the tying runs on base again, but Bloodworth then went far to his right to snatch Tabor's grounder and throw him

Chisox Nose Out Indians in Tenth, 6-5, on McNair's Single

7th Straight For Chicago; Brown Wins

Clint Supplants Rigney in Ninth as Tribe Ties Score; Dobson Is Loser

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Eric Monair's tenth-inning single gave the Chicago White Sox a 6-5 victory over the Cleveland Indians today—and their seventh consecutive triumph.

The decision increased the Sox' third-place margin to 4½ games.

Clint Brown, making his forty-seventh mound appearance of the season, got credit for the victory after relieving Johnny Rigney in the ninth, when the Indians tied the score on four hits.

In the tenth Jeff Heath's double and singles by Ken Keltner and Roy Weatherly sent the Indians ahead. In the Sox' half Mike Kreevich doubled but was caught at third on Luke Appling's infield grounder. Larry Rosenthal drew a walk and both men advanced on Joe Dobson's wild pitch. Then came McNair's game-winning single.

Browns Defeat Detroit, 6 to 2

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Aug. 20.—A group of fans honored Buck Newsom today as he made his first appearance here since the St. Louis Browns traded him last spring, but his erstwhile teammates paid him no respects as they pounded him for a 6-to-2 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The second game of the scheduled double-header was postponed when a heavy rain swept the field.

Hank Greenberg, Tiger first baseman, who was benched last week because of a batting slump, hit a triple and his twenty-second home run of the season. Harlond Clift hit his twelfth homer for the Browns.

Vernon Kennedy, who came to the Browns in the Newsom deal, held the Tigers to five hits.

Newsom was presented with a diamond ring in a special baseball design.

Third Baseman Bill Nagel of the Athletics was banished by Umpire Steve Basil in the sixth inning of the game for arguing that George Selkirk had been tagged when he stole third.

The Philadelphia team also staged a mass debate with the arbiters later in the same inning when Umpire George Pipgras ruled Joe Gantenbein, at second base, hadn't touched Buddy Rosar in a double play attempt.

Touring American Trackmen Beat French Before 12,000

By the Associated Press

Paris, Aug. 20.—The touring American track team took 11 of 13 first places to wind up a two-day international meet with France before 12,000 spectators today.

The Americans were outclassed in both distance events. Blaine Rideout, of North Texas Teachers, dropped the 1,500 meters to Normand, and Ralph Schwarzkopf, of the University of Michigan, lost the 2-mile run to Rochard, who bettered his own French record in finishing in 9:03. The old mark was 9:21.8. Schwarzkopf's time was 9:8.2.

Rideout, who has been running into bad luck throughout the European tour, hugged Normand closely to the turn, but was unable to follow the final spurt with which the Frenchman broke the tape at 3:57.6.

In the other track and the field events the Americans, who yesterday ran the 3,200-meter relay in 7:35.2, six-tenths of a second faster than the world mark, had no trouble with their French opponents. Schwarzkopf, Rideout, Roy Cochran, of Indiana, and Charlie Beetham, former Ohio State star, made up the relay quartet in yesterday's world record run.

Giants Beat Phils, 8-4; Lose 2d, 3-2

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, Aug. 20.—An eighth-inning crackup by the Giants' infield gave the Phillies the second game of a double-header here today 3 to 2 after New York took an easy 8-to-4 victory in the first.

The second was a defeat for Carl Hubbell. A double by Gil Brack with the bases loaded in the eighth gave the Phillies the winning two runs.

Hal Schumacher outpitched Walter Beck to win the first game. For seven innings it was a hurling duel with New York leading 3 to 2. In the eighth and ninth innings, however, the Giants pushed over five runs to win.

Max Butcher Captures Nightcap After Bucs Drop 12th in Row, 9-5

By the Associated Press

Pittsburgh, Aug. 20.—The Pittsburgh Pirates' 12-game losing streak, the record for the current National League season, was halted today by the combination of Max Butcher and Pennsylvania's 6 o'clock (E.S.T.) Sunday baseball law.

After dropping the first game of a double-header 9-to-5 to the Chicago Cubs, the Pirates rallied behind the two-hit hurling of Butcher to win the nightcap 5-to-0 and give the former Phillie finger his first victory since coming to Pittsburgh in midseason.

The second game was called in the sixth inning because of the Sunday law. A shower had interrupted the contest earlier.

In the first game five Pirate hurlers tried in vain to halt the banging bats of the Cubs, while Claude Passeau won his twelfth victory of the season, although he gave up 11 hits. Passeau, Glen Russell and Manager Gabby Hartnett hit when it counted to drive in all the Cub runs.

Elbie Fletcher, Pirate first baseman, homered in the fifth inning of the nightcap with outfielder Johnny Rizzo aboard. Dizzy Dean pitched to two batters in the Pirate sixth. The first, Fern Bell, tripled and then scored on Paul Waner's long sacrifice fly.

Anacostia Publinks Team Ties Rock Creek for Second Time

McDougald, Hutchison Score Upset at Manor; Belle Haven Champs

Dale Wins at Beaver Dam; Johnny Bergelin Upset in Diffenbaugh Play at Kenwood Club; Mrs. Rose, Agur Win Congressional Event

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Interclub public links rivalry between Anacostia and Rock Creek remained at a standstill yesterday when the teams tied again in a "rubber match" play-off, 16½ points each. In three previous matches the uptown team won one; the Anacostians, one, and the third was tied. They will meet in a fifth match late in September. East Potomac, the third-many club, holds a victory over Rock Creek, and a tie in two matches.

Al Price, Rock Creek pro, and Bob Morris, runner-up for the city title last year, scored 2½ points against ½ point for Calvin Loving and "Reds" Tanner in the feature match, but Rock Creek's second duo of Public Links Champ Andy Oliveri and Harry Miller lost two out of three to W. W. Seay and Charles Tawney.

B. Harry Graham's Anacostia team will entertain the Laurel Club, of Richmond, next Sunday.

Rock Creek, 16½; Anacostia, 16½

Al Price and Bob Morris (Rock Creek) score 2½ points to ½ for Calvin Loving and "Reds" Tanner (Anacostia). Andy Oliveri and Harry Miller (Rock Creek) score 1 point to 2 for Charles Tawney and Wilbur Seay (Anacostia). William Leapley and F. Cook (Rock Creek) scored 2½ points to ½ for Bill Davis and Earn Bean (Anacostia). Bob Leapley and Harry Sinclair (Rock Creek) scored 0 points to 3 for Dune Haselton and Don Keoeh (Anacostia). Carroll and Sietz (Rock Creek) scored 2 points to 1 for Ray Pass and Ray Miller (Anacostia). Seaborough and Hill (Rock Creek) scored 2 points to 1 for Clarence Riley and Ernie Hauser (Anacostia). Herman Allen and Sullivan (Rock Creek) scored 2½ points to ½ for Charles Brown and Orville Brown (Anacostia). Waters and Johnson (Rock Creek) scored 0 points to 3 for Luke Layton and Harry Bienlich (Anacostia). Rosenthal and Jack Klein (Rock Creek) scored 2 points to 1 for Jack Frost and Lucat (Anacostia). Bob Coleman and Williams (Rock Creek) scored 1 point to 2 for H. Brass and C. Brass (Anacostia. Bradburn and Tony Buss (Rock Creek) scored 1 point to 2 for Dutch Melcher and Tom Smith (Anacostia).

MANOR

A. F. McDougald and D. R. Hutchison remained in their "giant-killer" roles in the Manor Club two-man team championship with a 2 and 1 victory over 1937 champions Tom Corwin and Walter Talkes in the third round. They eliminated defending champions George Jones and J. S. MacBryde in the second round.

Jack Stadler and Mack Myers also advanced to the semifinals with an extra-hole triumph over T. L. Bartlett and Larry Conner. All even at the eighteenth, they were forced to play three extra holes by the tourney rules and Stadler and Myers won the nineteenth and twentieth for the 2-up victory.

Second Round

H. A. Neff and H. Westhaven defeated Milton Schlosser and W. P. Kilgore, default; George Messing and H. L. Lacey defeated Max Taylor and W. G. McCreery, 3 and 2; Bobby Brownell and Merrell Whitlesey defeated Carl Willingham and Howard Shea, 3 and 2; Ray Fleming and J. A. Pratt defeated J. R. Meyer and H. S. Farrell, 3 and 2; Walter Talkes and Tom Corwin defeated C. W. Goddard and Maj. McLaren, 3 and 2; A. F. McDougald and D. R. Hutchinson defeated George Jones and J. S. MacBryde, 2 and 1; Jack Stadler and Mack Myers defeated S. E. Andrews and James Benifer, 4 and 3; T. L. Bartlett and L. D. Connor defeated Harvey Cooper and W. W. England, 2 and 1.

Third Round

McDougald and Hutchinson defeated Talkes and Corwin, 2 and 1; Stadler and Myers defeated Bartlett and Connor, 2 up, 20 holes.

BEAVER DAM

S. T. Dale, Beaver Dam southpaw golfer in his third year of play, cracked the 80 mark for the first time yesterday with a 77 and won the Flag Tourney by playing his last shot as a drive down the twentieth fairway. W. L. O'Brien, who finished second, was under the 80 mark for the second time in his career and the second time in succession, also with a 77, and planted his last shot 18 inches from the cup on the nineteenth hole. He celebrated his first trip into the charmed 70 circle with a 76 last week.

L. H. Weisenberger was the third winner in the first flight, with his final shot 6 feet from the cup on the nineteenth.

Dave Usilton won the second flight with a shot 10 feet from the cup on the nineteenth, with R. Murphy 13 feet away and Dr. W. W. Kerr 100 yards from the green.

E. Scott topped the third flight players with his last shot 2 feet from the pin on the nineteenth, while T. M. Miller was 45 feet away and H. C. Simms third, playing his final shot in the cup on the eighteenth. Albert Haas won the fourth flight by holing out on the eighteenth.

Preston Smith, defending champion and medalist in the Beaver Dam caddy championship, defeated A. Sweeney, 5 and 4, in first-round play. S. Noonan, whose 80 in the qualifying round was second to Smith's 75, defeated "Red" Miles on the nineteenth, finishing with three birdies in the last four holes.

KENWOOD

R. W. Peebles upset Club Champion Johnny Bergelin on the twentieth hole of the George Diffenbaugh Trophy play at Kenwood. G. R. Hopkins, Don Miller and R. L. Harris joined Peebles in the championship flight semifinals.

First Flight

G. R. Hokins defeated Carl Gnam, 1 up, 20 holes; R. L. Harris defeated William R. Stone, 2 and 1; Don Miller defeated B. W. Childlaw, 2 and 1; R. W. Peebles defeated J. O. Bergelin, 1 up, 21 holes.

Second Flight

J. A. Thurston defeated T. S. Baliff, 1 up, 20 holes; William Hoad defeated W. O. Wooley, 2 and 1; E. A. Tupper defeated R. F. Parker, 1 up, 20 holes; R. W. Castle defeated S. S. Bacon, 2 up.

Third Flight

Richard Chamberlain defeated B. G. Myers, 5 and 4; Cary Winston defeated N. K. Richtmyer, 3 and 2; T. M. Davis defeated Walter Edwards, 2 up; R. H. Weishtman defeated C. R. Lucas, 1 up, 19 holes.

Fourth Flight

E. S. Marlow defeated C. E. LaFoe, 4 and 2; L. M. Shade defeated L. B. Gaffney, 7 and 6; C. M. Dinkins defeated John Olmsted, 4 and 3; L. B. Sharpe defeated J. E. Hutchison, Jr., 4 and 2.

Fifth Flight

W. J. Snow defeated R. E. Joyce, 8 and 7; J. C. Foulis defeated F. A. Caskey, 4 and 3; M. Kato defeated S. R. Coleman, 4 and 3; E. J. Mitchell defeated A. B. Hoobleman, 2 and 1.

CONGRESSIONAL

Mrs. R. L. Rose and John Agur won the low gross in the mixed Scotch foursome event at Congressional, with an 86, while first low net went to Mrs. H. A. Knox and J. E. Taggert, with 87-13, 74. Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Hayes won second low net with 98-23, 75.

W. P. Folger and W. H. Wenzel tied in the blind bogey play, with 89—18, 71, for Folger and 77—6, 71, for Wenzel. R. M. Eaves won third prize in a draw over four other net 79's. Eaves scored 93—14, 79, and the losers, E. E. Naylor, 99—20, 79; H. L. Post, 97—18, 79; O. T. Smith, 99—20, 79, and F. Johnson, 89—10, 79.

BELLE HAVEN

Belle Haven's golf team returned yesterday with the Bi-State Golf Association championship by a 37-point margin over last year's champions, the Opequeon Club of Martinsburg.

Belle Haven's total was 298 for the series of matches, with Martinsburg second with 261, Winchester, 187½, and the Purcellville, 162½. The final match found Martinsburg scoring 55½ points, Belle Haven 55, Winchester 38½ and Purcellville 31.

J. B. Murphy, of Belle Haven, won individual point-scoring honors for the year with 41½ points out of a possible 45. Murphy received an award and the members of the winning team also received prizes.

WASHINGTON

Chris Cagle and J. R. McGuinness topped the two-man best ball handicap play at Washington Golf and Country Club with a 75 best ball, minus half the combined handicap, 18, for a 57 net.

Ed Fay and H. L. McLeod was second with 84-24—60.

INDIAN SPRING

Lou Harrison won the blind bogey event at Indian Spring with 81-2—79, while R. E. Read was second, 90-18—72.

John J. Bachman scored an eagle deuce on the par four eleventh hole, following a good drive with a six-iron shot that bounded in the cup. J. F. Feeney, Frank Kramer and R. W. May were other members of the foursome.

Ten Pro-Amateur Teams to Lancaster

Ten pro-amateur teams from the District will take the three-hour ride to Lancaster, Pa., today seeking a share of the prize money in the invitation tournament sponsored by Arthur Thorn, former Woodmont professional. A large field, including the topnotch pro-am duos of the District, Baltimore, Philadelphia and Wilmington will compete.

President's Cup Regatta Luncheon At Noon Today

Indicating that the "13" jinx will not affect the thirteenth annual President's Cup Regatta, general committees for the annual event on the Potomac will report at today's weekly luncheon at the Harrington Hotel that they are confident of the largest President's Cup race entry of all time.

The unusual number of entries being received for the President's Cup race can be attributed to the new engine specifications which permit boats with cubic inch replacements from 366 to 732 to compete.

Today's will be the fourth luncheon to prepare plans for the regatta, September 23-24, and the swimming meet at Shoreham Hotel Pool, September 22.

Mrs. Holman, Bonnell Win

Special Dispatch to The Post

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 20.—Forty teams played in the Maryland State Golf association two-ball mixed foursome tournament yesterday at Elkridge. The event was a handicap affair and two teams tied for first place.

Robert O. Bonnell and Mrs. Ralph Holman of the Host Club posted an 80-11—69, and J. W. Sheridan, Rodgers Forge, and Mrs. J. W. Sheridan, Hillendale had 89-20—69.

Two teams were tied for the runner-up position, Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Coblentz, of Rolling Road, 92-21—71, and Mrs. McLean Patterson and Chas. W. Kippler, Rodgers Forge, 88-17—71.

Mrs. Mary Louise Ball, Rodgers Forge, and Erford Barnes, Rolling Road, took the low gross prize with a 39-38—77 and Hillendale's team of Elizabeth Bonthron and Robert E. Jones took second low gross with 41-38—79.

Washington Scores

Mrs. C. P. Medley and F. G. Butler, Indian Spring, 87-11—76. Mrs. K. S. Giles and W. A. Covert, Indian Spring, no card.

Omaha Legion Team Wins West Finals

Stockton, Calif., Aug. 20 (AP).—Battling for 13 innings, the McDevitt Post Juniors, of Omaha, Nebr., won a 6-to-4 victory over the Sunrise Post, of Los Angeles, in the final Western sectional game of the American Legion Junior Baseball Tournament here today.

Led by their southpaw star, Bill Wachtler, who connected for four hits and saved the game with a fine relief pitching job, the Nebraskans gained the right to meet the Eastern sectional winner in the "little world series" to be played in Omaha later this month.

Midget Auto Races On Tomorrow Night

Cowboy O'Rourke and Duke Nalon, both of Chicago, will resume their close battle for national midget auto honors tomorrow night at the Capital Speedway, Bladensburg and New York Avenue northeast.

Promoter Jimmy Frattone announced yesterday that facilities will be installed at the track to pick up the broadcast of the Lou Ambers-Henry Armstrong lightweight title fight in New York.

Two Capital Skippers Score at Annapolis

Carlton Skinner Wins 20-Foot Restricted Class, Dave Dunigan Takes Star Honors In 4th Annual Annapolis Club Regatta

By Bob Knight.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 20.—More than 500 sunburned skippers and their crews wound up the fourth annual Annapolis Yacht Club regatta here today in a leisurely 10-knot breeze which blew up Chesapeake Bay beneath a cloudless sky.

It was a great day for the small army of Washington sailing enthusiasts competing in the two-day classic. Four Capital helmsmen, competing against a trophy-hungry field from five Eastern seaboard States, continued to turn in flawless performances to win a third share of the winning silver.

Carlton Skinner, youthful United States Maritime Commission official, raced over the 5-mile outside course during the morning to nose out Vincent Kramer's Sea Witch by mere seconds in the 20-foot restricted class. Skinner's sloop, Aeolus II, crossed the starting line less than a length behind the Sea Witch. The first round was a windward beat and the two leaders stepped out to a comfortable lead over the class fleet.

At the first buoy, Sea Witch was still leading Aeolus who heeled 20 feet astern. With two-thirds of the race to go, Skinner's craft took a bone in her mouth in a following wind and gradually inched her way past the Sea Witch. At the second turn, the Aeolus II had left the Sea Witch a boat-length in her wake. They crossed the finish with virtually no change in the margin of lead.

Judge Prentice E. Edrington, another District competitor, took second place in the series by virtue of his performances in two races yesterday. He finished well back in the field today, but his earlier performances earned him the runner-up trophy.

Dave Dunigan, of Washington, who sails under the colors of the Gibson Island Yacht squadron, clinched victor's laurels in the star class series when he finished second today behind White Wake, another Gibson Island star owned by J. R. Wolfe. In the early rounds of the competition, Dunigan appeared destined to be a triple winner. Wolfe, who found the going a bit faster in a shore beat, crossed with minutes to spare. Wave, a white-hulled 22-foot affair, yesterday won the first two races of the series, taking advantage of a running sea that sent most of the craft planing along the crests at nearly 10 knots at times.

Today's weather was described by the docking competitors as a steel test for sailing ability. The light air forced skippers to attempt every artifice of the game. Whisker booms broke out in rounds where boats turned their stern to the breeze.

Capt. Oscar Hartge, veteran racing sailboat builder, of West River, turned up apparently against doctor's orders today. Yesterday he struck his head on the center board well of the sloop Riptide while boarding. He was sent to the emergency Hospital here for treatment and was released with orders to rest for two days.

Gallagher, Robinson Fight Tonight

Marty has not had a fight in two years—since John Henry Lewis cut his eye and won a technical knockout over him in three rounds—and tonight will be making his final attempt to wrest glory from the boxing business

Robinson, former international Golden Gloves champion, will be a heavy favorite to beat Marty, who insists "us Irish fighters never mature until they get to be 29 or 30."

Although Robinson's record is marred by a knockout he suffered recently at the hands of Bill Boyd in Baltimore, he is regarded as a promising youngster and should be especially dangerous to the beer tavern owner, who conceived the notion of his latest comeback only slightly more than two months ago.

In addition to his experience with Galento, Marty treasures the memory of his defeat of King Levinsky when Levinsky was in top fighting form. He has no qualms about Robinson and furthermore insists he can beat Galento if he meets him again. Despite his confidence, the hands of time point to Robinson.

On Galento Card

Robinson's semifinal spot on the Galento-Nova boxing card next month can be Gallagher's if he wins tonight. Nathan Mann, now ranked in the first ten heavyweights by the National Boxing Association, has agreed to fight the winner of tonight's match here next month.

The semifinal six-round match tonight brings Maynard Daniels, Marine Reserve fighter, who made an impressive return to Washington two weeks ago by knocking out Jake Friedman. Daniels meets Jim Wilson, brawny Harrisburg, Pa., fighter. Daniels should have little trouble in stopping Wilson, who can't take body punishment, in the early rounds.

A special eight-round match brings together two fast featherweights, Al Mancini and Pablo Danno, a Filipino. Joe Lipps, Ty Ty, Ga., heavyweight, starts a comeback against Howard Landgraffe, of Baltimore, in another six, and Al Hart, colored heavyweight, meets Panama Gene Johnson in the opener at 8:30 p. m.

Rain Postpones Final Match Of National Men's Doubles

By the Associated Press

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 20.—Rain provided a welcome respite today to the Australian Davis Cup tennis forces, the star members of the United States and British Wightman Cup teams and the hard-pressed ground crew of the Longwood Cricket Club.

"We have been playing steadily for several weeks and this postponement comes just at the right time," Capt. Harry Hopman, of the Australian team, said. "We hit our peaks here the past week and I was becoming alarmed that we might get over-tennised."

The first downpour to soak Longwood's velvety courts in more than two weeks also forced a 24-hour postponement of three other finals. The women's doubles field was down to such finalists as Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan and Alice Marble, the United States Wightman Cup aces, and Kay Stammers and Mrs. Freda James Hammerseley, the English stars. Mrs. Fabyan and Cooke and Miss Marble and Hopman reached the mixed doubles title round.

Ambers Boxes Armstrong in N.Y. Tomorrow

15-Round Bout Looks Close; 30,000 Fans May Pay $150,000

By the Associated Press

New York, Aug. 20.—Henry Armstrong and Lou Ambers, a pair of game little fighting men, will meet in a 15-round bout at Yankee Stadium Tuesday night to decide the world lightweight championship, and there's no reason for believing it won't be a whale of a fight.

The men who ballyhoo such things for Prof. Mike Jacobs have dug up more angles than you can find in a geometry lesson; most of them intended to convey the idea that Champion Armstrong shouldn't be a topheavy favorite. But it all seems rather unnecessary. Lou usually takes care of those things himself.

The excitement which is expected to draw some 30,000 customers and a gate of perhaps $150,000 goes back a year to the time when Armstrong lifted the title from Ambers and thus became the first fighter in ring history to hold three championships at the same time. He later vacated the featherweight throne and he has agreed that if he loses Tuesday he'll defend his welterweight title against Ambers in November.

Armstrong Extended

Last August Henry the Hammer was a 1-3 favorite over Lou, but at the finish of the gory fray in Madison Square Garden he was suffering from a badly cut lip, had swallowed a lot of blood and was a pretty sick young man. If the fight had gone a few rounds longer, Luigi d'Ambrosio might still be lightweight champion.

What's more, Armstrong, whose way of fighting is to hit the other guy hard and often found Ambers was one rival who wouldn't stay hit. Lou was down twice in the early rounds, but he finished so strongly a lot of fans booed the verdict.

It may be the same story Tuesday, but there have been several sound reasons advanced why Ambers should make a much better showing. They've been so good the odds have faded from 1-3 to 5-7 against Armstrong.

The first is the possibility that Henry's hands may give way. The Hammer has won 46 consecutive fights, 39 by knockouts, and it's obvious that he's had to hit a lot of people to do that. When he fights, he tears in and flings punches, careless of where they land, and he's cracked his mitts pretty badly at times. He came back from his last fight against Ernie Roderick in England with his left in a cast. Henry claims the hand is sound as ever, now, but there's a chance that it won't stand the punishment of 15 rounds.

Never Has Lost

Then Ambers never has been known to lose a return bout. He won them from such guys as Tony Canzoneri and Fritzie Zivic, who broke his jaw once, and Pedro Montanez. He figures on preserving this record against Armstrong and with that in mind has been trying to develop a punch that will put the Hammer down for keeps.

There's been talk that Henry might retire soon after this fight and if he wins it may become necessary. He'll still have two championships and nobody to fight for them.

Armstrong cut out a furious pace for his sparmates in his final hard workout at his Pompton Lakes, N. J., camp. He battered Chester Rico, Bobby Ruffin and Frankie Wallace about for six rounds and did a couple of rounds of fast bag work. Dr. Alexander Schiff, athletic commission physician, examined him after the session and said his condition was perfect.

At Carmel, N. Y., Dr. Louis Rosati, gave a similar okay to Lou's condition after Ambers boxed only two rounds.

Former Texas A.-M. Star on Mat Card

In line with his new policy of importing some new faces for his wrestling cards, Promoter Joe Turner announced yesterday he had signed Jack Kennedy, former Texas A. and M. athlete, for a supporting bout on Thursday night's program.

Kennedy will meet Ralph Garabaldi, youngest of the well-known mat family, in a preliminary to the headline matches between Nanjo Singh and Red Ryan and Jack Hader and Rudy Strongberg.

Softball Titular Series Opens Today

Postponed by rain Saturday two opening games of the District softball championships will be played at 5 o'clock this afternoon at Eastern Stadium.

In one game Maritime Commission meets Carr and Boswell and in the second, Carley's Tavern, champion of the Regal League, faces Plaza Wine and Liquor, titleholder of the Sunday Morning League.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Aug. 20.—One of the greatest fights between little people since the night Mrs. Tom Thumb slugged her ever-loving husband with a small pickax, for having a little extracurricula fun, will be held tomorrow night at Yankee Stadium when Henry Armstrong tries to realize another one of his ever-blooming ambitions.

CONSIDINE

The studious Negro champion, who came up from a Los Angeles breadline to know the soulful gastric experience of consuming crepes suzettes, honestly would like to defend this lightweight title and then give it up as he gave up the featherweight crown which was the first of the three titles he won in a single year of unparalleled campaigning, but that's not all.

He would like to concentrate hereafter on the welterweight division. When, and if he beats Ambers in defense of the lightweight title, he will just above have worked out the pay lode in that division. The walterweight domain, which he also rules, is richer, particularly in Europe, where he has found new millions of admirers, most of whom aren't as critical as the observers on this side of the drink. But, just a minute.

Despite the fact that this statement corroborates with the publicity releases, Henry actually would like—eventually—to give up the welterweight division and try to win the middleweight title. Nearly everyone, except Henry, will admit that if he tried to fight a man like Fred Apostoli today he would be badly overmatched. But if by some happenable accident Apostoli was beaten by Ceferino Garcia, when those two fight for the middleweight title, Henry certainly will challenge. For Henry beat Garcia in his first defense of the welter crown, and beat him pretty soundly. Since that night Garcia has beaten ten middleweights, knocked out as capable a middleweight as Glenn Lee, and earned the title shot against Apostoli.

It's Incredible but Not Ridiculous

Henry weighed only 128 pounds after he came out of the ring against Garcia. Garcia had trouble making the welterweight limit of 147 before the fight, and with a steak, a pint of beef juice and other builder-uppers in him he must have weighed more than 150 when he actually came in the ring that night. This fact convinces Henry that his dream of owning the middleweight crown—incredible as it seems to all boxing people—isn't ridiculous. If he could give a fearful lacing to a man good enough to challenge for that title, then why shouldn't he be allowed to challenge for it himself, even if he reaches far over his weight. After all, he remembers, a lot of people tried to stop him when he challenged Barney Ross for the welterweight title—while he was a featherweight. There is 21 pounds difference in those two classes, and if you don't believe that that's a lot of heft, you should see some of those managers haggle over an ounce.

The closest thing to a fighter's heart is to retire undefeated from a championship. Few men have done it . . . Leonard . . . McAuliffe . . . Jeffries . . . Tunney . . . Ross . . . and a couple of others. Armstrong voluntarily gave up his featherweight title, shortly after adding the welterweight and then the lightweight scalps to his fabulous belt. Retiring undefeated stamps a man with indelible boxing fame. Forever after, when introduced before the big fights, the announcers mention that fact: which symbolizes a skill that doesn't come to normal men. Henry wants to be known as the man who retired undefeated not only from the featherweight division, but from the lightweight, welterweight and middleweight divisions! It's a fearsome ambition, but somehow I'd hate to have a lot of money bet against his chances of doing just that, impossible as it sounds. The feat perhaps never would be equaled in the forthcoming aeons of fight history, just as Henry's classic stunt of holding three titles at once now stands as a blanketing record.

Armstrong and Family Will Never Want

Whether he reaches his goal of four abdications or not, Henry is one fighter who'll never stagger in the ring to pick up pennies flung from the audience. He got his first taste of traveling last fall, when he went to England and the Continent, and his curiously sensitive soul is yelling for more. Eddie Mead, his manager, tells me—by way of correcting me on a recent piece in which I wrote that Henry's purse for the Garcia fight had been provided by Owney Madden—that Henry has very nearly paid up a $100,000 annuity.

In addition, he has provided handsomely for his people (he is the youngest of 13 children), bought a home for his wife, set aside a fund for the education of his baby daughter, and—as a milestone along his dramatic life line—written a thoughtful and persuasive book on the things that go through the mind, and the heart, of a boy who yearned all his early life to be a surgeon and then became rich and famed by using his fists in such a way as to make his opponents look for the nearest surgeon.

Potomac B. C. Fares Poorly In Regatta

Special Dispatch to The Post

Alexandria, Aug. 20.—Old Dominion Boat Club, of this city; the Arundel Boat Club, of Baltimore, and Virginia Boat Club, of Richmond, shared honors in the third Southern Rowing Association Regatta of the year, held here today, as each won one of the three final races of a nine-event program. The Alexandrians took first place in four-oared gig, while the Arundel crew won the quadruple-oared scull, and Virginia Boat Club the feature of the afternoon, the eight-oared shell.

The Virginia Boat Club's eight-oared shell turned in the most impressive performance of the afternoon by beating Arundel's crew by a full four lengths in the final event of the program. In the first heat, the Richmond representatives won easily from the Old Dominion eight, while the Baltimoreans scored a one-length victory over Potomac in the second heat.

Old Dominion's four-oared gig staged a great comeback in the final, coming from behind in the last 30 yards to win from the Baltimore crew. As they Eight-oared shell—First heat won by Arundel (O'Neil, Jones, Miller, Greibel, Byrle, Fraley, Royer, Younger, and Grain, coxswain).

Second heat—Won by Virginia (Beasley, Call, Smith, O'Connor, Hill, Watkins, Dickinson, and Bruno, coxswain).

Final—Won by Arundel.

Second heat—Won by Virginia (Newton, Bailey, O'Connor and Jones).

Final—Won by Virginia.

A. Ritzenberg, Smith Win in Federal Play

Top-seeded Allie Ritzenberg and third-seeded C. Alphonso Smith yesterday established what they claim is a record for matches played during one day in a local tennis tournament when they engaged in two singles and three doubles in the Government championships at Potomac Park courts.

To make their endurance feat even more remarkable Ritzenberg and Smith won all of their matches, the former reaching the round of 16 and the latter the round of eight in singles. As a team they moved into the semi-finals for the doubles.

The lone upset of the day was pulled by George Herbert, who defeated Neil Lindjem, seeded seventh, 6—3, 7—5, to gain the quarter-finals of the singles. E. O. Mather was at the top of his game to eliminate the tournament dark horse, Dick Bennion.

The other two to reach the quarter-finals were Ray Stocklinski and Austin Rice, both seeded players.

SINGLES

First round—Dean B. Judd defeated Harry Goldsmith, 6—2, 6—2; Albert Ritzenberg defeated Felix M. Piniera, 6—1, 6—0; John Doyle defeated Robert Burgess, 6—2, 6—2; Harold Joffe defeated J. Wilson Reed, 4—6, 6—3, 9—7.

Second round—Ray Stocklinski defeated Frank W. Vanderhoof, 6—1, 6—0; Spencer Howell defeated Paul Falconer, 6—2, 6—4; E. O. Mather defeated Don Marvin, 6—3, 6—1; C. Alphonso Smith defeated B. L. Miller, 6—0, 6—1; Deane B. Judd defeated Max Boat, 6—1, 6—2; Hy Ritzenberg defeated Leo Reuben, 3—6, 6—4, 6—1; Albert Ritzenberg defeated John Doyle, 6—1, 6—1; Lawrence A. Phillips defeated Felix M. Silva, 1—6, 6—4, 6—3; Tom Manaan defeated Harold Joffe, 6—4, 6—3; Antonio Bitonti defeated Martin Young, 7—5, 6—4; Austin Rice defeated Bernard Wiseltier, 6—0, 6—1; Charles P. Sowers defeated Merle Lyon by default; Neil Lindjem defeated Cavin H. Skaggs, 6—0, 6—1; John Smith defeated John Andary, 6—1, 6—2.

Third round—Ray Stocklinski defeated Spencer Howell, 6—1; Edward C. Mather defeated Dick Bennion, 6—1, 6—4; C. Alphonso Smith defeated John Smith, 6—1, 6—0; Austin Rice defeated Charles P. Sowers, 6—2, 6—0; George Herbert defeated Neil Lindjem, 6—3, 7—5.

DOUBLES

First round—Stanley Haney and Hy Ritzenberg defeated W. C. Barnouw and Maxwell Kaufman, 6—0, 6—2; Albert Ritzenberg and C. Alphonso Smith defeated John Andary and Albert Lance, 6—1, 6—0.

Second round—Carl Payson and Paul Rulloda defeated W. D. Dewitt and Charles P. Sowers, 6—1, 6—2; George Herbert and John Smith defeated Carroll Hula and James Heiskell, 7—5, 6—3, 6—4; Stanley Haney and Hy Ritzenberg defeated Don Marvin and Richard Selant, 6—1, 6—3; Albert Ritzenberg and C. Alphonso Smith defeated Robert Burgess and Edward Pinkham, 6—0, 6—0; Henry Sweeney and Austin Rice defeated Mariano A. Krana and Felix M. Silva, 6—3, 6—4; E. O. Mather and Deane B. Judd defeated Allan Keller and E. Buschman, 6—0, 6—0.

Third round—Albert Ritzenberg and C. Alphonso Smith defeated Henry Sweeney and Austin Rice, 6—1, 6—0.

Westmoreland, there's a strong likelihood she would stand alone as the one to beat. But since Patty is recovering from an operation, there are anywhere from four to six co-favorites, depending on how you happen to be looking at things.

The Misses Crocker, Barton and Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky., the only one who has been able to putt well consistently, and Mrs. Page top almost everyone's list. Back of them are such sectional standouts as Dot Kirby, of Atlanta; Jean Bauer, of Providence, R. I.; Sheila Stroyan, husky young English girls' champion; Charlotte Glutting and Maureen Orcutt, New Jersey neighbors; Beatrice Barrett, of Minneapolis, and Mrs. Edwin H. Vare, jr., of Philadelphia, only six-time winner on the U. S. G. A. books.

The District of Columbia's largest National delegation in years, seven players, were intent on their share of match-play berths for tomorrow's qualifying round. The entries included City Champion Mrs. Leo Walper, Mid-Atlantic Champion Marion Brown, Mrs. Myron Davy, who qualified last year and lost to Patty Ber

Marlboro Opens Wednesday

Half-Mile Track Cards 10-Day Meet

Totalizator Ready For the First Time; Donald Hay to Take Charge of Betting

By Walter Haight

Thoroughbred horse racing, now an April-to-December attraction in this territory, moves right up to Washington's side door on Wednesday when Marlboro opens its annual meeting. For ten days, the bangstails will edge out tobacco as the chief interest down in Prince Georges County.

The session, next to the last drop on the Maryland half-mile circuit, will mark the first at Marlboro with a totalizator to control the wagering. The complicated electric machine, which records and registers every bet, has been installed and, with the exception of a preliminary trial on Tuesday morning, it is ready for business.

No more will the bettors have to depend upon well meant but sometimes unsatisfactory approximate odds scribbled on a blackboard before each race. Instead the total money wagered on each horse will be flashed and the odds will follow along with the amount of money bet.

While the "tote" is expensive, officials feel that it will increase betting to a point that will make it a profitable undertaking. The machine was popular at Bel Air where it performed in big league fashion.

Hay Mutuel Manager

Donald Hay, the man who had charge of the wagering at Charles Town's summer meeting, has taken over the handling of the mutuel department at Marlboro and will have 24 sellers and 18 cashiers ready to handle Wednesday's business.

Marlboro has a new general manager this year. He is Joseph A. Farrell, who has succeeded Joseph E. Boyle. Edward J. Brennan, always popular with the horsemen has been retained as racing secretary, a position he holds with the other Maryland half-milers.

Due to almost continual racing during the summer months hereabouts, Marlboro will have a good list of horses. With Bel Air and Charles Town tossed into the setup which formerly included only Hagerstown, Cumberland, Marlboro and Timonium, owners of good horses have found it profitable to keep their charges in this section.

The book for the meeting reveals that 30 of the 70 races scheduled will be distance affairs. These long races have proven popular with the customers and four of them have been set for a mile and three-sixteenths.

Start at 2 p. m.

While the installation of the "tote" was good news to racing fans hereabouts, the setting of 2 p. m. as the first post time was well received. Heretofore, the races have begun at 2:30, making for late suppers. If too much time is not used between races, the customers who see the complete program should be homeward bound by 5:30 p. m.

Finance and Business

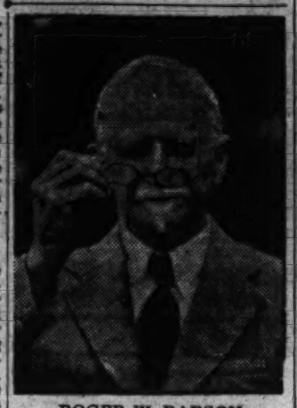
August Business 60 Per Cent Above Year Ago, Babson Says

Earnings of 300 Companies 80 Per Cent Higher in First Six Months of This Year Than in Same Period of 1938

By Roger W. Babson

Babson Park, Mass., Aug. 20.—August business is fairly good. It is 10 per cent above a year ago and at the highest level for any August in ten years, excepting only 1936 and 1937. It is a trifle quieter than it was a month ago, but it is well above the low point for 1939. Most encouraging point about the current recovery is the fact that business is really making money.

Earnings of over 300 companies, which represent a real cross-section of American industry, trade and transportation, were 80 per cent higher in the first six months of 1939 than in the same period of 1938. The profits of a few companies reached new all-time highs, while the profit margin of the average concern was good. Of course, there are some "sick" companies that are still using plenty of red ink. Fewer businesses, however, have been going under the auctioneer's hammer this summer than last.



ROGER W. BABSON.

Benefits Widespread

The beneficial effects of these good profits are not limited to employers and executives alone. Their benefits mushroom out into all classes of the population. Security holders, for instance, are finding bigger checks in their dividend envelopes this August than a year ago. An impressive list of concerns have recently decided that stockholders should be rewarded for their patience during the past year by paying bigger dividends this summer. This news is especially important to merchants because relatively the buying power of investors has been hit the hardest of all groups. In the 12 months from July, 1937, to July, 1938, investor income plummeted more than 30 per cent.

Investors are not the only ones who are smiling over the good profit reports coming out in the daily papers. Wage and salary workers have found the pressure for wage cuts letting up. Pay rolls are 22 per cent greater than last year. In fact, in the last few weeks, I have heard of wages being upped in 262 companies in 24 separate industries. I have not heard about any decreases; but companies ordinarily do not advertise their cuts. Better profits are also being mirrored in higher strike totals as workers begin asking for more money. There are 179 labor flare-ups this month, compared with 150 last month and only 81 a year ago.

Three Major Reasons

There are three major reasons for these good earnings reports. The first one I have aleady mentioned—business is fairly good. Second reason is that costs have been cut to the bone by improved efficiency of workers and machines. The average person does not realize it, but the progress which America is making with labor-saving machines is truly astounding. The labor union activity of the last few years has forced concerns to install machinery that will do the work of hundreds of workers at a fraction of the cost. Despite low retail prices, the full effects of this trend are now finally being shown in company reports.

The third major cause of good profits is the low cost of raw materials. Despite recent stiffening, prices of industrial commodities have been drifting along at the lowest level in five years. Price weakness is usually considered a bad sign—but without reason. History shows that prosperity and low prices go hand in hand. Cheap raw materials mean retail price tags can be kept low, sales can be boosted, factories can be expanded, jobs can be increased. Five years of trying vainly to create recovery by inflating prices should prove to everyone that high prices ultimately bring depression—not prosperity.

As a result of good earnings, there are more people working now than any time since February, 1938. Meanwhile 1939 crops are turning out well. Prices are off, but cash income for farmers in 1939 will be about as good as in 1938. So as the situation stands today, investors have a little more money to spend; there are more wage workers employed and their pay envelopes are fatter; and, finally, farm cash income is holding steady.

The natural result of all this is a step-up in retail sales. In spite of the usual July-Agust dullness cash registers have been clanging vigorously all summer. Sales are averaging 5 to 10 per cent ahead of a year ago throughout the continent. Newspaper advertising linage is higher, travel on the highways is greater, traffic on the railroads is heavier, use of electricity is at a new all-time peak, touist spending is breaking all records.

Air Pocket Ahead?

We are moving into the dead end of the summer. For the next fortnight business is going to drift along at about the current level or even at a little slower pace. On September 5, the curtain rises on the business world's new year. One of the most important factors that will affect the trend of business after Labor Day is the improvement in sentiment this summer. The New Deal's smashing defeat in Congress, the June-July improvement in business, the news of good company earnings, and the continued truce in Europe has cheered both Main street and Wall street.

In my opinion, this lifting of the gloom means that we are going to have a good autumn. I am not forecasting any boom, but I am sure that the improvement that we have noticed since spring is going to carry on in the months ahead, barring war on war scares. A year ago I told you that thee would be no European war before this fall. I was correct, although most writers disagreed. Today I am making no forecasts. Eliminating war from the picture, however, look for business this fall as good or better than in 1937 or 1938.

Steel Activity Held Assured For Year-End

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, Aug. 20.—With the steel industry's operating rate up 1½ points to 63½ per cent of capacity—highest since the fall of 1937—the magazine Steel reported today that "current and prospective business seemingly assures sustained activity into the fourth quarter."

The publication observes, however, that the "demand is improving less rapidly and in some districts has tended to falter lately."

"Recovery in steelmaking the past 90 days," Steel adds, "has been so sharp as to suggest a leveling off in the near future, or at least a slower rate of improvement."

Pointing to the 40 per cent gain in production since the year's low in May, Steel says:

Prospects Favorable

"To what extent the upturn has been contrary to the seasonal trend is difficult to determine or the reason that the trend line of predepression years no longer prevails. Viewing only the remainder of this year and neglecting the possibility that European developments might disrupt affairs at home, prospects for industrial production appear moderately good."

Eight districts reported gains last week in steelmaking: 4 points to 56 per cent at Pittsburgh, 7 to 86 at Wheeling, 3½ to 83½ at Cleveland, 2 to 58 at Chicago, 5 to 75 at Birmingham, 3 to 60 at Cincinnati, 18 to 82 at Detroit and 2½ to 57 at St. Louis. Unchanged were Youngstown at 55 per cent, New England at 70 and Eastern Pennsylvania at 43. Buffalo declined 2½ points to 56 per cent.

Scrap prices continue to rise both in domestic and foreign markets. Steel's scrap composite is up 9 cents over last week to $15.42, highest in 22 months, while the finished steel composite remains at $55.00.

Lasser Charges Gallup WPA Hour Poll Is Incorrect

Misrepresentation of facts about the 130-hour-month WPA law in the Gallup Poll of August 6 was charged by David Lasser, president of the Workers Alliance of America, in a letter to Dr. George Gallup, made public yesterday.

Lasser charged the question asked the public in the poll, which revealed a 71 per cent majority in favor of the law in the Nation as a whole, and a 53 per cent favorable vote among WPA workers, "assumed that the 130-hour-month law applies only to skilled workers." "The actual fact," continued Lasser, "is that the 130-hour law applies to all WPA workers and has been resented by all WPA workers."

Lasser said that Dr. Gallup, in a previous letter, had written "we may have been mistaken as to these facts, in which case the results of the poll would have been in error." Urging Dr. Gallup to admit the error publicly, Lasser offered the assistance of the WAA in conducting a revote.

Rukeyser Says: Society Is Becoming Stratified

By Merryle Stanley Rukeyser,
International News Service Economic Commentator.

New York, Aug. 20.—In the name of reform, and the more abundant life, current political arangements especially hobble the progress of younger and more active men who are on their way up.

Society is becoming more stratified, and elaborate rules and regulations, confiscatory taxation, and the ponding down of interest rates make it more difficult than before for the impeculous to get their heads above water and develop family fortunes.

On the other hand, those with large inherited wealth or past accumulations are relatively more immune to the adverse effects of the New Deal. They can stand pat and live on their capital, avoiding the new and wider business risks, or they can find comparative surcease from business baiting through acquiring tax exempt bonds put out by the various units of government.

The stratification of our society is not to be frivolously regarded, as it strikes at the very essence of the American system. Unlike the feudal way of life, in which the position of the son was more or less fixed through life by the status of his father, the American way was to let each person compete in an effort to rise in accordance with his own personal talent and competence.

Trader Still Suffers

Even the purification of the security markets through Federal intervention has not singlemindedly promoted the good life for the average citizen. The current ticks of the stock ticker reveal that, if the average marginal trader has been safeguarded from the wicked manipulations of pools, specialists and insiders, he nevertheless finds new excuses for taking it on the chin. The latest threats by totalitarian adventurers in Europe and Asia, as well as the consequences of an unbalanced economy at home, furnish new reasons or pretexts for shrinkage in investment and speculative portfolios.

There is no indication that the Federal stipulation of a 40 per cent margin has brought immunity from speculative losses. On the contrary, the margin rules of the Reserve System and the stock exchange have become increasingly inelastic, and frequently, instead of promoting prosperity among the speculative rank and file, tend to induce the innocent to buy high and sell low.

If the Federal frowning on shoestring speculation was a step in the right direction, it also operated to handicap the advance of the impecunious rather than of those with large means. The wealthy are more able to operate on their own funds without following the Federal specifications for going into debt to buy securities. On the other hand, the venturesome "nobody" is restrained by the rules from making a killing, yet, since he is encouraged to go into debt to buy securities, he is not safeguarded against passing drastic slumps. This is said in no spirit of disparagement of some of the constructive security reforms, but rather to clarify the atmosphee.

The analogy of Federal pure food legislation is pertinent. The pure food legislation ended some drastic abuses, but it did not solve the average man's problem of proper diet. The same is true in finance. The security legislation has ended a variety of specific abuses, but it has not suggested a formula whereby ambitious men can safely build up their family estate. The suggestion that a 40 per cent margin is prudent is open to question. There is much evidence that the average man does better in making long-term commitments for cash in the securities of well-managed and developing industries.

Speculation, regulated or unregulated, is hazardous, and it may be that when the market place is minutely supervised by Federal bureaucrats that the amateur trader gets a false sense of security.

The tendency of Government to share increasingly through taxes in speculative profits, though not in losses, except for deductions permitted, has a great bearing on the difficulty of rising to a higher economic status.

Fate of Large Estates

High taxes have made even the wealthy trim sail, and as a result large landed estates have become a drug on the market. One Long Island estate was passed on from a millionaire family to an elemosynary society of street cleaners, who were relying on their apparent tax exempt status. And Father Divine, aided by the tax exempt status of the church, has been a conspicuous buyer of expensive country estates. Thus the changing economic situation brings significant social change.

Likewise, the legislative encouragement given to collective bargaining places extraordinary power in the hands of union executives who in the form of dues collect commissions on other men's wages.

All of these trends, plus prodigal governmental spending, has tended to shift economic power into new hands.

N. Y. City Bank Stocks Dip During Week

New York, Aug. 20.—There was little change recorded by New York City bank stocks during the past week, with issues fractionally lower at the close, according to records compiled by Hoit, Rose & Troster, specialists in bank and insurance stocks. The aggregate market value of 16 leading issues on August 18 was $1,434,151,000, compared with $1,439,743,000 at the close of the previous week, a decrease of $5,592,000, or 0.39 per cent.

Insurance stocks in the New York City market closed the past week at fractionally higher levels. The aggregate market value of 20 leading fire and casualty insurance issues on August 18 was $800,843,000, compared with $800,567,000 at the close of the previous week, an increase of $1,276,000, or 0.21 per cent.

Smelters Net $1.68 For Six Months

New York, Aug. 20 (AP).—American Smelting & Refining Co. and subsidiaries today reported net income after all charges for the first half of 1939 of $5,429,674.

This was equal to $1.68 a share on common stock after preferred requirements and compared with net income of $5,112,608, or $1.53 a share, in the comparable period.

Jerome Bonaparte Takes Vengeance On Emil Ludwig

Ajaccio, Corsica, Aug. 20 (AP).—Emil Ludwig took a bang on the head today from a statue of Jerome Bonaparte—but figured it just squared accounts between him and the brother of the great Napoleon.

Jerome, who was King of Westphalia and who had been dead for 80 years, was the subject of some disparaging remarks by Ludwig in his "Life of Napoleon."

While Ludwig was looking over historic relics in the Napoleonic museum at Ajaccio City Hall, the bronze statue of the Emperor's brother fell from its niche and struck the writer on the head.

Ludwig was taken to a nearby pharmacy and as his injuries were being treated a municipal councillor rushed up to apologize.

"Don't apologize," Ludwig said. "I had too many things to say about Jerome of Westphalia in my book. He has his vengeance now. We are quits!"

Virginia Police Group to Meet

Old Point Comfort, Va., Aug. 20 (AP).—Slot machines and the numbers racket will be discussed when the Virginia Police Executives Association holds its fourteenth annual convention at the Chamberlain Hotel September 20-21.

Arrangements are being made by John W. Huffman, president, who is chief of Clifton Forge police.

The State-wide police communications system and police activities of National Guard units in peace time will be considered. Identification officers of the State will hold an informal session.

Hedgesville U. D. C. Elects Mrs. W. K. Ellis

Martinsburg, W. Va., Aug. 20.—Mrs. William K. Ellis was named president of Hedgesville chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, at the business meeting last night.

Other officers named: Vice presidents, Mrs. J. W. Poisal, Mrs. W. B. Lingamfelter, Mrs. M. A. Robbins; recording secretary, Mrs. Charles M'Lurkin; corresponding secretary, Mrs. G. P. Ludwig; treasurer, Mrs. F. Lauck Beall; historian, Mrs. W. E. Branham; registrar, Mrs. Allen Hendricks; custodian, Mrs. D. P. Fry.

Mrs. Beall, State third vice president, will represent the chapter as delegate, and Miss Hilda Lingamfelter, State treasurer, as alternate at the State convention this fall.

Rains Help Crops In Adams County

Gettysburg, Pa., Aug. 20.—Weekend rains freshened parched Adams County fields and orchards, but farmers were uncertain what part of badly damaged crops can be revived. Hundreds of acres of cornfields are "fired" beyond hope of return to anything like a normal crop, County Agent M. T. Hartman said.

The peach crop, which had been expected to reach a new high at 700,000 bushels, was cut in two by the drought, but growers say the size of the fruit may yet be increased by the showers. The county's $100,000 tomato crop was halved by dry weather, but late tomatoes will benefit from the long-awaited showers, Hartman said.

Two From Virginia Become Navy Doctors

By the Associated Press

The Navy Department announced the appointment of 24 Class A medical school graduates as acting assistant surgeons in the Naval Medical Corps.

They will be assigned to the Naval Hospitals at Philadelphia, Norfolk, Mare Island and San Diego for internships.

The appointees included Charles F. Hudson, of Richmond, and R. Bland Williams, jr., of Charlottesville.

Road Celebration Planned in W. Va.

Winchester, Va., Aug. 20 (AP).—Committees representing civic interests of Frederick County, Va., and Hardy County, W. Va., will hold a celebration September 15 at High View, W. Va., near the top of Timber Ridge, to mark the opening of a new Virginia highway connecting with the Moorefield Valley route in West Virginia.

Disciples of Christ To Meet in Valley

Strasburg, Va., Aug. 20 (AP).—Missionary activities and Christian education will be among the chief topics of the nineteenth annual convention of the Valley District Disciples of Christ here August 29-31, Luther D. Pifer, Winchester, secretary-treasurer, said today.

Fred D. Maphis, Strasburg banker, will preside.

West for 3d Term, Robert Reports

Atlanta, Aug. 20 (AP).—L. W. (Chip) Robert, secretary of the Democratic National Executive Committeee, back from an eight-week "sounding" trip throughout the West, asserted last night "the people west of the Mississippi River want President Roosevelt to run for a third term."

Western sentiment was so strong for Mr. Roosevelt, Robert said, that "if the President does not make a third-term race, the Western people will line up with anyone the President favors for the White House."

Robert said he had conferred with both business and political leaders in every State west of the Mississippi River except four—Arkansas, North Dakota, Minnesota and Colorado.

Chinese Paper Doubts Hull Story On Sale of Plane

Shanghai, Monday, Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The China Press, publication of Chinese Finance Minister H. H. Kung, today expressed the opinion the Douglas DC-42 airplane sold to Japan must have been developed after Secretary of State Hull's "moral embargo" of 1938 and ridiculed an assertion that these ships could not be converted into bombers.

"It is high time that Secretary of State Hull exert more than moral persuasion," the paper said. "The only civilians these planes have been used for so far as we are able to observe are Chinese-American—to bomb Chinese civilian and American hospitals and missions and other American property.

"Is the State Department kidding us or will the United States really clamp down on the sale of planes to Japan?"

[State Department officials flatly denied the plane had been developed after Secretary Hull appealed to American manufacturers not to sell airplanes to nations that bomb civilian populations. They added Hull's policy was still in full force.]

Shore's Turkey Raisers to Study Flock Culling

Denton, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—Eastern Shore farmers who at this time of the year begin to "talk turkey" have been invited to attend school, where they will learn to talk and judge like experts.

William H. Rice, University of Maryland extension school husbandman, announced the school will be held here August 29 and 30 to train owners to cull their own flocks before supplying eggs to hatcheries. Hitherto, poultrymen have employed experts to do the selecting.

More than 50 hatcherymen and flock owners, who annually furnish the traditional Thanksgiving Day food to most of the Eastern market, have indicated they will attend.

News of Capital Night Clubs

By Mary Harris.

SWING KINGS positively cluttered up the Mayflower Lounge the other day. To be exact, there were three—the great Benny Goodman, Glen Gray of the Casa Loma Orchestra and the Mayflower's own Dick Koons. Benny was on his way to Virginia Beach via the Mayflower. Glen was in town to play for the "moonlight cruise." Also on hand was that very important person to bandsmen, F. C. O'Keefe, of the Rockwell-O'Keefe booking agency.

Art Barker's Trio will leave the Mayfair on September 30, probably returning to the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York. But this leaves six weeks more of bright Barker music, plenty of time to hear Art, Jole and Walter pour out "I Poured My Heart Into a Song," which, they say, is superseding the "B. B. Polka."

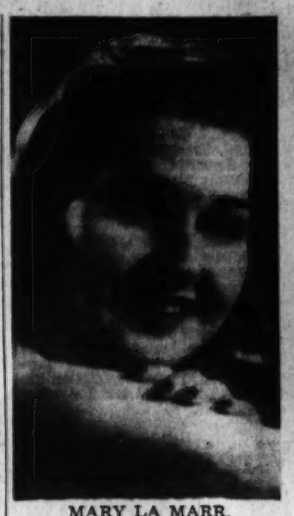
FRESH ENTERTAINMENT. Social register marionettes will cavort in this week's floor show on the Shoreham Terrace. They are the "Marionettes Modern," owned by Mrs. H. L. Rust, jr., and were featured at the Capitol Theater a couple of months ago. Dancers Dade and Weir will also join the Terrace show. The shadow dancing Stanley Twins will remain for another week.

Vaudeville will have a gay revival at the Lotus this week. There'll be a series of dance, comedy and novelty acts in the best vaude tradition, songs by Buddy Shaner, Dixieland dance swing by Bill Strickland's Orchestra.

Diverting Eddie Daniels has just opened at the Neptune Room. He plays the organ, sings and can do a swell impression of Mae West. There's also a nifty new trio including Clyde Rounds (ex-Tommy Dorsey), George Bersch (ex-Ruth Etting) and Clem Dockery (ex-WOR). They play sax, clarinet and vibraphone.

That saucy revue, "The Hollywood Blondes" will arrive in Bamboo Gardens today. Songs by Marian Dawn and Huey Liang.

The Harrington Tavern looks like a highly decorative beehive what with workmen fairly climbing over each other in the drive to get all the handsome new fixin's in place. There'll be a gala opening on Wednesday or Thursday.



MARY LA MARR, attractive warbler at the Madrillon

PATRICK McGROARY, jovial manager of the Rainbow Room

CHARMING HARPIST. Marian Wilkinson, Philadelphia harpist, is delighting the luncheon and dinner patrons in Wardman's Colonial Room. Some of her programs are compiled entirely from the works of a single famed composer, thus imparting a fine unity to the session.

For "table to table music" its best, listen to Marty Rubin and Les Colvin at O'Donnell's Farms. They have the rare gift of toning their music to the exact low volume needed to make table music pleasant. And not only do they know all the current songs, but they have some surprising humdingers in the way of specialties.

WALLY RETURNS. Wally Stoefler and his orchestra made such a hit at Glen Echo early in the summer that they have been brought back for another week in the Spanish Ballroom. It's a clowning and entertaining band as well as a fine dance music unit, gives the lads and lassies plenty to laugh at as they do jitter steps.

Really Cuban are those tuned cow-bells and the mule's jaw with loose teeth that are shaken so fiercely when la congas are played at the Lounge Riviera. Pete Macias personally brought them to the States on the Havana Clipper.

CANDID CAMERA. Rainbow Room. James Dewey, conciliator of the Department of Labor, looking as serene as if he'd never heard of a strike.

Hi Hat. Singer Angie Rodante vowing "I'll take a 5-mile bike ride tomorrow." It seems that Angie has just gone on another of her spaghetti-eating sprees.

Glorified Victuals. The Hour Glass is now making a specialty of chicken pies on Tuesdays, veal and kidney pies on Saturday. Both are something scrumptious . . . And you've never tasted ham and eggs until you've had ham and eggs a la Roger Smith roof garden. The hen fruit and ham are smothered in sweet potatoes, tomatoes and green peppers, then baked with American cheese.

ATTENTION, HEP CATS! There's another "Jitterbug Contest" at the A. & T. Barbecue tomorrow evening. Dick Davis' music and you do the rest.

Dickinson Hits Gaiety Akin To Babylon's

Behavior of Governors At Parley an Evil Influence, He Says

By the Associated Press

Charlotte, Mich., Aug. 20.—Gov. Dickinson told a Sunday school class in Center Eaton Methodist Church today that a conference of governors in New York State he attended, was "the nearest thing I know" to Belshazzar's Feast, text for today's international Sunday school lesson on temperance.

A blast against "high life" upon his return from the conference made the 80-year-old Dickinson a national figure. Attendance at his crossroads Sunday school class soared, and today he talked for the first time to a gathering of 50 persons that included "pupils" from Detroit and Chicago.

"I'm telling you the mere countenancing of drink at that affair of the governors had just as evil an effect upon their people as Belshazzar's feasts had in Babylon. It was the influence that mattered.

"If we could start at the top, with the men and women who are in the public eye, and there have an influence that would come down to the rest of us, it wouldn't be long till that influence would cover the whole country."

He declared that "we've got to clean the liquor traffic out of the churches. Too many in our churches, and on our own official boards, have become enmeshed in the liquor traffic."

Fairfax Chamber Committee Heads Are Designated

Frederick W. Robinson, of Herndon, new president of the Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, has announced the appointment of the following committee chairmen:

Agriculture, John W. Ferguson, of Clifton, and A. L. Haight, of Fairfax Station, cochairmen; constitution and by-laws, W. Lewis Leigh, of Fairfax; education, Dr. Lemig Sweet, of Fairfax; finance, Lawrence W. Proctor, of Falls Church; health, Mrs. Elizabeth Murry, of Fairfax; legislation, John A. K. Donovan, of Falls Church; membership, Clarence B. Jett, of Lorton, and Dr. Ernest Clay Shull, of Herndon, cochairmen; reassessment, Omer L. Hirst, of Annandale; wild life conservation, Dr. Lewis C. McNemar, of Falls Church; publicity, Thomas P. Chapman, jr., of Fairfax.

3 Held in $60,000 Bond Forgery

Boston, Aug. 20 (AP).—In what investigators described as a "huge bond swindle," two unidentified men and a girl were held in custody tonight on suspicion of dealing in counterfeit securities.

Boston police and Federal agents questioned the trio in connection with $60,000 worth of forged bond certificates, which they said have been deposited in two banks and an investment house within a week as collateral for loans.

Meanwhile, investigators prepared to question 15 girls whose names were found on papers in possession of one of the men. Police said the forged securities purported to be "Kingdom of Belgium" bonds.

Throng Attends Opening Of Carroll County Fair

Taneytown, Md., Aug. 20 (AP).—A calliope blared, prize cows mooed accompaniment and the annual Carroll County Fair opened today.

Farmers and their families jammed through the gates in one of western Maryland's largest fairs to view prize horses, prize ears of corn, preserves and blue ribbon cattle.

Church Mission In China Bombed

Chungking (Monday), Aug. 21 (U.P.).—The Rev. George R. Snyder, of Akron, Ohio, reported to the United States Embassy today that the Reformed Church Mission at Yuanling, in Hunan Province, was severely bombed Friday. The resulting fire destroyed two mission chapels, he said.

Twenty-five Americans at Yuanling were not injured.

Junior Chamber Plans Magazine To Boost Virginia

Richmond, Va., Aug. 20 (AP).—The board of directors of the Virginia State Junior Chamber of Commerce made plans today to publish a magazine to promote projects and policies in which the organization is interested.

B. Powell Harrison, of Leesburg, a vice president of the chamber, was placed in charge of the magazine, the first issue of which will be published in November.

Among other things, said Tom Baldridge, of Winchester, State president, the junior chamber will sponsor a State-wide health program and will urge legislation requiring a premarital test for venereal diseases.

Virginia Tech Expects 1,000 New Students

By the Associated Press

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 20.—Plans for the orientation program of more than 1,000 new students expected at Virginia Tech Friday, September 15, have been completed by Paul N. Derring, Y. M. C. A., secretary, and R. Lee Humbert, executive secretary, who are in charge of this special program for new students. Former students will register Tuesday, September 19, and classes will begin Wednesday morning, September 20.

The new students are to report for registration and physical examination Friday, September 15. That night an assembly will be held in the student activities building at which time Dr. Julian A. Burruss, president, will speak. George Campbell, of Cincinnati, is to direct a special program of singing and entertainment.

Dr. Dabney S. Lancaster, executive secretary of the Sweet Briar College Board of Overseers, will speak at an assembly to be held Saturday evening, September 16.

New students in military will be given preliminary military instruction Saturday morning, September 16, while those who are not in military will meet for a discussion of the civilian student union government.

An innovation in this year's program has been arranged for Saturday afternoon when the new students will be divided into curriculum units. They will be taken to the various instructional departments for a preview of the classrooms and laboratories and to have an opportunity to meet many of the professors with whom they will have classes.

Special services in the various Blacksburg churches are scheduled for Sunday morning, September 17. Open house will be held Sunday afternoon in the student activities building "for promoting acquaintances among students, faculty members, and friends of the community." Vesper services, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., will be held that evening.

Vocational tests, military drill and intramural sports are scheduled for Monday, September 18. C. F. Faison, Petersburg, president of the corps, is to explain the honor system at an assembly that day.

W. C. Johnson, jr., director of student guidance and placement,

Jobs for Workers Laid Off WPA Sought by Group

Lloyd Leith, national secretary, announced yesterday the Workers Security Federation, organization of WPA workers and the unemployed, would call upon members of Congress to supply jobs to furloughed WPA workers or return to Washington and amend the 1940 relief act.

Leith said this decision was reached yesterday by the federation's national action committee, meeting in Philadelphia. Legislators, he said, will be visited by committees.

The committee, he added, also adopted a resolution condemning President Roosevelt's "attitude" in asserting recently that he would call a special session of Congress only in case of a foreign crisis.

Leith said the committee postponed until Congress meets a national march on Washington, once scheduled for September 9.

Rule Becomes Order

Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA commissioner, yesterday ordered that work projects enrollees be given preference hereafter when WPA supervisory and administrative posts are filled.

While that practice had been widely followed in the past, Harrington said, his order gave it official status.

If You Are Interested in Buying a PIANO at a Saving
Read this ad

Our big summer clearance is over and we still have too many pianos on our floors to allow a full display of the new fall models that have just come in so we're repricing every floor sample and used piano that we want to sell to absolutely the lowest prices possible in order to move them at once! Every instrument that we didn't sell in our previous clearance has been reduced again and they were already heavily reduced! And for this week only to make it easier for you to take advantage of these values we will deliver any item to your home on these unusual terms—

NO MONEY DOWN
Long, Easy Payments

In other words, this week in our store you can buy that piano you've wanted at the lowest price of the year and on the easiest terms, so why wait?

Included in this heavily reduced group are such fine makes as Knabe, Wurlitzer, Estey, Fischer, Mathushek, Kimball, Steinway (used), Starr, Everett, Jannsen, Cable-Nelson, Haselton and others . . . mostly brand new and slightly used instruments.

If you have been in and know which piano you are interested in, phone us and we will give you the new reduced price. Call . . .

Contract Bridge

By Florence Osborn.

There is an old saying which runs, "Nothing succeeds like success," and this is particularly true of bridge. Whether it is in the laws or in the play, as long as things progress smoothly, as long as contracts are made, and all the rulings are against the adversaries, a fellow can make innumerable mistakes and get away with it. As long as they cost nothing, his partner is inclined to be tolerant and have a short memory regarding the errors, but let him make the tiniest slip, have it result in the loss of a contract or a severe penalty and he is in for the tongue-lashing of his life.

A typical example of this is today's hand, taken from the notebook of a New England player on which simply the order of play cost the contract and made declarer subject to his partner's merciless criticism. It was a slight error which would have been completely overlooked were it not for the fact that the defense was particularly sharp.

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable.

SOUTH DEALER.

	♠ 8 6 3 2 ♡ A 5 ◇ 9 8 7 3 ♣ J 7 2
♠ J 9 5 ♡ Q 9 7 ◇ K Q J ♣ Q 10 8 3	NORTH WEST EAST SOUTH	♠ 10 ♡ J 8 6 4 ◇ A 10 6 ♣ 5 2
	♠ A K Q 7 4 ♡ K 10 3 2 ◇ 4 ♣ A 8 4	♣ K 9 8

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: K ◇.

In actual play, declarer ruffed the second lead of diamonds and cashed the ace and king of trumps to learn that West had the jack left and he must leave it with him, as two hearts had to be ruffed in dummy. Next declarer cashed the ace and king of hearts, played a low heart to the dummy, ruffed and came back to his hand with a club to the ace. The last heart was led, inviting West to trump, which would have given South the coptract, as if West trumped he could discard one of dummy's losing clubs, but West refused, throwing a diamond. Declarer now attempted to enter his hand by ruffing a diamond, but West overruffed and led two rounds of clubs to set the contract one.

Had declarer followed the same line of play except to enter his hand first with a diamond ruff and second with the club ace, he would have been able to pull West's spade jack at the end and win the contract. Upon the selection of an entry, a tiny thread, hung his contract, and the difference between being considered a fine player and a dub in his partner's eyes.

The Federal Diary

By The Diarist

The alacrity with which nearby town officials who earn their bread and butter by working for the Government are turning in their resignations to conform to provisions of the Hatch act has the Diarist completely baffled. Frankly, it doesn't make sense.

The Diarist can only conclude that there must be something particularly undesirable about municipal offices when their incumbents are so eager for any excuse to relinquish them. For it is far from certain that the Hatch act, despite the absence of specific exemptions, insists that local functionairies give up either their town jobs or their Government pay checks.

The argument is, simply, that running for and holding local, non or low paid offices probably does not constitute "political management" in the Hatch act's sense. The Department of Justice is expected to rule on the matter within the week. Meantime it is advising inquirers to sit tight and not toss up their posts unless demanded by someone authorized to ask their resignation. The catch is that, pending the ruling, no one is authorized to make such a demand.

One conclusion is that Glen Echo's former Mayor McCuen, the Takoma Park councilman, and others who have resigned, probably were thoroughly fed up and clutched at the Hatch law as a convenient straw. If so, the legislation is serving a purpose unforeseen by the gentleman from New Mexico.

Curiously, the German newspapers, which devote as much space to internal American legislative and political affairs as the American journals give to bridge club results in Baluchistan, all carried long, detailed and accurate stories on the Hatch act. The Diarist has no explanation for it, but would be pleased to hear one.

Cecil E. Custer, bustling assistant budget officer of the Civil Service Commission, appears to have the presidency of the American Federation of Government Employes well in the bag. It is a safe bet he will step into the shoes of Retiring President Charles I. Stengle when the AFGE elects at its Atlantic City convention beginning September 11.

"Cece's" election, incidentally, will mean that control of the union, whose membership is proportionately heavy in Washington, will stay in the Nation's Capital and will thus supply bigwigs in the field with an "issue" which they love to talk about, but do not take seriously.

The Alcohol Tax Unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue points to E. L. Springer, who at 60, will have completed 48 years of Government service. This, says the unit, is an all-time record unsurpassed by any other employe of that age.

Now and again the Government cracks down on its employes, the Internal Revenue Bureau reveals, announcing that two employes have been separated from their jobs after charges of misconduct and collusion.

ADRIANA

By George Dyer

A Story of Love and Intrigue in Vineyard Sound

CHAPTER 8

"YOU'RE AFRAID," I charged. "What of?"

Adriana looked around the cabin uneasily.

"When I snuggle down in a corner of this beautiful boat," she said, "I really don't know what I'm scared of. I feel so peaceful, and—safe, here. It's somehow reassuring just to stroke that lovely woodwork, and feel the rough cloth of this blue cushion, and see the sunlight pouring down the hatch, and hear the surf out there, so near, and trying so hard to get at us, and yet unable to reach us. I don't know. Perhaps you think I'm silly?"

"I certainly don't think you're silly," I said, "and what I do think you are I wouldn't dare tell you for fear of giving you a swelled head. Then you'd have to buy a larger bandanna, and that would be a dreadful waste of money because that one is so becoming and goes so well with your eyes. Did you know that you have very blue eyes?"

She crinkled them, and the short nose between them.

"The fact has been mentioned before," she said.

"Well, then, why does it frighten you that you and I together have a controlling interest in the common stock of that phony company across the creek?"

"Begin at the beginning," I suggested, putting a scoopful of charcoal briquettes in the stove, opening the damper, and sitting down on the starboard bunk. Here I could smoke a fresh pipe in comfort, and admire the view, which was Adriana Blake, and decidedly admirable.

The girl was curled at the forward edge of the port bunk, just as she had been on the previous evening. It seemed as if already we had begun to consider that corner hers by right.

The great greyhound had re-

staked his claim on the other three-quarters of the same berth and crouched in the moment before dozing, like a lion on a monument, considering his mistress' face with grave satisfaction. It should be said, once and for all, that The MacGlashan of Rannoch was the chaperon to shame all others. This was only the second of many occasions when he served in this capacity, and his behavior was at all times beyond reproach.

If we chose to sit and talk, he slept. If we wanted to walk, he accompanied us, striding along with his collar touching Adriana's left hand when ordered to heel, or when at liberty ranging out 50 to 100 feet ahead.

If the day were chilly enough to penetrate his rough coat, he would sometimes treat us to the spectacle of a restrained gambol. This he did always a trifle self-consciously, appearing to surprise even himself by such antics, which were in the tempo of a colt rather than a dog. Ordinarily a serious-minded animal, he could laugh with mouth and eyes and tail at a friend who teased him, and he had the prankishness of one but barely out of puppyhood. He was a month over 2 years old when I met Adriana. He had reached his full height of 3 inches short of a yard at the shoulders only eight months before, and his full weight of 116 pounds within half a year.

HE WAS body and soul Adriana's; but he showed a charming graciousness to her acquaintances. Toward strangers he was politely aloof. How he would behave toward an enemy, human or animal, was as yet a cypher. He was slow to arouse (so far his mistress had never seen him in anger) and he had not even been in a fight with another dog. On the other hand, he knew all the holds, because he had wrestled with his brother Craigie all his life. Further, thanks to a country upbringing he was in the hardest sort of condition; the 116 pounds were all fighting pounds; his muscles were as much like iron as the color of his coat. He could cover ground like a scared buck; sometimes, when he realized how fast he was moving, he alarmed himself.

Adriana (a little appalled as she saw her pet growing to the outermost limits of size for his breed) had recognized early that such a beast, without education, would be too much of a handful. She had therefore picked up a pamphlet by an English constable, one Reginald Arundel, and followed its detailed instructions to give her dog the elements of police training. He accepted schooling willingly enough, but made it clear he thought it silly, and was doing it only to oblige. What he really preferred was walking across country, or lying, as now, in a warm cabin, with his long forelegs folded in under his wide chest, one hind leg cocked up akimbo, and his broad, sensible, grey shaggy head in Adriana's lap.

"There are really no coincidences," began the girl, indirectly, "unless you can call it a coincidence that you ran through Robinsons Hole full speed without being able to see anything. But I'd call that a miracle."

"Don't rub it in," I said. "You convinced me last night that I am a Marriner only in name. I've looked at the chart since. It was a miracle."

"Well, if we accept that, everything else follows naturally. Your boat is not named after me, of course."

"It is also my mother's. She knew the minute you said your Uncle Nathan had left you a boat that it must be the Adriana you had moored at our pier. But when she didn't explain yesterday, I didn't think I ought to without her permission. She told me at breakfast this morning that she didn't mind. You see, years and years ago, my mother and father and your Uncle Nathan were all very good friends. In fact, your Uncle Nathan introduced my father to her, I believe. It happened because your uncle was in shipping. My father was a naval constructor in the Navy until he had to retire because of his health. Then he practiced as a private marine architect, and did some work for your uncle's firm. So, you see, that's how it happened. Your uncle never married and he was always very fond of father and mother. I suppose that's why your boat is named Adriana."

"AND THAT," I said, "is of course why you're so good at sailing this namesake of your mother's—it all comes from your father's training."

"Yes, partly," said Adriana. "Father died when I was still a little girl, but we were long enough together for me to learn how to handle small boats. Practically my earliest memories are wonderful days on the water. He used to let me steer when I was hardly strong enough to hold the tiller and I had to use both hands. But I realize now that his big brown hand was always nearby to take the helm if it got too much for me."

Adriana stopped talking and stroked the gray muzzle on her leg.

"But what he taught me most," she went on, "was to love the sea as he loved it. And to respect it, but never to fear it, because the minute you begin to fear it, it will swallow you."

"Unless," I said, "some one with perfect nerve and perfect skill turns up out of the night to save you."

The girl shook her head in denial.

"What little I know I learned from my father, and from knocking around these waters in a small catboat every summer since his death, and most of all from Capt. Matt Hansen, whose wharf you're tied up to now. When I couldn't sail my own boat, he'd let me go out with him and his sons on the Freda K.—that's the boat on the inside of us against the wharf. He's always been wonderful to me; I think he was fond of father, long ago. Anyway, he's let me do everything with them. I've gone lobstering with them hundreds of times, and hand-lining for cod, and gone with them after yellow-tails off No Mans Land, when we use an autotrawl, and for blackbacks and flukes around the Elizabeth Islands—everything. Of course, I work right along with him and Sig and Arne, filling bait bags, and so on, but they're all such dears that they'd be just as nice to me if I didn't raise a finger."

"Who are Sig and Arne?" I said.

"His sons. Didn't you see them this morning? Well, of course, Capt. Matt is the real dear. Didn't you like him? He's been fishing out of Menemsha for 40 years, I guess, and he knows all the waters from Nantucket Lightship to The Race as well as he knows the cabin of the Freda K. It's mostly because of what he's taught me in the long days when we've been chugging around outside that I feel sure I couldn't be lost, in any weather, anywhere among these islands. Only, of course, he can find his way entirely by memory, and I have to remind myself with charts and current tables, and all that sort of thing."

She stopped, looking apologetic. And beautiful.

My whole picture of Adriana Blake as an innocent child had been blasted the night before, but here was a further astonishing unfolding of a personality and a life which were as foreign to my experience—and as exciting—as a view of a planet through a powerful telescope.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES

Studying to Be a Bull's-Eye

BY MILTON CANIFF

REALIZING THAT THE DRAGON LADY IS HOPING TO SEE PAT RYAN ON HER CURRENT RAID, TERRY DECIDES TO FOLLOW AND LEAD PAT BACK TO GET APRIL KANE AND DEETH CRIGPIN.... HOWEVER, AS HE LEAVES, APRIL KISSES HIM GOODBYE—PUTTING HIM IN SUCH A DAZE HE STUMBLES INTO THE DRAGON LADY'S REAR GUARD IN THE DARKNESS...
SHOOT THAT PERSON DOWN BEFORE WE ARE BETRAYED...
HEY, DRAGON LADY! IT'S ME, TERRY!
HOLD YOUR FIRE! ...WHAT EVIL GENIUS BRINGS YOU HERE, YOUNG ONE?
WELL, FRANKLY, I THOUGHT YOU MIGHT RUN INTO PAT RYAN... AN' I WAS TAGGIN' ALONG!
TAGGING, INDEED... AND VERY BADLY DONE! YOUR FRIEND RYAN WILL HARDLY BE PLEASED WHEN HE HEARS!
THEN YOU DO EXPECT TO SEE HIM — WHO COULD TELL HIM BUT YOU? I SURELY WOULDN'T!
YOU TRAP ME NEATLY, YOUNG ONE! FOR THAT YOU WILL MARCH NEAR THE DRAGON LADY... WHERE, IF THERE IS FIGHTING, YOU WILL BE MOST LIKELY TO STOP A BULLET!

Heart Attack Is Fatal to Gen. Matthews

Marine Corps Examiner Was Recovering From Injuries in Auto Crash

Brig. Gen. Calvin B. Matthews, who was on the Marine Corps Examining Board at the barracks here, died yesterday morning at Naval Hospital, where he was undergoing treatment for injuries received in an auto accident three weeks ago.

Gen. Matthews

Although his career had carried him afar, the accident happened almost in front of his home at 1900 Florida avenue northwest, while he was attempting to park his auto.

Gen. Matthews was a brother of Brig. Gen. Hugh Matthews, United States Marine Corps, retired, former quartermaster of the Marine Corps and now of Loudin, Tenn.

Gen. Matthews was awarded the Naval Distinguished Service Medal for his work in Nicarauga in 1932. He was born in Loudin, Tenn., on September 10, 1882, and became a second lieutenant in the service on December 6, 1904.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Julia Matthews.

Funeral arrangements are to be announced later.

The accident that hospitalized Gen. Matthews occurred when he attempted to dislodge his car, which had caught on the auto in the next parking space. His car started down an incline, and as he jumped into it to stop it, he was pinned between the auto and a lamppost.

Nebraska Rotary Leads Columbus Light Donations

From a little Western town in the path of America's pioneers has come the first financial contribution made by a private organization on the American continent toward erection of a $4,000,000 Columbus Memorial Lighthouse in the Dominican Republic, it was announced by the Pan American Union here yesterday.

For the memorial in honor of that premier pioneer, Christopher Columbus, the Rotary Club of Franklin, Neb., has sent the initial private contribution to the project, which is due to be completed by 1942, the 450th anniversary of Columbus' discovery.

The donation from Franklin follows the appeal made jointly by Rotary International and the Pan American Union to Rotary Clubs in the 21 American republics. The memorial will be erected with the co-operation of governments and peoples of the republics.

JuniorNature Hike Slated Tomorrow

The National Park Service weekly program will be highlighted by a junior nature walk open to children from 8 to 15, who will be shown trees and flowers along Rock Creek Nature Trail from 9:30 to 11:30 a. m. tomorrow.

A moving picture "Boulder Dam," will be shown at Fort Bunker Hill Park near the Franciscan Monastery at 8 p. m. Thursday.

"Through Yellowstone National Park with a Movie Camera," color movies taken by Henry E. Lorentz, will be shown at 8 p. m. Friday in the Sylvan Theater. If the weather is unfavorable the program will be transferred to the Interior Auditorium.

Battleship Division Command Changed

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

Amid the rumbling of guns, Rear Admiral A. P. Fairfield (right) Saturday assumed command of Battleship Division 3, aboard the flagship Idaho, in Los Angeles Harbor, relieving Rear Admiral John D. Wainwright (left), shown congratulating him. Admiral Wainwright was transferred to Washington as a member of the Navy's general board.

Father Rinaldi's Home Parish Hears His First High Mass

800 Members of Italian Colony Gather at Holy Rosary Church To Honor Native Son in Priesthood

Eight hundred residents of the Italian colony in the Third and F streets northwest section yesterday overflowed Holy Rosary Church at that address to welcome home one of their sons, Father Rinaldi, who celebrated his first high mass since his ordination.

Men who as boys played marbles with "Nick" at his home three blocks from the church, some who had shared schoolday experiences and others who gave service with him as altar boys at Holy Rosary, joined with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Rinaldi, in the service.

The Rev. Leo P. Manzetti, under whose guidance the young man was urged to enter the priesthood and who came from Baltimore to address the congregation, assured them that Father Rinaldi was "setting a splendid example for all of us to follow."

Speaking in Italian, he recalled that Father Rinaldi always was observant in his spiritual duties.

"I am proud to see that he has taken this path," he said, mentioning that the priest will take over his duties at St. Leo's Church in Baltimore after September 17.

Joseph, Angelo and Anthony Rinaldi, who assisted their brother at the altar, later joined with their father and mother and other relatives in being embraced by Father Rinaldi. Later he blessed his family and the rest of the congregation.

Honored at Reception

The Rev. Nicholas De Carlo, Holy Rosary rector, and the Revs. Florian Raedaelli and Joseph Graziani, of Baltimore, also participated in the service.

Last evening a congregational reception honoring the priest was held in the parish hall under the auspices of the Holy Name Society, of which Joseph Basso is president. Basso recalled that years ago Father Rinaldi was chairman of a group which organized a junior unit of the society.

Born here 26 years ago, Father Rinaldi received his early education at St. Patrick's Academy, and later was graduated from Gonzaga High School. He also attended Georgetown University, and in 1936 sailed for three years' study in Rome.
